Los Angeles and Santa Barbara.

Los Angeles has a hundred dollars of capital where Santa Barbara has a hundred cents. She has contiguous territory sufficient for a small State, bounded by three rivers, with soil capable of the highest and most perfect productions...

San Fernando.

For the past few days the papers in San Fernando have been troubled in spirit. In fact it is quite apparent that soon in that region there will be an editor or two a fit candidate for the insane asylum.

Now, in regard to San Fernando. One must really go abroad to learn the news. The first that Los Angeles heard of the projected narrow gauge, was in the San Diego papers, and in fact the only intimation has come through them.

HERE is a set of rules, taken from an English writer, containing the main precepts which should guide all journalists, and which are the heart-core of many, indeed of all, who are worthy of the name.

1. A journalist should write nothing which he does not believe to be true. 2. He should write only in journals of whose general character he approves.

3. He should agree with the journals to which he contributes upon the class of subjects on which he writes.

The men who never break these rules will win their own self-respect, when their talents may not gain or merit public recognition.

The Los Angeles Herald publishes items from the Santa Barbara Times and Arizona Miner as special dispatches.—[Santa Barbara Times.]

If the news agent at Santa Barbara found such an unusual thing as news in the Times, and saw fit to telegraph it, that is not our funeral. Certainly we have not put one line in our telegraphic columns that did not come over the wires.

TO-DAY the Secretary of the Treasury commences the payment of silver coin, in sums of five dollars and under. These payments will continue, unless it seems evident the coin is hoarded.

Boys and Firearms.

In another column the details of the case of Gervasio Valencia are given. There is a moral attached to this case which all California ought to regard. A healthy little boy nine years of age, is lying mortally wounded in this city, at the hands of a companion. If his wounds do not prove mortal, at all events his eyesight is destroyed, his teeth are shot out, and the pellet in his brain will probably affect his reason.

A year ago San Francisco papers commented on the fact of boys carrying pistols and knives. It was shown that this practice was the rule rather than the exception. The fact admits of no denial, and the effects of it are that a race of hoodlum desperados is springing up in place of the generation of cultivated gentlemen who should mature from the educational advantages afforded them.

The Boston Globe, a staunch Radical journal, in referring to the numerous evidences of a design to make a raid on Congress with a view to securing monetary aid for the collapsed Northern Pacific railroad project, says that so far as practically all letters received from the Stanley expedition, which showed the worthless character of the larger portion of the lands over which this and the last year's surveys have been made, have been suppressed and kept from publication.

THE WORST OF IT.—Not the least distressing feature in the present collapse of railway securities is the active part which most of the so-called religious press has taken in pushing sales among confiding subscribers. Throughout the country to-day are thousands who, guided solely by the representations of these professedly spiritual advisers, have invested the savings of years in bonds which are now worth no more than the paper on which they are printed.

THE TARBANTULA IN KANSAS.—On Sunday last about 12 o'clock, while Mr. Valler, chief of the Quapaw Indians, living three miles south of Baxter, was going about his farm, he was bitten on the toe of one foot by a large tarantula. He immediately started for the house, but a short distance, and by the time he reached it the pain from the bite was so severe that he was unable to sit up, and threw himself across the bed.

PREPARING FOR STRANGERS.—Now that the new hotel of Mr. Ayres is nearly completed, and the Santa Clara refitted, and the Ventura has added a large number of pleasant rooms, and the Oak street house has been refitted and refurbished under the management of Mrs. Stebbins; we congratulate ourselves on being able to entertain quite a number of guests this winter, who may desire to remain a while with us.

This and That.

Eastern wool market still dull. Sixty-four millions of postal cards have been used in five months. The Indianapolis Exposition was a financial failure. Loss $88,000. Marshal Bazaine was taken alarmingly ill on Wednesday last while in court.

In Connecticut from 15,000 to 20,000 operatives and factory hands have been thrown out of employment. Government has resolved to pay out silver coin in lieu of greenbacks, and thus begin the work of resumption. The favor of the popular chestnut worm this season is said by an epicure to be a cross between a custard pie and a croton bug.

