

Los Angeles Herald.
CITY AND COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
FRIDAY, SEPT. 11, 1874.
CALIFORNIA was admitted into the Union on the 9th of September 1850. Now, was the 9th instant the twenty-fifth anniversary of the admission of our State into the circle of States? To make it such we must count the day of admission one of the anniversaries. It will be difficult to do this for the reason that the anniversary of an event does not arrive until one year after the occurrence of the event itself. The newspapers generally speak of the 9th instant as the 25th anniversary of California's admission into the Union, but it seems to us to be only the 24th anniversary.

Clairvoyance and Artesian Wells.
DR. FRANKLIN has shown us a letter from ABRAHAM JAMES, the gentleman under whose directions the great artesian well at Chicago was dug, in which he says he contemplates visiting Los Angeles county this Fall with a view of locating here. He will bring with him the most improved machinery for artesian well digging and a corps of experienced hands to work it. Mr. JAMES has been for a number of years engaged in well boring in the oil region of Pennsylvania, where he has been remarkably successful. It is proper to say that this gentleman is a believer in Spiritualism and it is through his clairvoyant powers that he discovers subterranean streams of water and oil. He claims that it was through this power that he discovered the source which supplies the exhaustless flow of water at Chicago. Mr. JAMES also proposes to bring out and locate a colony as soon as he has found a satisfactory spot on which to settle. He believes artesian wells may be struck in any part of this valley and regards himself as the person able to strike the flowing stream in every case.

Boys and Pistols.
Yesterday at noon a boy sixteen years of age shot himself, or was shot by his brother. It matters not who fired the fatal shot. No criminal act was intended or committed, and the boy is dead. He was a member of the High School of this city and was, we are told, something over the average good boy of Los Angeles. This boy lost his life through the too common habit among boys of carrying deadly weapons. We do not know that this habit can be broken up. We do not know that school teachers have the right, or would exercise it if they had, of searching the pockets of their pupils, but it seems almost a necessity that some such rule be enforced. The hills west of town are not safe for pedestrians after school hours. Nearly every school-boy carries a pistol, and the power of these pistols auction from the harmless six-bit range concern to the deadly Colt's six-shooter. A lady and gentleman walking along Bunker Hill Avenue a few evenings since were astonished by three pistol shots, and the whizzing of the balls over their heads. We are informed that this sort of thing is very common in that locality, and we would call the attention of the city authorities to the importance of an early discontinuance of the hoodlum custom.

Distinguished Arrivals.
Among the latest guests at the Pico House are WM. M. STEWART, one of the State of Nevada's United States Senators, and General BEALE, a wealthy resident of Southern California. General BEALE comes down from San Francisco to look after the proposed line of railroad which is shortly to be built between this city and the coast and no doubt on through to the Cerro Gordo mines. General BEALE is largely interested in land grants at Santa Monica and the proposition of the Los Angeles and Coast Railroad Company to build a road which shall touch the water at a point not calculated to enhance the value of the General's land, is what is just now attracting his attention. He may make it an object to that company to run their road through his land. The success or failure of this in the future, and will depend to a great extent upon the liberality of Messrs. BAKER and BEALE. The mission of STEWART is quite different. He comes as a friend and advocate of the Central Pacific Railroad Company. He has been the friend and supporter of this corporation since his election to the United States Senate. Senator STEWART of Nevada has never been known to oppose any scheme or proposition of the Central Pacific Railroad Company. In Washington he has been recognized as the pettifogger of that corporation, and no one supposes that he visits Los Angeles county for any other purpose than to advance the interests of that company. It may be that he will talk Panamint and Cerro Gordo mines, but we would advise the friends of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad or others favoring railroad schemes not down in the programme of the Central or Southern Pacific managers, to listen to what he has to say, yet say nothing of themselves—he is no friend to any railroad scheme of which LELAND STANFORD is not President.

Messrs. McCune & Garnett, noted Grangers, have sold seven hundred and fifty tons of wheat to I. Friedlander.

