THEY OWN THE WORLD.

I think there are some maxims under the sun. Scarcely worth preservation; But here, boys, is one.

If you want to have riches, And want to have friends, Don't mind the means down.

Don't just sit and pray For increase of your store, But work—who will help more.

To be out of the woods, You must make your ground mellow, And put in the seeds.

There's no use of saying, What will be will be; Once try it, lack-brain,

I've known too, a good many, Who have his own way.

A good many workers I've known in my time— Some builders of houses,

Some builders of rhyme; And some that were prospered, Were paid for their rhyme.

By the intent and meaning of His own own rhyme.

I've known too, a good many, Who have his own way.

A right way indeed! A thousand times, No! 'Tis his, and his only, Who has his own way!

Currency. EDITOR HERALD:—The San Francisco Bulletin of the 30th ult. says: "The recent events in New York show the wisdom of California in steadily retaining the metallic currency."

First, because the crisis was confined entirely to railroad rings, which were the community. Second, the government of the United States having inaugurated, and fostered these monopolies from their very beginning to the present, could not afford to stand aside and see all their favorite enterprises, together with their pet bankers, and operators engaged in common ruin, when they sought to present it.

The prompt action of President Grant, and Secretary Richardson, Boutwell and others. These great corporations were created by the party, and now the very existence of the party depends to a good extent upon the continuance, and success of these enterprises.

If the treasurer of the government had not come to the front promptly, every business man in the country would have felt the crisis severely. Third, the mercantile community of any country is never in danger while they conduct business as they do in California. They seldom extend any credit, and when they do, it is only for a short time—sixty or ninety days, and this little favor is generally repaid by a half or two per cent per month.

They buy the produce of the farmers at a great discount and sell it for a profit. No, the mercantile community of California are in no danger, and never will be so long as they and the bankers can keep out of competition. But the farmers, the very life of the country, will fail by the thousands. Better that we pass through a crisis every ten years than to starve in the premises to death.

There will never be any capital to invest in the products of the farm, so long as money can be loaned at 2 and 3 per cent, per month, unless they can invest at rates that will insure a larger profit. Money will never be invested in produce or in building up the manufacturing interest of a country where it can be loaned at 18 to 20 per cent, per annum.

If money can be had at 10 per cent, those who have it will invest in machinery, or speculate in grain, or new enterprises will be undertaken, which will develop the country.

We assert as a fact, that while we have one of the best farming countries under the sun, also a grazing and stock-raising country hardly equalled by any on the continent; yet, if it were not for the mining interests of California we would be bankrupt. About one hundred men control the purse-strings of the State, and the lighter they make financial matters the greater their gains. There is nothing they so much dread as a surplus of money in the country. That which would give great prosperity to everybody else, would diminish their dividends.

If currency was introduced into this State by an Act of the Legislature, millions would be brought here to invest in lands, in manufactures and in mines, which would at once give a probable market for all the products of the farm.

San Diego. Capt. Wilcox has gone to San Francisco. Captain McAlmond has made a contract to haul telegraph poles to Burke's station. It is proposed to have two good races, and several minor ones, on each day of the race week, and to offer daily about $300. Half the money has been raised.

The following named persons are the directors of the Bank of San Diego: G. F. Marston, Jas. A. Evans, E. W. Morse, J. M. Price, W. E. Robinson, T. L. Nesmith, C. Duiham, D. Cleveland, and G. W. Geddes.

The City Press and the Judgeships.

EDITOR HERALD:—I have read with interest your timely and temperate suggestions on the subject of the approaching Judicial election, and fully concur in your opinions as to the importance of a careful and discriminating judgment of the relative merits of candidates who aspire to the honor and dignity of the bench.

But, like yourself, Mr. Editor, I am a "new comer." I have, however, resided here a sufficient length of time to become a citizen, and availed myself of the privileges afforded to citizens by the elective franchise at the late election. I voted the "Independent Ticket."

The canvass was efficiently conducted on both sides, and voters were enabled to vote intelligently. But in the pending canvass for Judicial officers, I, for one, must confess that I scarcely know who to vote for. I hail from one of those grand old Middle States where the intelligent voter is accustomed to take counsel of the public press in all matters pertaining to public affairs.

There it is the invariable rule that a successful public journal must be an honest one, and the people are swift to discern the elements of trustworthiness, or the reverse of it, on the part of a newspaper editor. It is, perhaps, for this reason that the press is generally honest, and the people are willing to abide its counsels. It is a peculiarity of the human race that in migrating, people carry with them their distinctive characteristics and notions. I have brought mine along with me. I read the newspapers, and especially those of this city. It is seldom that an original idea or idea in any of them escapes my eye. I have watched with unflinching interest, and lately with impatience, the editorial columns of your contemporaries for a candid discussion (or any discussion at all) of the relative merits of the various candidates for Judges and Justices of the Peace, but they are as silent as the sphinx.

There are two candidates in the field for the office of District Judge, three for County Judge, and somewhere in the neighborhood of a baker's dozen who want to be Justices of the Peace. Are these men all equally competent and equally honest, so that we may not err in a choice of candidate on our ballots? I am afraid not, and yet I know but little about them. It is the boasted province of public journals to give direction and guidance to public sentiment. If the newspapers of this city have any claim to that honorable distinction they will no longer compel the unenlightened voter to grovel in the dark respecting the merits of candidates in the field, but will indicate the proper persons to be voted for and assign reasons for the faith there is in them.

It is now the "off-year" of the canvass, and those laborers in the public vineyard are still idle. I am of a somewhat religious turn of mind, and often when perplexed in my efforts to adapt causes to effects, I seek for a solution of the difficulty in the pages of holy writ. In coming, recently, to these teachings, I chanced upon the following text in the 6th and 7th verses of the 20th chapter of the Gospel according to St. Matthew: "And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found others standing idle, and said unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle? They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us."

I am in a quandry, Mr. Editor, as to whether this text has any application to your esteemed contemporaries of this city. Possibly it has not.