Several thousand creditors of Jay Cooke & Co. apply to the United States District Court to have the firm adjudicated as bankrupt. Ex-President Johnson, recently made a speech in Washington, in response to a serenade. It is able, and very bitter upon his ancient enemy, Grant.

Professor Goldwin Smith, of Cornell, agrees with President Eliot, of Harvard, that the effort to introduce female students into our colleges has practically failed. Henry Guy Carleton of San Francisco, has been appointed from civil life to the position of Second Lieutenant in the United States Army, and assigned to duty in Troop H, Eighth Cavalry, now stationed at Fort McKee, New Mexico. Lieutenant Carleton passed a severe examination with great credit.

A few days since, five geese, owned by a man living at Mormon Island, Cal., died from an unknown disease; and, on examining the gizzard of one grain gold sufficient to make a five dollar piece was found. The remaining four geese, it is said, almost the same amount of precious stuff. The gold was probably picked up by the fowls near some claims where the miners had been sluicing, and it is presumed that the quacksilver attached to it caused their death.

The man who answered an advertisement to the following effect, says his curiosity is satisfied. "If you would learn how to make home happy send a postage stamp and twenty-five cents to P. O. box, No.—Cincinnati." He did send the necessary cash, and soon received the answer: "If you are as big a fool as we think you must be for giving your money, you can make home happy by leaving it and going west yourself."—[Hearth and Home.]

The new railroad drawbridge, connecting Alameda and Oakland, was run into October 23d, says the Chronicle, by the Central Pacific tug-boat Valjeo and badly injured. The Valjeo had towed over a steamer and left it safely in the creek, and was behind time in returning, so the drawbridge was closed, it being train time. The tug was signaled, but did not stop until it reached the dolphins; it was too late, and the tug struck the south end of the draw, throwing it into the water. The wheels of the drawbridge are thrown off the foundation, the rim broken and the iron supports bent out of shape.

Jay Cooke has a genial manner, and does most of the talking when he has guests. He has never swerved from his strictly temperance principles, never tasting wine himself, nor offering it to others. He is a widower, with three children—two daughters and one son. The eldest daughter is the wife of Mr. Butler, the President of the National Life Insurance Company. Jay Cooke, Jr., is in the banking-house in Philadelphia. Mr. Cooke is revered by his friends, and has Bible classes for them, and while studying holy things with them, he is not unkind of their temporal wants.—[Washington Correspondence.]

An Ohio paper relates that about seventeen years ago a young boy, residing in Wood county, took a black cat skin from which the original tail of the cat had been removed, and the mink's tail nicely sewed on instead, and sold it to a certain buyer of furs, not many miles from Grand Rapids, for $1.25. It was done for a practical joke, but the boy kept the money, grew to be a prosperous business man, and joined the ranks of the millionaires unbraided him so much that a few days ago the ex-fur dealer received a note enclosing $3 70, principal and interest. The joke is now on the fur dealer, as he put the cat skin among a lot of mink skins and sold it for $3. As he can not identify the purchaser he proposes to contribute the money to some benevolent purpose.

Perhaps the funniest typographical error of modern times occurred in a recent number of the Denver News. What are we to think of an evangelist's alliance such as is here described? "A band of 300 clergymen are the frontier, and after a successful raid they will retreat to their reservation, carrying their scalps and plunder with them—to enjoy under the protection of a government post, a feast and a war dance, for which the pioneer citizens of Colorado furnish the scalps and the food." Comment on such a state of affairs is useless. (One would think so.) "No words can do the subject justice." Scarcely. But it is fair to presume that if the word "Cheyennes" had been substituted for the word "clergymen" in the first line of the above, the purposes of the author would have been better realized.

Latest Brevities.

The Jesuits leave Rome Nov. 2d. Yellow fever is decreasing in Memphis. Allen has a majority of 817 for Governor of Ohio.

