TUESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 6.

RADICAL MEETING INTERRUPTED BY AN OFFICER OF THE FREEDMEN'S BUREAU—FOURTH WARD RADICALS.—A large meeting of the Republican Club of the Fourth Ward was held last night in Bethlehem Church, colored, on Columbus street, James Claggett, colored, the President, in the Chair, and Robert Darnell, colored, Secretary. The committee to whom was referred the resolution relating to the course to be pursued by the colored people with reference to riding on the cars of the Washington & Alexandria R.R., reported that the subject was one over which, at present, the colored people had no control, and they therefore asked to be discharged.

George Seaton and James Claggett, colored, delegates to the late Radical Convention in Richmond, then presented a report of the proceedings of that body, in which the course pursued by Messrs. Hunnicutt, Hawthurst and Tucker, was severely censured.

R. C. Armstrong offered a series of resolutions, recommending the call of another convention, to assemble in this city, for the purpose, in addition to the transaction of other important business, of nominating candidates to fill the offices soon to be vacant. He supported the adoption of his resolutions in a long speech, in which he denounced Gen. Schofield as hindering the reconstruction of the State from selfish motives, and in order to retain his position as commanding officer of this military district.

Col. Lee, who was present, at this point interrupted the speaker by saying: "Stop Mr. Armstrong! I do not, however, as an officer, command you to stop, but because, as a citizen, I cannot patiently listen to such false statements as you are making concerning the military commandant of this district; and if the meeting would like to hear my reasons for so interrupting Mr. Armstrong I will briefly give them." It, immediately, being resolved that Col. Lee should have the floor, that gentleman lucidly explained the provisions of the reconstruction law, the duties of the colored people under it, and what, up to this time, had been done towards carrying it into operation. He cautioned the colored people against listening to the false representations of designing office seekers, made for the sole purpose of embittering them against all classes of the community who did not favor their personal aggrandizement and advancement, and would not follow their lead.

George Seaton, colored, in a few remarks, endorsed what had been said by Col. Lee, and on a vote being taken, the resolutions were rejected by a large majority.

Mr. Armstrong again took the floor, but in the midst of his speech, a motion to adjourn was offered, and, almost unanimously adopted.

STREETS OF ALEXANDRIA.—Some weeks since an article in the National Intelligencer gave an account of a parade of Braddock's army down King street, Alexandria, observing at the same time that the streets of Alexandria were the first paved in the United States.—This is a mistake. When Braddock was here, in 1755, the town was not quite six years old. Boston, New York, and Philadelphia were one hundred years older at least.

In the year 1795, according to the oldest inhabitant, lately deceased, the first pavement was laid, beginning at Col. Hooe's, corner of Prince and Water streets, now the First National Bank, running thence to the corner of Prince and Fairfax, thence to corner of King and Fairfax, and thence to the corner of King and Royal streets.

The parade of the troops on King street must have been short indeed, as the limits of the town did not extend westwardly further than half the block between Royal and Pitt streets—nor eastwardly, it is nearly certain, than Fairfax street, the then bank of the river, which bank was afterwards dug down, and the cover between King and Princess streets filled up, as it is at present. In the year 1796, the remainder of the square round the market house was paved; that is from corner of King and Royal to corner of Royal and Cameron, to corner of Cameron and Fairfax, and back to corner of Fairfax and King streets.

The pavement on Prince street, where it was first begun more than seventy years ago, is better now than some of that done a few years ago, but paviers then were not so enlightened as they are now perhaps.

The expense incurred by the Corporation for paving the streets was at first met by funds from the sale of lottery tickets, of one of which the following is a copy:

SECOND-CLASS ALEXA. STREET LOTTERY. (Authorized by Act of Assembly, 1790. NUMBER.....) The possessor hereof shall be entitled to receive the prize that may be drawn against its number.

WASHINGTON ITEMS.—The second annual festival of the Washington Schuetzen Verein commenced yesterday. A procession was formed and marched past the President's House where President Johnson, standing on the portico, reviewed it. Among the incidents was the greeting Mr. Johnson received from the young ladies in the "Queen's" car. They almost literally covered him with bouquets and flowers. At the Park, where the festivities are held there were amusements of various kinds, target shooting, dancing, &c.

Mr. Robert Radcliffe who was run over by the Railroad cars on Sunday, had his arm amputated yesterday.
