PROGRESS MADE BY BRITISH

Line is Pushed Forward on a Thousand-Yard Front North of the Town of Oulliers—Hardest Test Passed.

London, July 19.—While the adverse weather is compelling a lull in the fighting on the western front, military critics are taking stock of the situation. They are agreeably surprised by the large captures of heavy armament that Gen. Sir Douglas Haig, the British commander in chief, announced.

The critics point out how the British attacks have been pressed with the greatest rapidity in order to give the Germans no time to organize formidable defenses. Also, as was evidenced by the withdrawal of the British from the Fourcaux wood, where they had reached the German third line, General Haig wisely resisted the temptation to hold on to that point. It would have incurred severe fighting, with probably heavy losses, and General Haig was in favor of a more methodical advance.

Hardest Tests Passed.

Evidence received from the front, as well as the official map published here, seems to prove that the German second line of defenses was far less strong and elaborate than the first. Therefore the military observers believe that the obstacles are likely to be less difficult as the entente allies advance.

Substantial progress by the British on a front of 1,000 yards north of Oulliers was announced in the war office statement. The statement follows: "Thick mist and incessant rain still are interfering with our operations in the neighborhood of the Somme, but to the north of Oulliers we made substantial progress last night on a front of 1,000 yards. The enemy were driven out of several strongly defended points, and we captured some prisoners and six machine guns.

"Near Wytchate (Belgium) we made a successful raid into German trenches. Opposite Culncy (northern France) a similar attempt by the enemy was frustrated by our fire."

Prussian Guard Wiped Out.

The capture of Oulliers by the British necessitated one of the most sanguinary encounters of the advance, which was a correspondent of the Liberte of Paris.

Nevertheless the British were well rewarded for their effort, for they gained possession of the broad highway leading from Albert to Bapaume. The village was defended for ten days by two regiments of the Prussian guard. The correspondent says that of these regiments only 126 men survived and all of these were captured.

SHERIFF ASKS FOR TROOPS

Miners Shooting Up Illinois Town, He Wires Governor, Who is Investigating.

Springfield, Ill., July 19.—Sheriff McGinnin of Hardin county sent a telegram to Gov. Edward F. Dunne asking that state troops be sent to Rosedale to stop violence among striking lead miners.

The sheriff's telegram said: "For two weeks conspiracy against lives and property has existed at Rosedale. Have sworn in deputies, yet nightly citizens are shot at and homes shot into. Last night a deputy and three citizens were wounded by hidden assassins. Two hundred strikers patrolling streets and prevented deputies hunting assassins of last night."

Belgians Defeat Germans

Reach Shore of Lake Victoria Nyanza in Africa After Seven-Hour Battle.

Havre, July 19.—Belgian troops operating in German East Africa have reached the shore of Lake Victoria Nyanza and in a seven-hour engagement fought July 7 they dispersed the Germans opposing their advance, taking the German commandant prisoners and inflicting a number of losses on the Germans, according to an official statement issued by the Belgian war office.

Large Army is on Border

Ninety-Eight Thousand United States Soldiers Have Been Massed, It is Official Report.

San Antonio, Tex., July 19.—Ninety-eight thousand state troops are on the border or on trains bound for there. These officials figures were issued today. These militia forces come from 38 states, according to General Funston, only ten of the states not being thus far represented.

The state troops are encamped at San Antonio, Brownsville, Pharr, Laredo, Del Rio, Marathon, Eagle Pass, Presidio, Marfa and El Paso, in the state of Texas; at Columbus, N. M., and Douglas, Ariz. Small detachments also located at intermediate points.

Fashionable Doctor is Shot

Boston Osteopath Hit Three Times While in His Office—Police Seek Physician.

Boston, July 19.—Dr. Wilfred E. Harris, an osteopath with a fashionable clientele, was shot three times while in his office. The assailant—a man—escaped. His injuries may be fatal. It is understood there were two women in the office at the time. The police are seeking Dr. Elbridge Atwood of Woburn, whom they desire to question.

CARRANZA FORCE POWERLESS

Gen. Trevino Admits His Inability to Stop the Raid—Malcontents Across the Durango State Line, Says Dispatch.

El Paso, Tex., July 19.—"Pansho" Villa's advance guard is riding on a raid north of Chihuahua City today and less than 150 miles from the American border.

Following Robert Guiscard's invasion, Cephalaonia passed in turn under the suzerainty of the princes of Tarantum, the five counts of Tocco, the republic of Venice, the ravaging corsairs of Greece and Naples, the Turks, the Spanish-Venetian allies, Venice again, France, the Russo-Turkish allies, the French and the British. Great Britain finally relinquished its protectorate and ceded the islands to Greece after the latter had allowed the court of St. James to name a brother of the princess of Wales as king of the Hellenes in 1832.

