LITERATURE.

Books.

THE WIFE OF MONTE CRISTO. Being a continuation of Alexander Dumas' celebrated novel of the Count of Monte Cristo. T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia; Jansen, McClurg & Co., Chicago; Hapeman & Graham, Ottawa. 75 cts.

THE SON OF MONTE CRISTO. Sequel to The Wife of Monte Cristo, and end of the continuation of the celebrated novel of Alexander Dumas. T. B. Peterson, Philadelphia, & Co., N. Y.

In the way of sensational and paroxysmal fiction the Monte Cristo novel of Alexander Dumas must ever stand as a model of the highest order that style has ever attained. The writer of the stories of which the titles are given above, (whoever he may be, for they are published anonymously,) avails himself largely of the material furnished by master genius named, and then, closely imitating his style and manner, proceeds to follow the fortunes of the remarkable characters Dumas had created and left undisturbed, to a happy or miserable denouement. To the admirers of Dumas the close imitation of his style will be both striking and pleasing, and to the lovers of the ultra sensational, the books cannot fail to satisfy the utmost craving. They teem with excitement and adventure, absolutely bristle with thrilling incidents, and are pervaded by an element of mystery that vastly augments their fascination. The plot of both stories is strong and compact, the action rapid—so rapid indeed as often nearly to take away one's breath,—and the succession of startling surprises continuous. The books are such as most novel readers, particularly of the sensational sort, cannot fail to highly enjoy.

CAMP-FIRE, MEMORIAL DAY AND OTHER POEMS. By Kate Brownlee Sherwood. Chicago: Jansen, McClurg & Co. Ottawa: For sale by Hapeman & Graham.

Kate Brownlee Sherwood, the writer of the poems that fill this beautiful volume of some 200 pages, was the wife of an officer of the Union army from Ohio, and herself shared in the vicissitudes of field and camp and hospital, gaining an experience which, with her impressive poetic temperament, enables her martial lays to strike a responsive chord in every soldier's breast. For years she has been known throughout the north for the strength and fervor of her patriotic lyrics. Her poems depicting the uprising of the North, the arming for the field, the march, the fight, the charge, the repulse, the loss of comrades, the grief, heroism, and final victory—the shifting lights and shadows of soldier life,—are at once simple, strong, and peculiarly effective. After floating around in magazines and the newspapers for years, Messrs. Jansen, McClurg & Co. have been induced to collect them together and present them in the enduring form of the volume before us. Soldiers especially will enjoy and value them as a precious treasure.

MAGAZINES. POPULAR SCIENCE MONTHLY. The November number leads off with an illustrated article by T. W. Mather on "Flying Machines." While he admits that little has yet been accomplished towards the solution of the problem of aerial navigation, he gives scientific reasons for believing it to be practicable. J. M. Keating discusses with great vigor the subject of "Negro Education" in the light of the experience of the past 20 years in that direction. "Two Wonderful Instruments," by Albert Leffingwell, M. D., is a very readable chapter in optics. "A Free Colony of Lunatics" gives a rather surprising account of the Belgian manner of dealing with that class of unfortunate. Prof. Grant Allen discusses pleasantly on the rural subject of "Clover," and John F. Hume offers some important "points" on the art of "Investing." Other articles worthy of note are: "The Problem of Higher Education," by Prof. Eggert, of the Iowa University; "Relations of Science to the Public Weal," by Prof. Playfair, of the British Association at Aberdeen; "Modern Science and Modern Thought," by S. Laing, M. P.; and "The Motor Centers and the Will," by Dr. Horsley. There is a biography of Professor Playfair, and a copious and varied mass of information in the several departments which close the magazine.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW. The most notable article in the November number is a suggestive and comprehensive article on "The Progress of Democracy in Europe," by the great Spanish orator and patriot, Emilio Castelar. Admiral Ammon follows with some interesting as well as curious "Recollections of Gen. Grant."

Walt Whitman contributes a very pleasant chapter on "Slang in America." Ex-Minister Washburn has another installment of his interesting recollections of "Abraham Lincoln in Illinois." Eugene Schuyler contributes a timely paper on "United Bulgaria." "Statecraft and Priestcraft" is an able and scholarly paper by Dr. Schaff, and Gail Hamilton in her characteristic way treats the subject of "Race Prejudice," the number closing with a "Symposium on the Silver Question," from able writers arguing against demonetization.

