LETTER FROM RICHMOND. [Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.] RICHMOND, April 4.—The Senate, to-day, passed the bill providing for a general election.

IN THE SUPREME COURT YESTERDAY, Mr. A. G. Riddle having moved the admission of A. A. Bradley, of Georgia, colored, to the bar of the Court, a committee was appointed to inquire into his moral fitness for the position.

Memorial services in respect to the memory of Major General George H. Thomas will be held in the hall of the House of Representatives at 7:30 o'clock this evening, at which brief addresses will be delivered by the Chief Justice, General Sherman, Senators Schurz, Warner, and others.

A bill has passed in the House of Representatives providing that the election for members of the Forty-third Congress shall be held on the second Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1872, and for subsequent Congresses on the same day in every second year thereafter.

Vinoent Collyer is now "ventilating" the late bombardment of a village in Alaska by the U. S. troops, and declares that it was cruel and unnecessary, and that the first cause of the troubles was the conduct of the troops.

Gen. Fitz John Porter makes a strong appeal for reopening his case, and alleges that he has important additional evidence to prove the injustice of the sentence of the Court Martial.

Both Houses of Congress have appointed committees to attend the funeral of the late Gen. Thomas.

The Senate is still debating what is called the Georgia bill, and it is not known when a vote will be taken.

The Maryland Legislature adjourned yesterday, sine die.

THE RICHMOND DIFFICULTY. RICHMOND, April 4.—General Canby has not yet furnished troops for ejecting Mayor Ellyson from the City Hall, and the U. S. Marshal is now summoning a larger civil posse to demand his surrender.

All is quiet to-night. The military have not interfered, nor does it seem they are likely to do so. Two Deputy Marshals went to Ellyson's headquarters this afternoon and went through the form of attempting to eject him and then retired.

How "PROTECTION" WORKS.—The speech in the House of Representatives, on the 12th ult., of Mr. F. Stone, Representative of the fifth congressional district of Maryland, (Prince George's) discusses the present protective tariff. Mr. Stone concedes the patriotism of such men as Henry Clay, who at a time when manufactures were in their infancy, believed that to foster them by bounties would create a home market which would in the end compensate the farmer by an increased demand for agricultural products, and that having been fostered and cared for in their infancy, they would no longer ask or obtain protection when once firmly established.

But the result has shown that their demands for protection are increased, and that the sole object of the present protective duty is to enable the manufacturer to add the amount of the duty to the price of the article. The whole number of persons engaged in active industries in the U. S. are distributed as follows: Agriculturists, 6,435,000; unskilled laborers, domestic servants and all distributors, 4,705,000; skilled mechanics, 1,000,000; manufacturers of cotton, 125,000; manufacturers of woollens, 90,000; manufacturers of iron, 115,000; manufacturers of boots and shoes, 180,333; manufacturers of paper, 25,000; fishermen and all other industries and pursuits, 194,667. Total number of persons engaged in active industry in the United States, 12,870,000.

Of this number three hundred and thirty thousand are employed in the "protected" industries of iron, cotton and woolen manufacture, while more than ten millions of working people depend for their daily bread upon the cultivation of the soil. To these people the great necessities of life next to food are cotton, woolen and iron; and yet this class of people are taxed upon every yard of cotton and woolen worn by them, and upon every plow, hoe and chain used by them, in some cases one hundred per cent, for the benefit of a small, but thrifty, proportion of the industrial population of the country. To make the statement in another manner, it has been estimated that the whole population of the U. S. is now about forty million, and that of these forty million about two million are interested in manufactures. Thus nineteen-twentieths of the people are taxed for the benefit of the one remaining twentieth.

Mr. Stone next examined the special bill now before Congress, and contends that it contains almost all the elements of injustice that any tariff bill ever did contain.

in their way, for it has been remarked that, canvasbacks, terrapins, champagne and oysters have been scarcer, this winter, in Richmond, than at any previous session of the Legislature, and while lobbyists have been numerous, we do not think that any extra dinner or supper or his influence for a glass of sparkling wine—he may keep on eating. The absence of these little attentions was brought to the attention of "capitalists" and others, the other day in the Senate, by the representative of the Fredericksburg district, in a speech which did not credit to his head and stomach, and which was published in the papers, but it had no more effect than it never uttered! The London Times on the proposed reconsideration of the decision of the Supreme Court, recently rendered in the matter of the constitutionality of legal tenders, strongly hopes that the view of the Chief Justice will be sustained.

