Letter from Westmoreland Co.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]

WESTMORELAND CO., VA., Jan. 28th, 1871.—Until a few months past the courts of our county had enjoyed for several years a remarkable exemption from the record of criminal proceedings. Grand Juries had well nigh lost their occupation except to make an occasional presentment against some delinquent Road Surveyor or too indulgent liquor dealer, and the position of a squire except to charge and foreclose Grand Juries as to their duties under the law, and under the law also to charge the Commonwealth as to its duties to him in the way of allowance for public services.

But this happy exemption has ceased. The January term of our county court, beginning on Monday last and continuing three days, was almost wholly occupied in the trial of criminal cases. Three separate indictments were found by the Grand Jury against James White and Henry Woodhouse; one for assault with intent to kill Wm. H. Donahaw at his store at Tucker's Hill in this county on the night of the 26th of December last, and two for larceny committed at the same time, of the goods of said Donahaw and of Matthew D. Gregory, the latter at the Hague. Upon these indictments the prisoners, White and Woodhouse, were arraigned and tried—Robert Mayo, Sr., representing the Commonwealth, and Wm. M. Walker, at the request of the court, appearing for the defence. The evidence was positive and conclusive against White, and that against Woodhouse by the same witnesses was so strong circumstantially as to leave no doubt of his guilt as a principal in the second degree, and upon the first indictment they were both found guilty, and their term of imprisonment in the Penitentiary fixed by the jury at eighteen years.

Mr. Walker entered a motion for a new trial as to Woodhouse. The court overruled the motion, and counsel gave notice that he would prepare a bill of exceptions. But this was subsequently abandoned.

Upon the second indictment White was found guilty and another term of ten years in the Penitentiary added to the measure of his punishment. Prosecution against Woodhouse in this case was withdrawn. Upon the third charge both were convicted and their terms in the Penitentiary fixed at eight and six years respectively, giving White the long term of thirty-six years, and Woodhouse the comparatively short term of twenty-four years at Richmond.

Bryant and Mason, who were confederates of White and Woodhouse, and whose escape from Richmond county jail I mentioned in my last letter, are still at large. A reward for their arrest has been offered by the Governor. I understand, Mr. Donahaw, the old gentleman whose store was robbed and whom these villains at the same time attempted to kill, has nearly recovered from his wounds, and was able to appear at court in evidence against them.

The question of claim to the office of Commonwealth's Attorney for this county, so long pending between Messrs. Brownlee and Walker, has been disposed of at this court. Judge Lewis decided that Brownlee, being a non-resident at the time of his election, is ineligible, and that Walker is not entitled to the position under the plea of having received the next highest number of votes. Mr. Robert M. Mayo, the present incumbent of the office, holds over until a successor is elected and qualified.

Mr. John W. Harvey was appointed clerk of the courts of this county to fill the vacancy occasioned by the failure of Lewis Porter, clerk elect, to qualify at the last term. J. Warren Hutt and Wm. S. McKenney qualified as his deputies.

It will be gratifying to the many friends of Mr. Lawrence Washington to learn that he is recovering from the severe, and at the time thought to be fatal, injuries received in a fall from his buggy more than a month ago. Considering the extreme age of Mr. W., his recovery is remarkable as well as gratifying.

Mr. David B. Taylor, one of our oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, died last week at his residence near Kinsale.

Letter from Loudoun County.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]

LEESBURG, VA., Feb. 3, 1871.—Yesterday seems to have been the last of a series of days of very disagreeable weather, but having one redeeming quality about it, namely, that it was milder than its fellows.

There was no glimpse of sun shine from rising till setting, and our ground hog could not, by any means, have been frightened at his shadow. To-day (it is not yet sunrise) promises to open beautifully with a fresh, fair weather, bracing feeling that is quite exhilarating after the murky turns of fog and slush we have had.

I understand cattle are doing very well, weather, in the main, having been such as to cause them to eat everything set before them almost without question as to its quality, quantity being the main inquiry among them.

Before the late snow the ground was said to have been in excellent order, and a good deal of ploughing was done in the month of January. [Think that of ye denizens of the frost bound regions of New Hampshire, and leave your four feet inches of frost, and come to our genial climate.]

Our public schools are all open; colored children of both sexes attend one school at the Bayley Institute, and I understand that 69 presented themselves the first day. Mr. J. W. Wood had fifty white boys and Miss Lizzie Birkly 25 white girls. I am not sure, but I believe the size of the school for one teacher is limited to fifty scholars.

I have been surprised at the good reading of the colored children. I have 14 on my class list at Sunday School, ranging from 9 to 15 years of age; and all of them read intelligibly, and I think, intelligently. They (referring back one sentence) will stop and read all handbills posted up, and it is amusing to hear them staggered at the big words, which occasionally occur in them, one however, helping another at a pinch. Learning is a new thing to them and they do it with a zest.

Our town is likely to be improved considerably this Spring by the opening of new streets, and the widening of others. I believe it is contemplated to have a sort of boundary avenue, but probably 120 feet inside of the boundary line, so as to give taxable basis inside of the corporate limits, and not improve property outside by giving it without cost the means of ingress and egress.

The Board of Supervisors completed the county levies to-day, including $15,000 for roads and bridges. The State tax is 50 cents, on $100, the county levy on this is 21-10/100 or 2-10/100, on $100, our school tax is 5 cts. Total $10, in all 4-2-10, or not quite 12 per cent for State, county and municipal taxes. Not so badly off as some municipal London has a pretty good farm for the poor worth $8,000, and bonds at interest $10,000. Poor fund equivalent to $18,000, so that our taxes are probably lighter than those of almost any county in the State. ALIQUIS.

