

THE GAZETTE. FRIDAY EVENING, AUGUST 16.

BOILED WHEAT.—It is possibly not as well understood as it should be, among housekeepers, that a healthy and nutritive food may be prepared by boiling wheat to be eaten with milk or molasses, the former to be preferred when attainable. It is a first rate thing for children, while adults may use it to an advantage. Some have the wheat cracked in a mill before using, which is, perhaps, the preferable plan, but it will answer well without this preparation. A lady correspondent of the Ohio farmer says: "The wheat should be cracked in a mill. Take one quart and put it into half a pot of warm water, and let it stand upon the stove for several hours; then boil slowly and stir it occasionally till it becomes thick; put in a handful of salt. For children it can be used with milk. If left standing till cool, it is very nice to eat in slices, and use with cream and sugar or fry like mush. The last mentioned I prefer for general use, but it can be prepared in various ways."

If boiled whole the wheat should be allowed to soak in tepid water before boiling, that the grain may have a chance to soften and swell. When properly boiled, use with milk suitably seasoned with salt and pepper, and it will be found a nourishing, healthy and palatable dish.—Valley Farmer.

ENTERPRISE.—The Springfield Republican gives a sketch of the improvements going on at Chipocope Falls, a manufacturing village of Massachusetts, which should be an example. The manufacture of knitting and sewing machines is to be started, which will employ from sixty to one hundred men. Stevens & Co. have commenced making clippers and dividers, in addition to pistols. Belcher & Taylor are making meat-cutters, feed-cutters, and corn-shellers, in addition to the variety of agricultural implements they turn out, including sixty styles of ploughs. Mr. Belcher, too, has commenced the manufacture of a new curtain fixture and of an adjustable rolling window blind."