Cæsarism in America.
From Washington we learn that the political ball is again to be set rolling in the interest of the present Administration, and that the South is again to be overrun by armed troops, carpet-baggers and scalliwags. The edict has gone forth over the signature of the American CÆSAR. In 1860-5 the vexed question of slavery culminated in the breaking up of all harmony and fraternity among us as a people; the engendering of sectional hatreds; the initiation of deadly political strife; the withdrawal of several of the States from the Union, and the inauguration of civil war. The yawning sepulchres of five hundred thousand of our slaughtered fellow-men; the warning of the country from Maine to Louisiana with friendships, hopeless widows and orphans; the paralyzing of every branch of industry; the ruin of our trade and commerce; a debt of near three thousand millions of dollars; a broken Constitution, and a divided and demoralized people! That these were the legitimate results of our internecine struggle, truth and candor will not deny. We need not stop at this late day to inquire upon whose shoulders the great fault lies, but it may be profitable to ask ourselves if since that time we have done all in our power to retrieve our fortunes and to heal the wounds left bleeding at the final surrender on the banks of the Appomattox. One of the inseparable evils of war, and especially of civil war, is the demoralization of the people and the bringing to the surface the very worst elements of society. This remark is peculiarly applicable to our condition at the termination of this bloody war. At that time, with the exception, probably, of LINCOLN and SEWARD, we had scarcely a man who was not more or less imbued with Cæsarism—not a statesman of ability in whom the people placed confidence. Hence it is we see the high places of our government filled with second and third rate men, without a single element of statesmanship or true greatness. And the logical result is before us: a government without a national policy and without the confidence of the people, and consistent in only two things—the holding on to office and the squandering of the public revenues. With an ephemeral creation of blood and carnage at its head, whose highest ambition seems to be to eclipse every snob in the country in the elegance of his surroundings, the sumptuousness of his entertainments, the splendor of his equipages, and the dexterity with which he handles the ribbons, with cigar in mouth and four-in-hand—but little can be expected of the present government. But when shall the present government terminate? That is the question. We have all heard of the psalmist who played upon a harp of a thousand strings—the present government has but one. Upon this string it successfully played itself into power, and upon this string it has maintained itself in power down to the present hour, and it is now taking the same string for another and an indefinite lease of power. This string is a pretended fear of another uprising in the South, and the consequent necessity of our CÆSAR to meet the emergency. How preposterous! But will the people longer dance to this tune? For nine years, the people of the South, after yielding to the stern results of war, have patiently endeavored to accommodate themselves to the situation, and had the lamentable Lincoln lived, there is no question but that the South, long before this day, would have resumed her former position as a happy and prosperous people. But, unfortunately the government fell into the hands of the scum brought to the surface by the memorable struggle. Without merit of their own, expedients had to be resorted to, to hoodwink the people and maintain themselves in power; hence the Southern people have from time to time as the interest of their cases required, been subjected to indignities which would have exasperated any people on earth. The negro, without experience or preparation for the great change, was at once raised to the political place of the white man in effect, and absolute in the relative position of the two races. In this the South quietly acquiesced, but the Government, fearing the influence of the old master over the Negro, sent swarms of its paid adherents into the South—at the head of whom was a pious CÆSAR by the name of HOWARD, who has recently been whitewashed at Washington for having robbed both whites and blacks—to counteract this danger. Not satisfied with this, our CÆSAR took it into his head that the Negro was abridged in his social rights, and forthwith we have Ku-Klux Bills, Civil Rights Bills, and nameless other bills, ostensibly for the crushing of the pretended secession proclivities in the South, but really to bolster up Cæsarism at Washington. And now as the election approaches, we have from remote districts in the South, telegraphic dispatches with the startling headings, "The Turbulent South," "Distribution of troops in the disaffected regions!" "Call for protection in various quarters!" etc. etc., followed by the official announcements from Washington, "That Attorney-General Williams before leaving Washington last evening designated to the Secretary of War, the localities in which troops are most needed to suppress outbreaks. This list with the circular issued a day or two ago, was enclosed to Gen. McDOWELL, commanding the Department of the South; with instructions to so distribute his forces as to protect the localities designated." This is followed by a startling letter from CÆSAR himself to the Secretary of War, which will be (according to his official organs) "accepted as a harbinger of joy and peace to hundreds of thousands of law abiding citizens of the South." How very benevolent our CÆSAR has become; but some may ask why this joyous letter was not written years ago, and not left as a last political dodge to help our CÆSAR into the Presidential chair for a third term. And what is the tenor of this joyous letter? Why, in substance, he is now, as heretofore, sending armed troops to aid his cohorts to control the election in the coming contest—nothing more nor less. But read what the Washington organ of CÆSAR has to say on the subject: "It is the first step in the direction of a restoration of quiet and good order in that section, made necessary by the turbulence of the rebel element, who disgraced the Confederate arms during the war by the Port Pillow massacre, the murder and starving of defenseless prisoners, and which, since the war, has kept alive the feeling of sectional hatred through its Ku-Klux Klan, White Leagues and so-called Tax Unions. Unfortunately for the immediate protection of the class who have lately become victims of the disorder in the South, the Administration is unable to proceed to their direct relief, because the Constitution invests the power to do so in the State authorities; but, so far as it can be done without violating existing laws, and Constitutional requirements, the strong arm of the General Government will be brought to bear in their behalf. If these Southern murderers mean fight, they may rely upon that they will be accommodated; but it is to be hoped that the moral effect of the President's letter will serve to restore peace and quiet."

