There is some foolish talk outside about having published the proceedings of the Liberty convention in only a part of our edition of that week. We are obliged to get our paper out before 12 o'clock on Friday night, to meet the Fox River and Indian Creek mails, and it was after 10 o'clock that the Liberty convention adjourned, so that it was impossible to get them in that night.

As the election was but a week off, and the convention very anxious to have their proceedings generally circulated over the county before the election, we reprinted them in next morning. The cut which made the discovery is a reference to these proceedings might be keeping awake another whole night, discover that there is quite a difference this week between the papers printed last night and those printed this morning, and, indeed, a like grand discovery might be made on most every week.

"Excursion"—This is the motto adopted by our friend Lockwood. He is determined that his new stock of goods, of which he is now in receipt, shall be "ahead" of every other in town in point of quality, quantity and cheapness. And he'll stick to it.

Omnium Gatherum.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENT—An amusing and interesting experiment with electricity may be performed as follows: Take four glass tumblers, invert them upon the floor, lay a board on them, let a person stand on the board, and another, standing on the floor, bend him over the board, and another, standing on the floor, with a tin-rod, a muff, on any thing made of fur or silk plush, then apply your finger to the nose and a spark of fire will be seen to flash from the nose to the finger. The rod should be dark, when the experiment is made, so as to be able to see the flash.

MONTGOMERY PRIZE HANS—Mr. Nathan White, of Montgomery county, Md., gives the following as the receipt by which the prize has at the late fair was secured:

The park should be perfectly good before being set out for six weeks. About the first of April, take them down, and wet them with cold water, and let them remain in that state for several days, and then hang them in the soft grass for use.

TALKING DUTCH—While in Mexico the boys had a great many very curious adventures in talking Spanish, to the fair merchants señoras or bronze colored samboras, and not a few curious humorous accounts of those adventures found their way into the public press. But we can recollect no instance which bears the following extract from the diary of our present accomplished Assistant Marshal.

In taking the census, of course, he comes in contact with persons from almost every nation on the globe, many of whom, knowing nothing about the English language than the name in their own dialect Yankee politics. And, as our Marshal is not much of either a Frenchman, Dutchman, or Norwegian, but a full-blooded Yankee, he was obliged, for a while, to employ an interpreter when passing through settlements of either of the above countries. Having paid, as he thought, strict attention to the questions propounded by his interpreter, and repeating them over and over in his own mind, he imagined he could dispense with his interpreter and undertake the task alone.

It may be well to mention here that our Marshal had passed through the greater part of the Mexican war, and had become quite an adept in the Spanish language, so that he was able to answer every como se llama esta? that was put to him by a whole regiment of soldiers! Taking this also into account, he started out on his own hook.

The first effort he made was in a German settlement in the town of New York, and he was met by an old lady, whom he saluted—
"Guten jour!"
"He then made a polite courtesy, and said something which he did not understand, but supposed it to be an invitation to 'walk in.'"
"He then enquired—'Konnst English speak?'"
"The old lady replied the good woman's little confused 'Yes, when I can understand English.'"
"The old lady shook her head as she pointed to a chair and motioned to him to sit down, which he obeyed. Wishing to know the name of the proprietor, he propounded the following interrogatory:—
"Wasst der nameen of the house as vuer ager?"
"Ich verstehe sie nicht," was the reply.

The Marshal smiled at the singularity of the name, and wrote it down in his pocket-book. He then said—
"QUANTEN YAKES all ist ENTA HOMMER!" was his next question.
The old lady, unable to comprehend his questions, pointed out the window to the English settlement in the garden. The Marshal went to the door and called—
"HO-HEER! koom her!"
The man came, and, suspecting the difficulty addressed to the Marshal, he explained the matter, and the remainder of the questions were then filled out without any difficulty.

The next place he came to he was met by an old man, and the same preliminary questions were gone through, and to the enquiry in reference to the name, the old man also replied, "Ich verstehe sie nicht," which was again set down as above. He then pointed to a man on a ten-plump, healthy looking postboy, and enquired—
"Wasst der nameen of HO HOMMER and SENATORS?"
The old man looked somewhat confused as he again replied, "Ich verstehe sie nicht."
"Thunder! All called 'Ich verstehe sie nicht.'"
"Yan" was the reply. The Marshal set it down, but not being able to proceed any farther he was obliged to procure another interpreter, and in showing him the list of names he had obtained on his own hook, they both had a hearty laugh over them as the interpreter explained the mistake.

The following ticket was voted by Capt Rynders, at the recent election in this county:

For State Treasurer—
For Congress—CANTRELL, COVINGTON.
For Representative—JOHN HAY.
For Sheriff—JOSEPH W. DOW.
For Coroner—JOHN STROTT.

FIRE AND WATER-PROOF CEMENT.—Pour a pint of clear milk into a pint of milk; when the latter is fully coagulated, clear it off the milk, and let it settle, then mix the whole together; now add into it quick lime, till upon stirring the whole we obtain a thick paste. This cement will permanently unite marble, earthenware, China, &c.—Scientific Am.

Fall and Winter Stock of Goods!

"LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP!"

There is a saying, old enough, but yet very true. And now we venture to allude to it in rhyming verse. There's benefits attached to it, which will stay with you. But mind whatever else you do, look before you leap! Some famous traders also do, look before they leap. They were determined to do right, though others might do wrong. They opened store, displayed their goods, the people looked in crowds. They saw—admitted—largely bought, and spoke in praise loud. For years successful, they advanced, the favorites of the mass; They strove to please both high and low, and sent each varied class; Till envions of their noble fare, who, others thought that they had won. They saw—admitted—largely bought, and spoke in praise loud. They were successful, they advanced, the favorites of the mass; They strove to please both high and low, and sent each varied class; Till envions of their noble fare, who, others thought that they had won.