THE ART INTERCHANGE, with its issue of Oct. 8th, ceases to be a sixteen page and becomes a twenty page paper, without additional charge to readers or subscribers. The first issue in its enlarged form contains in the matter of designs a beautiful one in color for decorating cup and saucer; a full size black and white design of lilies, for embroidering or painting on a dress front; an exquisite head for brass work or china painting; two novel designs for embroidering on glove sachets; a graceful model for painting on back of fan mount; decorative arrangement of verbenas and petunias for plate ornamentation. A charming sketch, "The First Rendezvous," shows two rural lovers, shyly taking council together. The text treats of the decorations for mantels, birch bark calendars, hints on portrait painting, oil colors for peacock, safe dryer in oil painting, schemes of color for house decoration, portieres, book shelf hangings, and other art topics. A very interesting discussion as to the truthfulness of W. D. Howells, the novelist's delineation of women, is also given in this issue, which can be obtained for 15 cents of the publisher, William Whitlock, 37 & 39 West 23d St., New York.

THE LAWS OF LIFE (Sanitarium Publishing Co., Danville, N. Y.) for October contains valuable articles on Dyspepsia, Diet in Relation to Age and Activity, Cereal Foods, Hot Weather Diet, Give Water for Babies, &c., with an exceedingly well conducted Editorial Department and a valuable Health Miscellany.

The October PHENOLOGICAL JOURNAL contains a fine portrait and sketch of Michel Eugene Chevreul, the oldest savant living; also portrait and sketch of the late S. I. Prime, for so many years editor of the New York Observer. Other articles in the number are Baby Faces—illustrated; Johnson and Boswell on Liberty; Liberty Overmuch; Notes from a Teacher's Diary; The Scenery of the Great Rocky Mountain Canyons—illustrated; Stimulants and Narcotics; Hot Water in Cholera; and Signs of Health and Debility. With Notes in Science and Agriculture, Editorial Items, Personal, Mirth, &c.

Catarrah is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease, liable, if neglected, to develop into serious consumption. Being a constitutional disease, it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in even its most severe forms. Made only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

The New York Evening Post offers its semi-weekly edition to new readers for the last three months of this year for 25 cents. Its make up includes, besides the news of the half-week, the leading editorials of the daily edition, foreign and domestic correspondence, personal, political and religious notes, book reviews, musical and dramatic criticism, farm, household, and fashion hints, selections from the best current foreign literature, etc. Owing to its thoroughly independent attitude upon all political questions, the views of the Evening Post are more eagerly sought and more widely copied than those of almost any other newspaper in the country. This was the case in the last presidential campaign, when, for reasons which it gave in advance of the nomination, it found itself unable to support the Republican candidate. This has been the case also since the election, for the paper has again demonstrated its independence by promptly denouncing all departures of the new Administration from the reform pledges upon which it was instituted with power.

HONORS. A frightful collision occurred on the Pennsylvania Railroad in New Jersey, 2 miles outside of Jersey City, on Sunday evening by a freight train running into an emigrant train and then a passenger train plunging into the wreck. A dozen lives—chiefly of emigrants—were lost, and twice as many were badly injured. A telegraph operator has been arrested for causing the disaster by giving the wrong signal.

In Chicago, on Monday morning, the house of William S. Bates, in Vernon Park Place, was set on fire by the carelessness of a servant girl in using a gasoline stove. Four persons—Mrs. Bates, two sons and his mother-in-law—perished in the flames.

Have been using Tongaline upon a patient who has been suffering with neuralgia for fifteen years; the effect was remarkable. It gave immediate relief. R. T. Connelly, M. D., Mountain Fork, Ark.

Snow fell on Tuesday all over the "peninsula" of northern Michigan to the depth of 8 inches to a foot, in some places blocking railroad trains. There was also a slight fall of snow on the same day in northern Illinois and Iowa, and in spots as far south as Des Moines, Iowa, and Monmouth, Ill. Few snowflakes have yet been seen here, but the weather was "raw" enough on Tuesday and Wednesday to be very suggestive of "Canada feathers."

Lord Chesterfield, the pink of politeness in his day, said that a true gentleman should be always succiter in modo, fortiter in re, which means mild in manner, strong in action. This is precisely the character of Ayer's Cathartic Pills. Nothing operates so mildly and yet so powerfully in removing disease.

Natural Gas at Mendota.
Dr. Evans, of Streator, in regard to the questions where the natural gas at Mendota comes from and how long it may hold out, has the following to offer, containing suggestions and admonitions which the people of that locality may find timely and worth heeding:

Mendota is located over lower Silurian rocks. All of northern Illinois, down to a few miles south of Mendota, is Silurian. The Coal Measures coming up from the south, lap on to the Silurian, but thin out to nothing a few miles south of Mendota. The northern rim of the Illinois coal basin is very steep and the upturned edges of the Lower coal measures come to the surface all along its margin, thus making favorable conditions for the escape of gas generated in the deeper portions of the basin. Heavy and extensive beds of drift gravel and lie on the rocks and are covered over by impervious prairie clays. These drift beds are spread continuously over both Silurian and Coal Measure rocks. The rocks below form a floor, and the clays above a tight cover to an immense prairie reservoir, which, I repeat, extends beyond the Silurian rocks out to the upturned edges of the Coal Measures. The Coal Measures, then, are the direct and only possible source of the Mendota gas.