Letter from Fairfax County.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]

FAIRFAX CO. H., Feb. 4, 1871.—The Assessors for this county having just finished their work, I give you below the result of their labors, which may interest some of your readers, viz:

Table with columns: Township, Acres, Value. Includes Falls Church, Providence, Lec., Dranesville, Mt. Vernon, Centreville.

254,874 $4,978,542 being an average of about $19.50 per acre. In addition to this our "town lots" are as follows, viz:

Table with columns: Buildings, Lots and Buildings. Values: $80,450, $114,800.

The above estimate takes no account of the fractional parts of either the acres or the price.

THE OVERFLOW OF THE TIBER.—Some incidents of the recent inundation are thus related in a private letter from Rome, published by the Albany Journal:

From the back windows can be seen a steamboat nicely balanced on a stone wall, where the water level is. It will be necessary to tear down the wall in order to launch it again. They told us of a man who built a raft of a large barrel and a few boards and started bravely out; but unfortunately, just as he reached the middle of the street, the boards parted and left him endeavoring to keep his balance in the barrel, which position he maintained until some soldiers came in a boat to his relief. The English banker who I imagine from this circumstance, must be more enterprising than most men, went every day to the bank in his tin bath tub. He said it floated very well, but being round and flat-bottomed, was rather difficult to manage.

One of the most amusing sights was the rats sailing along on little pieces of board, with their fore feet held up as if they were praying. I saw only one of these, but a friend told me he saw eight in one group. It is very sad now to pass along the streets and see the shopkeepers searching in the mud as it is swept from their stores, in the hope of finding some small articles which have been carried out of their places by the water. In one jewelry store, I saw them throwing the mud into sieves, and as they sifted it, adding fresh water. When they finished the bottom of the sieve was covered with pieces of jewelry, so you can see how many things were not only damaged by the water, but actually lost. The whole loss is estimated at five million francs, which, to the Romans, is almost as much as the same number of dollars to New York merchants.

SCENE IN COURT.—The Washington Sunday Herald tells of a singular breeze in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in that city, on Saturday. The chief justice (Judge Carter) read an opinion in the Farragut prize money case, and when he had done, Associate Judge Wylie expressed his views in dissent of the opinion of the court. The Herald says:

"The chief justice whitened with wrath, his lion locks shook with ire, and in a voice whose notes were pregnant with uncontrolable rage, he said, 'I am surprised at the dissenting opinion. The judge in the consultation room assented to my views; he has crept out of the hole into which he went.' &c. The audience, whose prophetic souls had drawn them to the spot, to witness, 'without money, without price,' this Saturday matinee, indulged in vociferous cackling. Judge Wylie rose with the dignity of an insulted man and judge, and said: 'I retire from the bench where to remain is to be insulted.' The chief justice was about to proceed with his lively picture of a 'consultation room,' when the quiet interference of his brother justices restrained him in a degree, and here the battle ended.

FAUQUIER COUNTY.—The Royal Arch Masons residing in and around Warrenton have re-organized the Chapter at this place, retaining its old and venerable title of "Warren Royal Arch Chapter," but changing its number from 5 to 32.

Mr. Kellis Finks, for many years a tenant on the farm of Mrs. Watt Smith, but more recently a resident of Culpeper county, was kicked by a horse one day during last week and died the following morning from the injury he sustained.

The Virginia Telegraph Company are pushing forward their work on the Manassas Railroad.

Lieut. Fannestock, a superior topographer in the employment of the Government, has volunteered to make and give to Fauquier County, without charge for his labor and skill, a map of the county, provided copies of all surveys in the possession of land owners and our County Court were furnished him.

THE BEDFORD HOMICIDE.—In the county court of Bedford on Wednesday the case of W. W. Johnson, indicted for the homicide of Dr. W. H. Roberts, was taken up, and the prisoner was arraigned and pleaded "not guilty."

Walter C. Douglass, who was indicted during the term as principal in the second degree, was also arraigned and pleaded not guilty. Mr. Douglass, through his counsel, asked to be admitted to bail which motion, after examining the witnesses, was granted, the testimony of the indictment was found, the court very readily granted the Liberty News, from which we copy the above, says it is proper to state, as an act of simple justice to Mr. Douglass, that the evidence tended in no manner to criminate him.

On motion of the accused, the court deeming that a fair and impartial trial could be more readily had before a tribunal distant from the place where the affair occurred, the case was removed to the county court of Roanoke to be tried.

THE LATE ROBT. MARTIN.—The death of Robt. Martin, of Fauquier, who was accidentally killed a few days ago, by being thrown from a sleigh, has been already mentioned. He was, during the war, one of the Black Horse Cavalry of Fauquier, and fought gallantly throughout the war. An article in the Warrenton Index says:—"From Mr. Manassas to Appomattox, on picket, on scout, in battles, wherever danger was, there was Robert Martin, ever in the van, ever winning the admiration of his comrades and the esteem of his officers by the exhibition of a courage that was almost reckless. Nor did his merit pass without recognition: He was elected Orderly Sergeant of the company; and in the Fall of 1863 a handsome rifle of improved pattern, was sent by an English gentleman to Captain Randolph, then commanding the company, with the request that he would present it to the bravest man and best soldier in his command. It was publicly awarded to Robert Martin."

THE DRYEST WINTER KNOWN.—The remarkable dryness of this winter has been a subject of general observation. We hear some planters expressing doubts whether the uplands are sufficiently moist for placing out of repair, are dry and hard as clay can be baked under even a summer sun—in this condition much resembling our clay road beds in September and October. This is unprecedented, at least within our memory.—Columbus (Ga.) Inquirer.

The ice on the upper Hudson river began to break up on Saturday.