For nine years the South has lain prostrate under the exactions and machinations of this CÆSAR, and today "the first step in the direction of quiet and good order in that section has been taken!" Can the people be hoodwinked by such transparent pretexts for the perpetuation of an administration which has reflected so little credit upon us abroad and at home, has permitted a system of corruption and robbery to permeate every department until it stinks in the nostrils of every reflecting mind. If we do not mistake the signs of the times, the people will be fully roused on this subject, before the next Presidential election, when a tide of indignation will set in that will overwhelm these vandals—leaving nothing but their sad memories to remind us and coming generations that they ever marred or ruffled the tide of time.

The Literary Society.
The meeting of the Literary Society at Lawlor Institute this evening will be open to all interested. There being no society now in existence, all present will have an equal share in effecting an organization. Certainly no more favorable opportunity than this can be offered for establishing this much needed means of literary culture. There are none who cannot profit by the exercises of such a society, and the young, especially, can through its agency receive a culture not easily obtained in any other way. Many persons keep away because they are, as they say, past the age when such things prove of interest to them. If they would give up part of their time to such things, they would, by the encouragement of their presence, assist greatly in maintaining the interest until a living society would be assured. It would be greatly to be regretted if, after all the effort put forth in the present instance, nothing of worth should be accomplished. If every one interested in literary matters will simply think that a part of the responsibility depends on himself and attend the meeting this evening, such a result will not occur.

Accidental Shooting.
A Spaniard, whose name we are unable to learn, met with a very painful mishap yesterday on the San Fernando train. When about eight miles from the city, a coyote was seen near the track, and the Spaniard offered his pistol to conductor House to shoot it. In attempting to cock the pistol, Mr. House let the hammer slip and an explosion followed. The bullet from the pistol entered the left leg of the owner below the knee, ranging downward and breaking the arm bone. Mr. House brought the wounded man back to the city and called in Dr. Stanway, and assumed the expense of the necessary medical treatment. No blame attaches to Mr. House, who is proverbially careful and one of the most accommodating attaches of the railroad.

Dogs.
EDITOR HERALD: The vexed question, dogs: there are too many of them, and if there is no law by which those pests of day and night can be exterminated, then it is time that every person so annoyed should go quietly and resolutely to the work of killing as many as he or she can, with a revolver and a revolver, and in due time we may insure the safety and peace of our families.

A MOTHER.
The following predictions were made by Henry Clay in 1843: The agitation of the question of slavery in the free States will— First—Destroy all harmony; Second—Lead to division; Third—To poverty; Fourth—To war; Fifth—To the extermination of the black race; Sixth—To ultimate military despotism.