The chief city of Cephalaonia is Argostoli, which has an excellent harbor for its curious sea mills, operated by a current of sea water flowing through a chasm in the rocky shore. Across the bay from Argostoli is the rival port of Luxouri.

Cyclopean and Hellenic walls are still standing on the sites of the ancient cities of Crani, Proni and Somos, while a few miles beyond Argostoli there rises a relic of Venetian days, the strongly fortified castle of St. George.

The Cephalaonians, who are mentally alert and who are more purely Greek than the inhabitants of any of the other islands of the Ionian group, have shown great ingenuity and industry in building terraces for the cultivation of the vine and olive. One of the chief products of the island is a peculiarly flavored currant which found a ready market in Holland, Belgium and Germany. In addition to their agricultural pursuits, the Cephalaonians are interested in ship building, silk spinning, basket making and the manufacture of carpets. An odd lace, made of aloë fiber, is exported.

Elato, also known as Monte Negro (black mountain), which is more than 5,000 feet high, gets its name from the dark pine forests which clothe its slopes.

Wilson Talks to Leaders

Conference Said to Be in Effort to Secure Passage of the Child Labor Bill.

Washington, July 19.—President Wilson this afternoon went to his office in the senate chambers and called a conference of Democratic leaders, with the avowed determination of forcing the upper house of congress to put through the child labor bill before adjournment.

The president's appearance at the capitol came as a surprise. He had not taken anyone into his confidence, when the cabinet meeting broke up about noon at the White House, the president called his automobile and left for the senate without a word to anyone.

UNDER MANY FLAGS

ISLAND OF CEPHALONIA PLAY-THING OF THE POWERS.

Small Area of Land in Ionian Sea Has Been for Centuries a Shuttlecock in the Game of International Diplomacy.

The reported occupation of Cephalaonia by French and British forces, for strategic purposes, marks another cycle in the strange history of this island in the Ionian sea, which has played the role of shuttlecock in international diplomacy for more than 2,000 years. Its unique story is told in the following bulletin issued by the National Geographic society:

With an area about three times as great as that of Martha's Vineyard on the Massachusetts coast, Cephalaonia is the largest of the seven Ionian islands. The origin of its settlement is shrouded in the fascinating uncertainty of Homeric legend, but from the year of its surrender to the Romans, 180 B. C., its history has been marked by a succession of changes in ownership which would bewilder the most astute student of world politics.

After the Roman Emperor Hadrian made a gift of the island to Athens, Cephalaonia, and the six other islands of the Ionian group, became "free and autonomous," but during the ascendancy of the Byzantine empire they were subject to its power.

The next change came in the eleventh century. When William the Conqueror was engaged in establishing himself firmly in the British Isles, another Norman, Robert Guiscard ("the resourceful"), after conquering southern Italy, sailed to the Ionian sea and captured several of the islands, preparatory to overthrowing the Greek empire. This remarkable adventurer died on the island of Cephalaonia while engaged in quelling a revolt, at a time when he seemed to have laid the foundations for a Norman empire similar to that which William established in England.

Following Robert Guiscard's invasion, Cephalaonia passed in turn under the suzerainty of the princes of Tarantum, the five counts of Tocco, the republic of Venice, the ravaging corsairs of Greece and Naples, the Turks, the Spanish-Venetian allies, Venice again, France, the Russo-Turkish allies, the French and the British. Great Britain finally relinquished its protectorate and ceded the islands to Greece after the latter had allowed the court of St. James to name a brother of the princess of Wales as king of the Hellenes in 1832.

The chief city of Cephalaonia is Argostoli, which has an excellent harbor for its curious sea mills, operated by a current of sea water flowing through a chasm in the rocky shore. Across the bay from Argostoli is the rival port of Luxouri.

BE MODERATE IN ALL THINGS

It is Good to Think, Act and Talk on All Occasions Carefully and Sincerely.

The best of things, the best qualities of character, may be turned to evil by excess, remarks a writer in the Milwaukee Journal. The deepest sorrow is not expressed by the loudest wailing, nor the fullest joy found in immoderate laughter. Lack of moderation in eating and drinking carries its own punishment. Let your desires be moderate and your disappointments will be few.

Be moderate in your praise of another even if you think him a hero. Perfection is not of this world. Should you too loudly sing his praises, there will be the more ready to pick flaws in him. If he is found to exceed your commendation rather than fall below it the effect is better. One's partiality leads to magnifying the good and overlooking the evil, even to making plausible excuses. Still more desirable is it that you should beware of excess in condemnation. You may have conceived a false impression of him. You may not know all the extenuating circumstances. By voicing your dislike or disapprobation, you may be doing an injustice.

At the best, you are not helping to right the wrong. Let the world know by your conversation and conduct that you believe in truth, justice and kindness, but be careful how you put others under a ban as falling in these things. Excess in love is likely to carry jealousy, suspicion and selfishness in its train. Even religion may be carried to an excess that makes one intolerant and fanatical. Such excess makes the cause upheld unlovely to many. Learn moderation and you will make fewer mistakes.