It is now tolerably certain that the solution of the question for the submission of the new order of things in France to the vote of the people will be deferred for a time. The misunderstanding between the Ministry and the Chambers on this subject will therefore be continued.

RAILROADS AND BALTIMORE, AND B. & O. R. R.—I believe that all railroads are "grasping monopolies," in a certain sense—particularly by the B. & O. Railroad, and that all cities strive to obtain and increase their prosperity by all means in their power, particularly Baltimore. I believe, as I am told, long ago proposed, that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad had about as much to do with the separation of West Virginia from Virginia as it had to do with Col. Baker's raid upon the Pagan Indians. Indeed, but for the facilities furnished by that road, the separation would have been attempted years ago.

I believe many other things not now needful to mention—but there are some obstacles to my thoughts which I can not get under nor over nor around, and of these are the following: I am a resident in the Baltimore Sun, which I respectfully request you to republish. I know there has been too much talk about railroads but I will add this one more.

A VIRGINIAN. "The recent action of Baltimore in replying favorably to the appeal of General Lee and others for assistance in the establishment of the Valley railroad and the indication of its willingness to endorse the bonds of the Lynchburg and Danville railroad to the amount of $750,000, seem to be the best way for a fresh outbreak in some quarters, of anathema against Baltimore. It can scarcely be pretended that an enterprise which has so commended itself to General Lee and other prominent Virginians as to bring them to this city in quest of aid can, be of a character that it is inconsistent with Virginia patriotism to support. The residence of General Lee in the Valley has enabled him to ascertain the remarkable resources of that region. Perhaps its equally remarkable absence of railroad facilities was a subject of not very agreeable contemplation to him during the war. Why should Baltimore be blamed for contributing capital to those Virginia enterprises which desire her aid, any more than northern cities which do the same? If we go in, in the first place, to help to repair and repair railroads in Virginia, which have been broken down, such for example, as the Orange and Alexandria and Manassas railroad, and in the second place, in building others, such as the proposed Valley railroad, why not accept the aid as graciously as from New York, especially when we ask no bonus, nor require Virginia to give up her own interests, as New York does? Vide, the Chesapeake and Ohio road. Our own State would and does invest capital in aid of railroad enterprises, and is glad to get it. She has always given charters freely, and it is now proposed to pass a general railroad law, though her custom would almost make such law unnecessary. The spirit of railroad rivalry in Virginia should not be permitted to warp the judgments of any party. It must be borne in mind that the great bulk of the tonnage transported over all the railroads of Virginia goes North. Why, then, do we object to other roads that Baltimore, may derive benefit from them? May not Baltimore, the chief city of a Southern State, be as properly permitted to benefit by Southern trade as New York, Philadelphia or Boston? Is such a section as the Valley of Virginia, with its immense agricultural wealth, to be denied the privilege of trading with any market which it may consider, the best? The following is from an article in the Richmond Equivoc: Philadelphia, Boston and New York may draw any proportion of our trade, through steamship companies, without complaint, but extraordinary facilities are to be made to prevent Baltimore from getting any part of our trade that must go north of us. The steamship line may draw off to Northern cities a majority of our tonnage transported over Southern lines, and no complaint is made, but it is one-fifth of that transported on the North-side line is drawn to Baltimore a great clamor is raised. Consignments even to Baltimore may be made by water transportation from our principal cities and nothing saved to the local trade. Yet a clamor is to be made if a portion of what is consigned to the North goes to Baltimore. Is Baltimore less entitled to favor in Virginia than Boston, or Philadelphia, or New York?

Why should we care that Baltimore shall be beaten by Boston, or New York or Philadelphia in the competition for what the Virginia cities do not want?
