The Eruption of Vesuvius.
[Naples (Nov. 20) Cor. London Times.]

As yet I have done scarcely more than note the fact of the eruption of Vesuvius, but so much has it increased since Wednesday last, and so marvellously beautiful is the spectacle, that it merits a more detailed report. Unlike those terrific displays which we have had at times, and which cease with one great effort, this is a lava eruption increasing ever in force and beauty, and promising a duration of some weeks, if not months. If so—and it is the opinion of those most experienced in these matters—all the world may see it as soon as the groundless fears as to the state of Naples have vanished. For the first one or two nights the mountain was modest even in its demonstrations—tongues of fire shot up to announce its internal agitation, and a thin stream of lava trickled down behind in the direction of Ottajano, which lies on the southeast side of Vesuvius. Some friends who went up there early gave a vague idea of the scene, and spoke of eight or ten new craters, being no more than so many fissures opened by the explosive force of the mountain, and which change in number and character from day to day. For the last two or three nights, however, the scene has been as grand as can well be conceived; but before giving details, let me describe the actual state and appearance of the mountain. Since December, 1861, it has been almost quiescent, with the exception of one or two sulky and uncertain puffs, and our clear blue atmosphere has ceased to be marked with the spiral columns of smoke. On the very summit has gaped the huge crater, measuring nearly 700 feet in circumference, around which even children might have played, being careful only to avoid certain sulphurous exhalations which were emitted at intervals. During the last two years a small cone has been formed by the matter gradually ejected from the sulphurous hole; we could scarcely see its head above the walls of the large crater, but within the last week, like some presumptuous stripping, it has shot up above its venerable parent, and this it is which has been fuming and sputtering and storming with all the arrogant impetuosity of youth, since last Wednesday. It has sent forth an immense quantity of lava, covering the surrounding crater into a lake of fire. At first, the high circling walls kept within bounds, but gradually it has risen and risen until it is now flowing down in several directions where the abrupt and irregular wall admits of a passage. The result has shown that it is lower in the direction of Ottajano, on the southeast, and those who do not care to make the ascent may have a glorious view of it from Sorrento. Still there is nothing like mounting to the top, so let us be off; yet better still, suppose it to have been done, and that last night, Giovanni Grollino was our guide, who by virtue of having accompanied Humboldt and many of the scientific and literary men of the age, expects his own name to be enrolled in literary annals. He is, however, a very safe and intelligent guide. There was no incident to mark until we got to the foot of the mountain when we heard the thunder of the mountain as if felt the shocks of an earthquake at every effort made to disgorge the liquid fire. Ascending by the usual road, we were compelled, on approaching the summit, to skirt a little round to the southeast, for two reasons—first, to get on the blind side of the wind, which might have brought down upon us an inconvenient shower of stones; and secondly, to obtain a better view of the main stream, which was fed not only by the great crater, but by another orifice opened outside, about twenty feet in diameter. From this spot the stream of living fire, full twenty to thirty feet in width, poured down to the bottom of the mountain rapidly, where it met with no obstacles, and where it did, struggling energetically until it carried everything before it. To the edge of the crater it was impossible to approach, the heat was scorching; and what would have been the consequence had the lava boiled over and come down upon us? It was difficult, therefore, to form any fair estimate of its size, but one might have supposed that it was more than 70 feet in diameter. It was not a moment, however, for figures when Nature was exhibiting her power in one of its grandest forms. There was a roar and a shock, and then shot forth flames and stones full 1,000 feet in height at intervals of from one to five seconds, according to the watch of one of the party; these tremendous convulsions were repeated, and then came the descending shower, composed of stones of various sizes, some certainly half a ton in weight, judging by the bulk. We could mark their red heat, eye as long as they retained their red heat, but on approaching the earth they blackened, and then the ear alone could tell what was spot and pitting had already acted as the same person who declared that the descent occupied five seconds—much in excess, I should imagine, of the actual time. Precipitation of course, was impossible in the excitement of such a scene, and if we say that one thousand feet was the height attained we shall not be wide of the mark. It was a nervous proximity to danger on which to stand, so the whole party soon decamped and got back to Naples shortly after midnight, awe-struck by a scene which never can be forgotten. Yet, without the fatigues of an ascent, any one can from the city enjoy a spectacle of marvellous beauty, only diminished in the proportion as compared with that which I have just described. There is no sound, but there are those everlasting flames, across the centre of which is sometimes drawn a swathe of dark clouds, giving to their summits the appearance of greater height, and the sky is glowing with a deep red color, and mighty stones, reduced by distance, are falling like myriads of stars on the summit of the mountain, the foot of which is wrapped in darkness. What a gorgeous scene, and how much more gorgeous it promises to be!

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.
Without making a useless harangue, I will say to my friends and the public that I am now prepared to supply all of their wants in the way of HEATING STOVES. It is time now to undertake to look for anything better than can be found in my store. I have something new in the way of HEATING STOVES, which cannot be surpassed in style, or beauty of design. To one and all I will say that whatever I sell I warrant to answer the purpose I sold it for. I therefore invite my country friends to call and examine my stock of COOKING and HEATING STOVES before purchasing elsewhere, confident that they will not go away displeased. I would also enumerate amongst my stock a fine lot of TIN WARE, of my own manufacture, and made by very experienced workmen; also, TINED SAREES, PRESERVING KETTLES, Fruit Cans, Fine Japanned and Platinized Ware and Chamber Sets, to which I would call the attention of the public. Coffee Urns, Tea Urns, Wash Basins, Children's Toys, and a fine lot of Block Tin Ware and other articles which are too numerous to mention. Every patron obtains a Watch by this arrangement, costing but $10, while it may be worth $1,000. No partiality shown.

We wish to inclose a copy of the above named Catalogue and Certificates, naming the articles, are placed in sealed envelopes, and will mix. Holders are entitled to the articles named on their certificate upon payment of ten Dollars, whether it be a Watch worth $1,000 or one worth $10. The return of any of our certificates of this year to the article named thereon upon payment, irrespective of its worth, and as no article valued less than $10 is named on any certificate, it will at once be seen that this is no lottery, but a straightforward legitimate transaction, which may be participated in even by the most cautious.

A single certificate will be sent by mail, post paid, upon receipt of 25 cents, five for $1, eleven for $2, thirty-three and elegant premium for $5, sixty-six and more valuable premium for $10, one hundred and most superb watch for $25. To Agents or those wishing employment, this is a rare opportunity. It is a legitimately conducted business, fully authorized by the Government, and open to the most careful scrutiny. Try us!