It may have, and probably has, been slowly distilling into this prairie reservoir ever since the drift period. It ought to be high pressure gas by this time.

There undoubtedly is a large volume of gas under the prairie in the vicinity of Mendota, for it has traveled six miles or more from its source to get there; but its production is limited. If heavy draughts, therefore, are made on this accumulation of gas, it will gradually be exhausted. Were I permitted to make a practical suggestion, it would be that so "rich" a find as Mendota has struck should not be tooled away; that all holes but one be hermetically sealed; and the gas from that one carefully husbanded and applied to some useful purpose without delay.

Suppose one should tap the gas reservoir three or four miles south of Mendota and draw heavily upon it, what would become of Mendota gas? Who would have the inside track on a supply?

Finally, after a while the light of the Mendota gas will begin to flicker out and the unbalanced head of the Mendotaites will resume their equilibrium—wiser, but disappointed men.

Salvation Oil, the celebrated American remedy for cuts, bruises, sprains, scalds, chilblains, &c., can be had of all druggists. It kills pain. Price only twenty-five cents a bottle.

A letter has recently been given the public through the Washington correspondence of the Cleveland Leader, which was written by Grover Cleveland, when governor of New York, upon the receipt of a pass over the Mt. McGregor railroad, the first ever issued over that road. The letter, addressed to the sender of the pass, D. H. Fonda, Esq., reads as follows:

"My dear sir: Please accept my thanks for the compliment intended by the transmission of an annual pass over the Saratoga, Mt. McGregor & St. George railroad. While fully appreciating your kindness in this matter my notions on the subject are such that I hope I may without offense, return the same."

It is safe to say that no man ever saw such a letter as this written by James G. Blaine while holding office or at any other time.

Neal Dow, the great apostle of Prohibition, spent a month before the election in Ohio stumping the state for the Prohibition ticket, and to a correspondent of a Cincinnati paper, who met him on his return to Maine, gives the following explanation of the result at the late Ohio election:

"What about Ohio, general?"
"The prohibitionists did well. Gov. St. Johns vote was increased 300 per cent., or, in other words, the prohibition candidate for governor made that gain over the presidential vote."
"What contributed to the success of the republican party?"
"The rum vote. They outbid the democrats for the support of the rum-sellers, and their friends, and thus secured votes enough to elect their candidate. At a meeting of the Liquor League of Ohio it was decided that the republican candidates must be supported throughout the state."
"What will follow?"
"A total defeat of the republican party at future elections. This will be enough for church people, who will understand that the republican party is to be after this allied to the liquor interests. This election will be but the beginning of the end with the republican party; it will never elect another president."
"Was this alliance between the republican leaders and the liquor league a matter of general notoriety?"
"At least the public must have known of the nature of the questions put and pledges given by republican candidates in Cincinnati."
"You find the prohibitory sentiment growing?"
"Yes, I never spoke to better audiences than when in Ohio. Both republican bosses and democratic bosses were astonished and alarmed at our successes in calling out the people. We represent something."

"What of 1888?"
"This Ohio election makes our duty plain. There will be a prohibitory presidential ticket. We shall go into the fight in good earnest, and in this state we shall make a big fight. I propose to speak all over Maine next year in opposition to the republican party."

There is something in the very name of protection that ought to make workingmen cautious of accepting anything presented to them under it. The protection of the masses has in all times been the pretense of tyranny, the plea of monarchy, aristocracy of special privilege of every kind. The slave owners justified slavery as protecting the slaves. British misrule in Ireland is upheld on the ground that it is for the protection of the Irish. But, whether under a monarchy or a republic, there never has been an instance in the history of the world in which the protection of the laboring masses has not meant their oppression. The protection which those who have got the lawmaking power into their hands have given to labor has, at least, always been the protection that man gives to cattle. He protects them that he may use and eat them.—Henry George.

The Popular Science Monthly for September 1885, says that broken glass put into rat holes will exterminate the rats; that the glass cuts their feet, and at the smell of blood the other rats turn cannibals and devour the wounded ones.

Rejoicings Down South.
LEXINGTON, KY.—Mr. John T. Bruce, of the United States Revenue Collector's Office, informed an editor of the Daily Press, of this city, that for seven years he suffered terribly from rheumatism in his ankle, which most of the time was swollen to two or three times its natural size, and was so painful that he could not put his foot to the ground. After trying everything he could think of without obtaining relief, he at ten o'clock one morning applied St. Jacobs Oil and shortly afterwards made two further applications. At three o'clock that afternoon the pain was gone; the swelling also disappeared, and the cure was as permanent as it was quick.