Think your own thoughts and express them, but do not endeavor to force them on others by too strenuous insistence.

Funny Man of Japan.

The "Tada," Bud Fishers, and Goldberg are not confined to the realm of American journalism, for Japan, says a writer in Cartoons Magazine, has her comedy sketch artists. The endeavors of these men, he says, "show a striking similarity to much of the work done by our popular contemporaries. Clean, wholesome fun, quite of the order that one finds in such series as the 'Katzensperger Kids' and 'The Adventures of Willie Westinghouse'—Edison Smith, predominant in the Japanese pictures. There is only slight evidence of that element which to the American mind makes a large proportion of European work risqué and vulgar. The humor is childlike, possibly even more so than our own, but it has the crowning virtue of having cleanliness without being sterile or insipid.

"The Japanese have not created a new style of comic cartoon. On the contrary, they have remained thoroughly true to their proclivity for imitating the ideas of others. They have copied the American strip closely, and since we are prone to know them for this trait more than almost any other, few persons will wonder at the fact."

No Full Moon for Columbus.

Anybody who says there was a full moon the night before Columbus discovered America isn't automatically historically accurate. And anybody who prints a picture of the scene with a full moon in it is open to the criticism of folk who are snicky about details.

So it is that one of the pictures in the Ferris exhibition of historical American paintings at Philadelphia falls itself being talked about. The painting represents Columbus' career the night before the big find. There is a full moon just above the horizon, while the reflection of the setting sun is seen on the ship's sails.

A critic opened a controversy, and Dr. Eric Doolittle, professor of astronomy at the University of Philadelphia, settled it. The critic said he didn't think there was a full moon that night. Doctor Doolittle, consulting his charts, proved there wasn't—Philadelphia North American.

Effects of Baking Powders on Bread.

That modern methods of milling remove from wheat and corn flour the vitamins that are now believed to be an essential to health is made certain by Dr. Carl Vogt, M. X. Sullivan and C. V. Myers in a recently issued public health report.

Another point of importance in their report is that the peculiarities of dough made from these highly milled flours make necessary the use of much baking powder. Plain bicarbonate of soda is often used as such, but the experiments conducted by the authors prove that in baking this separates, discharging carbon dioxide gas and remaining as carbonate in the bread. Now carbonate of soda is highly alkaline, and the alkali destroys the vitamins. If, however, buttermilk or tartaric acid is combined with the bicarbonate of soda, it neutralizes the alkali and protects the vitamins.

Cat Trying to Raise Family of Foxes.

Daniel Wiggins, who lives near Grainer, N. C., felled a tree on his place a day or two ago, and discovered that a mother fox and family had been deprived of their home in the midst of the roots. The old fox was killed. Wiggins carried the infants to his home and delivered them to a cat, who had just lost her little ones by drowning. The mourning cat accepted the substitute babies with seemingly perfect satisfaction.

DO YOU GET YOUR MONEY'S WORTH IN THE MIDDLE WEST.

A man who was never in New York writes in the August American Magazine:

"It seems to me that we come nearer getting value received, as the old saying goes, for every dollar we spend out here than we do in either the East or the far West. We invest no money in tips, neither do we pay for the maintenance of glittering gilt palaces called restaurants and cafes, with their extravagant display of gilt and tinsel. Middle class middle-westerners have reduced life to one hundred cents to the dollar basis. Our men are sane and our women sensible. Take the average household here, for instance. She is not ashamed to do her own cooking and cleaning, and in many cases, the family washing and ironing. She makes a great deal of the wearing apparel worn by herself and her children."

COFFINS GROVE.

Quite a number were out to hear Mr. H. A. LeClere speak Sunday at the Coffins Grove Sunday school. A Sunday school was organized, with Luke Scanlon and Henry Gillespie as Superintendents, and Retta Scanlon as secretary and treasurer. Sunday school at 2:30 each Sunday.

Mr. LeClere will speak after the Sunday school session.

Mrs. Luke Scanlon entertained her Sunday school class Saturday afternoon. There were fifteen present. The children spent the time in singing in the country. Games were played and song sung. After this refreshments were served. In the cool of the evening the little folks were taken home a very tired but happy lot of girls and boys.

Small Girl's Complaint.

We had recently remodeled our home, making it into bungalow style, having a long, almost steep roof, with bungalow windows in it. A little girl came up to my husband one day and said to him: "My, you've made your house over, haven't you? It looks awfully cute. It looks just like a barn, doesn't it?"—Chicago Tribune.

Alfalfa Flour.

Alfalfa flour is now mixed with wheat flour and made into bread. It costs less and has greater food value than ordinary wheat flour. Most people don't like it, but perhaps we can get used to it just as we force our stock to eat sweet clover.

No Cause for Complaint.