The defense in the Tichborne case closed on Monday. A bankruptcy suit has been commenced against Jay Cooke & Co. The village of Conestoga, N. Y., was almost entirely destroyed by fire last Sunday.

Julian Perault sues the Kossuth Mining Company for $90,000 as a third interest. The case of Capt. Clarke of the Sunrise atrocities went to the jury yesterday. A ready verdict of guilty will be brought in.

A portion of China Basin, San Francisco, has been granted to H. G. Booth & Co., for ship building. The San Diego World alludes politely to Los Angeles wines as stomach-distemperring slops, and invents a story about them. The writer should be lynched.

Eight inches of snow has fallen in the western part of Wyoming and Utah. The first snow of the season at Omaha Friday was several hours late, having been detained by snow.

PACIFIC COAST TELEGRAMS.

EXCLUSIVELY TO THE HERALD.

SAN FRANCISCO.

Table with columns for Stock, Following are the transactions at the Morning Board, and various stock prices like Ophir, Gould & Curry, etc.

SAN DIEGO.

Arrived, the schooner Big River, Capt. Anderson, loaded with lumber. The Board of Supervisors met again to-day and canvassed the recent vote. There is little variation from published returns. District Attorney McNealy, who was elected Judge of this District, resigned to-day. The Attorney elect, A. B. Hotchkiss, was appointed to fill the vacancy.

The Great Tichborne Case.

The Home News, the English newspaper for America, India and Australia, has the following about the world-wide "Tichborne Case." It is so important that its progress is telegraphed here. Last evening's Express chronicled the final examination of witnesses: Some novelty of incident marked the reopening of the Tichborne case. The editor of a country newspaper was sentenced to a fine of £150 for writing an article affirming that the defendant had been proved not to be Orton. But higher game was flown at on the other side, and Dr. Kenealy delivered a savage philippic against the Times' law report, which he declared to be habitually summarized in a way deliberately calculated to destroy the value of the evidence for the defendant.

Dr. Kenealy blazed away, using big words and making a great deal of a flaming speech, which the Times next day unkindly said had probably been prepared to please those who would no longer be allowed to see the defendant at meetings and pigeon shootings. But the Court, allowing that it had, then spoke back, adroitly with the question, and not having any proof that since his hint to the press anything that could be complained of had been done, declined to interfere, and signified to Mr. Finlaison, the reporter, (who was particularly desirous of castigating Dr. Kenealy), that he had no locus standi.

The Times asserts that such a summary as it gives is necessary for the comprehension of the case, but wishes that the "whole miserable business" were over. It will not be over before Christmas at the present rate of progress. Miss Kenealy, who had a smart encounter with Mr. Hawkins, has been examined, as have a lot of ex-Carabancers, sober and otherwise. The rabble who crowd at Westminster to cheer the defendant and his advocate now behave so atrociously, that the police are obliged to disperse them, and a batch of seven were arrested. Six were let off on recognisances, but one was sent to goal for a month's hard labor. Mr. Whalley has returned, and has begun to clamor in the papers, but with "bated breath," as the Court is not inclined to permit any more liberties.

An Unexpected Swim.

The San Diego World has an account of an unexpected swim, as follows: What might have been a fatal but what proved to be an amusing incident attended the landing of the Mohongo yesterday. McKenzie, of the National Hotel, was on hand to solicit patrons. As the vessel was backing, McKenzie thought he saw a chance for leaping onto the steamer. Full of the idea the early bird catches the worm he made a terrific plunge and just missed delivering himself on the Mohongo. He made, instead, a splendid "header" for the bay.

Fortunately the vessel was backing or that would have been the last of our enterprising hotel-keeper. On coming to the surface, he soon showed himself to be an excellent swimmer, and struck out for the braces which hold up the wharf. Here he encased himself, and Capt. Douglass soon threw over a rope by which McKenzie brought himself, hand over hand, to fasten on to the wharf. He thinks he will wait a little next time.

He immediately started for the house, but a short distance, and by the time he reached it the pain from the bite was so severe that he was unable to sit up, and threw himself across the bed.