According to the Free Press this is what commonly happens in Streator on the first day of the week:

Streator is a great town on Sunday. A Sunday does not pass but a big carousal is held in North Streator, and beer is purchased by wholesale. Yesterday was no exception, wagon load after wagon load of people driving up in that direction, and spending the entire day in consuming and drinking and eating howling through the streets like maniacs. Last night was tired one wagon which contained several women. The men held the women in their embrace, and went up Main street horses on the run. Whether they were through Main street without being stopped by the police is not known, but when the outfit was first seen no policeman was in sight.

Cheer Up! Help is at Hand.
"I'm afraid I shall have to be taken to the hospital or to the poorhouse. I've been sick so long that my husband, good kind as he is, can't stand the worry any longer. I don't know what to do. My wife and mother. See what Parker's will do for you. Plenty of women as bad off as you are, have been rescued after being in the hospital for weeks. It will build you up during all ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is simple, pleasant and safe."

Lucy Powers, a beautiful young girl formerly of La Salle and left an orphan at an early age, went to the big city of Chicago a few years ago and for some time was a clerk in "The Fair." News has recently been sent to La Salle that the once light-hearted and handsome young girl is now in the woman's hospital in that city, on her death bed.

Don't Give Up Yet.
It doesn't follow that a patient will die because the doctors have "given him up," or that he will recover because they promise to "pull him through." It is never too late to try the great virtues of Parker's Tonic. Mr. Michael Guffoy, of Birmingham, N. Y., was cured of Rheumatism by it after ten years of unspasmodic suffering. Mr. R. W. Mosher, druggist, of same city, certifies that he has sold over a thousand bottles of Parker's Tonic through its reputation for this and other cures.

"A new Catholic church," says the Joliet Signal, "was dedicated at Bristol Station, Kendall county, last Thursday, by Archbishop Feehan, of Chicago. This is the first church ever dedicated by that denomination in Kendall county, and was erected by the efforts of the Rev. Lawrence B. Erhard, the talented and worthy young pastor of the church at Somanauk, Ill., who has rendered himself famous as a church builder, having erected three since his ordination as priest. Father Erhard is a native of Joliet, where his parents, brothers and sisters and other relatives reside."

Harry A. Whitman furnishes the following, to swell the long list of similar testimonials: "I am undersigned, a resident of Fort Wayne, Ind., having been afflicted with fever and ague and chronic diarrhoea, was told to try Mishler's Herb Bitters. I followed the advice and have the satisfaction to state they effected a cure. I was induced to give this certificate for the benefit of others similarly situated."

Like Gen. Grant, the first Napoleon died of cancer. In his case the cancer was in the stomach instead of the throat. It caused him much severe pain than Grant suffered. Toward the last he could not digest his food. He was tormented by a constant thirst. His pulse beat with a feverish quickness. He improved, grew worse, and with all the hope, depression and despair, that marked Grant's illness. Unlike the American soldier, he did not retain his mental faculties to the last. The circumstances were different. Napoleon was a vanquished man, a prisoner, deserted by his wife, and surrounded only by the members of his military family. His last words referred to his son and the army. Grant not only suffered less, but his last hours were brightened by a thousand loving words and tributes from wife and children, old army comrades, his former foes, and the most distinguished men of the world.

Mistaken for Consumption.
Persons have doctored for years for consumption, all to no effect. Though they had a cough, felt pains in the lungs, were depressed, weak, with many other symptoms tending to that disease, yet their symptoms were all offspring of a torpid and diseased liver. We could fill a volume with testimonials of thousands so afflicted who were permanently cured by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator.

Arthur Nettleton was tried at Dixon last week and sentenced to 12 years in the penitentiary. On June 23rd last he was shot and killed Clarence White as Paw Paw, who, together with a crowd of young men were charivaring Nettleton's sister who had fled off the premises, but continuing the racket in the road, Nettleton fired upon them, killing White and severely wounding another.

An Answer Wanted.
Can any one bring us a case of kidney or liver complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure? We say they can not, as thousands of cases already permanently cured and who are daily recommending Electric Bitters will prove. Bright's disease, diabetes, weak back, or any urinary complaint quickly cured. They purify the blood, regulate the bowels, and act directly on the diseased parts. Every bottle guaranteed.

Wednesday night of last week Miss Julie Ames, of Streator, made her debut before a home audience as a reader, and recited "Virginia." The fair debutante was assisted by Miss Mamma Woods, Miss B. Kennard and Prof. Walter C. Lyman. Plumb's opera house was packed to witness the entertainment, and Miss Ames completely captured her audience by the admirable rendition of her selections.

When Baby was sick, we gave her CASTORIA. When she was a Child, she cried for CASTORIA. When she became Miss, she clung to CASTORIA. When she had Children, she gave them CASTORIA.
