—Edward Blossch, who owns a large farm near Sand Creek church, tells us that he came nearly being mised his farm buildings during the terrific storm last Saturday night. The wind literally lifted a cattle shed 22 x 32 feet from directly south of the barn, and deposited the large roof to the east of the large barn. For a time he feared that other buildings on the farm would be wrecked. Fortunately Mr. Blossch had all of his stock in the main barn when the shed was wrecked. Had the stock been in the yard the chances are that his loss would have been much greater.
