SALE OF THE EMPRESS EUGENIE'S PERSONAL EFFECTS.—Paris correspondence London News.—In passing by the galleries of the Louvre, facing the quay, I heard the tinkle of a bell, and the voice of a choir inviting the public to come and buy what remained to be sold of the Empress Eugenie's personal effects.—Accepting the invitation, I entered the little court standing in the midst of the Imperial stables. Another bell-ringer was at the door of the manager where M. Buchon used to give the Imperial Prince riding lessons. It was occupied by old clothes-sellers of both sexes, curiosity dealers, a few friends of the fallen dynasty, whose faces I had often seen grouped around the throne of the Salle des Etats, some dirty students, a reporter of the Gaulois, attracted, like myself, by the noise of the bell; and a sprinkling of those antiquated gentlemen in white gaiters who pass their lives in hovering about the book-stalls on the parapet of the Quay Voltaire, and crossing and recrossing the Pont des Arts. The auctioneer was a self-sufficient sort of commonplace bourgeois. He hid his best to be jeweler at the expense of fallen greatness. Each article he seemed to think was worth its weight in gold, if only as a relic. The dresses, shoes, slaws, and mantles had been disposed of on a previous day; and it was now the turn of the underclothing and "intimate house linen" to be liquidated.—I'llow cases of fine cambric—so fine that one wonders how they supported elaborate embroideries and deep real lace borders—were hotly contested for by a "petite dame" of the Rue des Victoires and a party of buyers belonging, I should say, to the Quartier Breton. The little lady carried off a dozen. It "poses" one, she cried, titling as she spoke, to press the pillow on which an Imperial head rested. The epher E. happened to stand for her name, which she volunteered to tell one of the old friends of the fallen dynasty was Eulalie. As for the crown under it, no, no, she was just as worthy to wear it as any one else! The old friend was not loth to cultivate the acquaintance of the sparkling fair one. He assented to this proposition, and volunteered to hold a pillow-case, which the auctioneer had allowed her to take. The to-doing was endless. Bundle after bundle of fine Saxony damask napkins, all with the E, the crown, the eagle, the busy Carvingian bee, and a profusion of laurel wreaths, were handed round the vaulted room to be examined by bidders and then disposed of. Some breakfast table napery, the present of a king, now Emperor William's first feudatory, was bought by one of the former habitués of the Salle des Etats. He got it cheap. One of the old gentlemen, who happened to be deaf, was furious when he found that he might have had the lot at 130f. I do not know why the brokers and students were so joocise when an ink-garment was held up by two dainty little shooes, and the public asked to examine it, as a fair specimen of the large hale from which it was drawn at hazard. American modesty can not bring itself to name this garment any more than it can to speak of a shirt. If Paul de Cassagne were as good as his oft-repeated oath, he would have run his sword-cane through the profane auctioneer's showman who held the article in question up to be seen off at by the males and admired by the women. There were veignors and dressing-gowns, elderly furnished by Capon, the famous ladies' outfitter in the Rue de la Paix, and all wonderfully elegant but dusty and somewhat blue-moulded. The stockings of thread, silk, and Shetland wool were of gossamer lightness. An infinity of bath and toilet sponges were knocked down at a hundred francs. They were all of the best quality. The little lady said she would have been the purchaser if her something which had actually passed through the Empress's hands. As for the boots and slippers, they justified the encomiums passed by MM. Franc and Lesky in their report on Parisian shoemakers. Then there were, the ladies thought, delicious things in the way of petticoats, flannel blouses, robes de chambre, sorties de bain, and woolsen wraps. Some lady's robes, which, according to the salesman's legend, belonged to the Prince Imperial's layette, were bought by a Russian lady. A snuffy purchaser near me shook her head incredulously at those belongings of Imperial infancy. They were sumptuously gotten up she admitted, but nothing would convince her that they did not belong to some distressed bourgeois's layette, and were not palmed off by the auctioneer to enhance their price as having been worn by the Prince, at whose birth seventeen years ago, official France went into the most excessive demonstrations of delight that ever hailed the advent of a royal child on our planet.

EGYPT.—Ismail Paicha, the Khedive of Egypt is a Reformer. Think of town elections and Female Boarding Schools in the land of the Pharaohs and the Ptolemies! By a recent edict the Khedive has granted the right to elect their own municipal officers to all the towns and villages of Egypt. Every landholder is given the right to vote for the town council, which council is to apportion the quota of taxation allotted to their district. These councils are to elect members of the annual Parliament which meets every spring in Cairo.

This enterprising prince has extended his telegraph as far as Khartoum, at the Junction of the Blue and White Niles, 1200 miles from the Mediterranean. The rail now reaches to the town of Rhoda, on the banks of the Nile, 200 miles above Cairo, and the contracts are already made with John Fonlu, the great English engineer, to run a narrow-gauge road all the way to Soudan, resting at Khartoum.

The Khedive has also sent Sir Samuel Baker, at the head of two regiments of Egyptian troops, and thousands of camels and mules, into the interior of the African continent on a mission of conquest and exploration.

But the greatest innovation introduced by this enlightened monarch is his "Young Ladies' Seminary," to which the leading boys and puchas are ordered to send their daughters, whether they like it or not. The young ladies are to be taught without the veil, five hundred to graduate each year.—Richmond Enquirer.

ENCKE'S GREAT COMET is now on its way towards the perihelion, which it will reach in January next. This comet will be telescopically visible some months previously, but it is not an object of special interest to those whose vision is unaided by instruments. This comet is principally of interest because its period of revolution has diminished to about the extent of three days in the past eighty years.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

The symptoms of Liver Complaint are uncleanliness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general constive, sometimes alternating with laxity. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Often complaining of weakness, debility and low spirits. Sometimes many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the liver is generally the organ most involved. Cure the Liver with

THE FOLLOWING WILL BE READ WITH INTEREST:
Under date of April 26th, 1871, Dr. HENRY J. ROGERS, 68 Sharp street, Baltimore, an eminent physician, writes regarding

CRYSTAL DISCOVERY:
"It affords me much pleasure to bear testimony as to the efficacy of your Crystal Discovery. Some years since, while in India, I suffered from a severe fever peculiar to the country. On my recovering, a patch of hair on the left side of my head became perfectly white, without at all affecting the remainder. To remove this unsightly appearance, I had recourse to various preparations, both in Europe and in this country, but they all had one great defect—they dyed the hair black. Now, with your Crystal Discovery, I can get the desired shade—the natural color of my hair being dark brown. I consider your Discovery the best preparation I know of."
Yours truly,
HENRY J. ROGERS.

Now as the fact becomes more patent every day that the various dirty and filthy preparations advertised as Renewers, Restoratives, &c., are but compounds of Sugar of Lead and Sulphur, and therefore should be shunned by all who value their health, it is scarcely a matter of surprise that the demand for NATTAN'S CRYSTAL DISCOVERY, admitted to be perfectly harmless, and yet accomplish all, and more, than the poisonous articles claim to do, should have increased so rapidly. It restores the color and growth of the hair positively in a few days; strengthens the roots, makes an excellent dressing, soiling neither clothes nor scalp; but on the contrary it gives the scalp a pure and cleanly look, removing all dandruff and scurf. It is the most economical preparation in use. Put up in large bottles, at one dollar.
