

THE GAZETTE. FRIDAY EVENING, MARCH 6.

GENERAL SHERMAN.—The General is an odd genius, yet a great favorite with old and young. He is extravagantly fond of dancing, and some one wittily remarked: "He never steps lower than the back of a chair, or higher than the chandelier." He is thoroughly ungracious, but enters into the pastime with such real relish and earnest enjoyment that one can excuse his walking half way up one's train, or in the height of his delight carrying the greater portion of one's prettiest founce half way across the room, or in the lancers, for instance, persistently going the wrong way in the grand chain, thereby causing the most laughable confusion, and the entanglement of his lower proportions in the surrounding floating drapery of the ladies. His wife and daughters display propensities of round dancing, and he one day said to me: "I wish we had dancing at our house—I like to see young people skouting around."

DESTRUCTION OF SHEEP.—Saturday night James McCormick, living two miles from town, on the Millwood road, lost seven sheep—six outright, and one that will certainly die—by a visit from some of the hungry curs in the neighborhood. Mr. McCormick is a hard-working, industrious farmer, and of course this loss does not bear lightly upon him.—Clarke Courier.
