SINGULAR "ROBBERY."—From the Louisville, Ky., Journal.—A cottage on East Market street was the scene, night before last, of a most remarkable occurrence. If the history of the most noted burglaries the world over furnishes a parallel case, it must have happened in the days of knight-errantry, when the slipper of some troubadour's "lady-love," or a lock of her golden hair, was held in more esteem than the fabled wealth of the Orient.

This cottage consist of only three rooms, all on the first floor, occupied by a family of taste and refinement. On Saturday night last, the back room was occupied by two young ladies, daughters of the family, the father and mother sleeping in a room adjoining.

Some time during the night the room of the ladies was entered so noiselessly that nothing was known of the intrusion until next morning. The burglar left behind abundant traces of his identity, but nothing to indicate his identity. For entering the window he had brought into requisition a small ladder used as a frame-work for flower-pots, resting against the fence of the front yard, and about three feet high. Evidence was plain that he had carefully lifted the flower-pots placed them on the ground in such a manner as not to injure them, and then moved the ladder to the window sill until his purpose was effected.

The sash was raised, noiselessly, and the mid-night rover entered. There slept his beautiful victims, their wealth of flowing hair sweeping in rich profusion and immitable negligence over the snowy pillows. He approached the bedside, cautiously, gently, rolled down the covering until neck and shoulders lay bare—and then what?

Is it a murderer, bent on deed of blood? or an escaped maniac, possessed of an infatuation for drawing the glittering steel across swan-like throats? Happily neither. A few clicks of the scissors, making "less a sound than the dream of a sound," and all is over. Those flowing tresses, the "glory of a woman," as Holy Writ declares, are shorn closer than Sampson's beneath the faithful fingers of Delilah, taken off as close to the scalp as a barber might have done by daylight. Several articles of jewelry in the room were moved from their proper places, but none were taken away.

It is evident that whoever the intruder, he or she was only bent on getting possession of "the glory of the sex." The first intimation of the night's doings came from the young ladies, who awoke and found themselves the victims of this "taking off." The whole transaction is most mysterious.

HELIGOLAND.—A correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette writes: "I see the Heligoland question has turned up again, and a few words of description may not be without interest to your readers; for there is no place like it on the face of the earth. It is a tall red hill, rising straight out of the waters, with a sand-bank on one side. On the sand, and part of the way up the hill, is the town, and rather village. It was inhabited in former times by pirates and wreckers, but now they have degenerated into lodging-house keepers. Heligoland is the Margate of Hamburg. Thither stream the citizens of that rich city to gamble at roulette (not at least, they did when I was there), and to enjoy sea bathing. There is a regular season in the summer months, and sometimes many passengers that are brought in the steamer are obliged to sleep on board, and to go back again—the island being full. Every house probably takes in lodgers; but then there are not very many houses. The bathers resort to a neighboring sand-bank, a sister island, which the Governor, it will be remembered some time ago stocked with rabbits, which began eating up the grass that held the sandbank together, so that Heligolanders became furious and talked of shaking off the English yoke. However, the rabbits were all shot, and the islanders were pacified, and nothing more was said of their old Frisian Constitution. Their language is German, but they detest that nation more even than they do ourselves. They are not English, though they are English subjects, they are not German, though they speak German. They are Heligolanders, the noblest of created beings; all foreigners are skit, which in their homely dialect, means dirt. The top of the island hill is flat, and, as well as I can remember, about the size of the Green Park. There is a well-known story of a man from the Far West—and therefore accustomed to see land only on a large scale—who paid a visit to England.—When asked how he enjoyed himself, he replied very much, only he never went out at night for fear of falling off. In Heligoland there is really a danger of such an accident happening to any one who, from the force of habit, should continue to walk too long in any one direction.

CLAY'S MEMORY.—It is known that Mr. Clay was remarkable for his recollection of faces. A curious incident of this wonderful power is told of his visit to Jackson, Mississippi, in the year 18— . On his way the car stopped at Clinton for a few moments, when an eccentric, but strong minded old man, made his way up to him, exclaiming as he did so, "Don't introduce me, for I want to see if Mr. Clay will know me."

"Where did I know you?" said Mr. Clay.
"In Kentucky," answered the keen sighted, but one-eyed old man.

Mr. Clay struck his long, bony finger upon his forehead, as if in deep thought. "Have you lost that eye since I saw you, or had you lost it before?" inquired the man.
"Since," said the man.
"Then turn the sound side of your face to me, that I may get your profile."

Mr. Clay raised for a moment, his thoughts running back many years. "I have it," said he.
"Did you not give me a verdict as juror, at Frankfort, Ky., in the great case of the United States against Innis, twenty-one years ago?"
"I did! I did!" said the overjoyed old man.
"And is not your name," said Mr. Clay, "Hardwicke?"

"It is, it is," replied Dr. Hardwicke, bursting into tears. "Did I not tell you," he said to his friends, "that he knew me, though I have not seen him from that time to this? Great men never forget faces."

ELEGANT HAIR adds a charm to the plainest face; but when faded, features before agreeable lose their comeliness, and the whole expression is that of advancing age. This being a fact, it is not surprising that even injurious articles should have been prepared to supply the millions who wish to avoid premature gray hair. Under these circumstances it will scarcely be wondered at that NATTAN'S CRYSTAL DISCOVERY should have met with such extraordinary success.

It is the only preparation furnishing a safe and reliable restorer for the hair; absolutely free from all poisonous and deleterious matter and without sediment, and thousands above thousands have availed themselves of it, not simply because it restores the color of the hair, but because it supplies nourishment. It feeds the roots of the hair, so that where decayed it becomes vigorous and healthy again. From all sections of the country orders and testimonials are received daily, speaking in the highest terms of its qualities as the only preparation that ever gave entire satisfaction. Those who have used CRYSTAL DISCOVERY will not use anything else; but to those who have not tried this excellent article it is recommended that when they are again in want of something of the kind to give it a trial; you will be more than pleased; you will be delighted with it, and will never again be without it. Don't let your druggist, if he has not got CRYSTAL DISCOVERY persuade you to buy something else, or you will be disappointed; rather go where you can get it put up in large bottles, containing half as much more as any other in market and, consequently, much the cheapest. Price one dollar. For sale by WALK-FIELD & HALL, and druggists generally. ap 18-co&w

AMERICAN

Reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote conjugal happiness. Indeed, without these the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage, the prospect hourly darkens to the view, the mind becomes shrouded with despair, and the wife another is blighted with our own.

When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds that it has often happened that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability, can alone afford him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this heinous disease makes their appearance, such as pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the face, head and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity, till at last the pale of the mouth, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commiseration till death puts a period to his dreadful suffering, by sending him to that undiscovered country from whence no traveller returns.

It is a melancholy fact that thousands die victims to this terrible disease through falling into the hands of ignorant or unskillful PRETENDERS, who, by the use of that deadly Poison, Mercury, &c., destroy the constitution, and incapable of curing, keep the unhappy sufferer month after month taking their position, oblivious of the fact that the only way of being restored to a renewal of Life, Vigor and Happiness, in despair leave him with ruined health to sigh over his galling disappointment.
