The Temperance Excitement in Columbus, Ohio.

The first open attempt to interfere with the lady temperance crusaders occurred yesterday. The ladies pursued the same plan as that adopted this morning, going in squads to separate parts of the city. One squad went to a hotel and beer saloon in West State street, kept by Louis Corradi, an Italian. They were followed by an immense crowd, who seemed bent on making sport of the proceedings. The barkeeper met the ladies at the door, and refused to sign the pledge. When the ladies began to sing some one in the hotel began playing "Shoo Fly" on an intensely able-bodied concert, and kept playing during the prayer which followed. The balcony of the house was filled with German men and women, who mocked those who prayed, and one man twice spat on the ladies beneath him.

The crowd in the street yelled and cheered, until Captain Keeler, Chief of Police, called for silence, and made a short speech, counseling respectful attention, and commanding order in the street. This had the desired effect, and the ladies moved to the next saloon, the concert in the hotel meanwhile playing "Home Sweet Home."

A most disgusting attempt at ridicule occurred just after the ladies left Corradi's place. Lawrence Amuller, a street commissioner, collected a crowd of male and female loafers, and held a mock prayer meeting, after which he invited the crowd in to drink.

While another squad were making their way on High street, they called at Theobald's saloon, and were met at the door by the proprietor, who told them that, in accordance with resolutions adopted by the Liquor Dealers' Association last night, he could not allow them to come beyond his steps. The ladies then knelt in prayer, during which time a wagon from Hester's brewery drove up, and the stalwart German driver shouldered a keg of beer and marched through the prayerful ranks into the saloon.

At this point of the proceedings an immense crowd of Germans, many of whom were women, set up a shouting and screaming, and assumed such a threatening attitude that the police advised the ladies to desist from further services at that point for fear of serious disturbances. This advice was taken, and the procession moved on to another point. Various other saloons were visited, but no pledges from the dealers were obtained. Each squad obtained some few signatures to the citizens' pledge.

An all-day prayer meeting was held at the First Presbyterian Church, and just at its close a number of signatures were obtained to the citizens' pledge.

James G. Bull, mayor of this city, signed the total abstinence pledge to-day. The ladies show no signs of growing weary of their work, and, in fact, are more strenuous in faith and numbers than heretofore.

AN INDIAN FEUD.—It seems our Indian war is not to be without its elements of romance. The friendly Pawnees, the legitimate descendants of the Delawares, are to be sent on the war-path against their ancient enemies, the Sioux, and they enter upon the war with alacrity, burning to avenge the wrongs of the past. A letter from Omaha, among other items of Indian news, furnishes the following:

All the troops along the railroad line at Fort Kearney and Fort McPherson, and from Fort Riley, have been hurried West. Stores are rapidly going forward, and a company of Pawnee scouts, under Major Frank North, a veteran Indian fighter, has been ordered to Fort Russell, near Cheyenne. These Pawnees, from Grand Island and vicinity, have inherited since 1810, or thereabouts, a hatred of the Sioux, which nothing can diminish or eradicate. They and the Sioux were friends and allies, but the Sioux, with characteristic treachery and cunning, invited all the Pawnee warriors to a grand feast, and while their unsuspecting guests were making merry, sent a detachment of savages that swooped on the land of the Pawnees, butchering the old men, squaws, and children who alone were left in the villages, and leaving the country of their quondam allies a waste of blood-stained ashes.

Here arose the great Pawnee-Sioux war of 1811, in which battles were fought that lasted for several days, wherein were engaged on each side thousands of warriors. Since then the war hatchet never has been buried between these tribes, and the Pawnees were called into the field to serve against the Sioux as wild with joy at the opportunity to avenge themselves on their adversaries for the massacre of the Pawnee buffalo hunters last summer by the Ogallala and Brule bands.

POPE'S CREEK, MD.—The terminus of the branch line of the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad, is called Pope's Creek, Potomac river, but the name is somewhat of a misnomer, inasmuch as the narrow and sluggish stream is some distance from the last rail, and is gradually becoming, through the accumulation of decayed vegetable matter and drift wood, a marsh. On the map it appears as Pope's Creek Landing, and before the late war a wharf and several warehouses made it a good shipping point. Only a few piles now stand out of the water, and the warehouses were burned by the Union soldiers. No house is now at Pope's Creek, and the place looks bleak and desolate. In keeping with its almost forsaken look is a great bank of oyster shells, ranging from ten to fifteen feet in depth, and deposited by Indians, as the best tradition goes, who had a large settlement upon the high bluffs overlooking the Potomac. Arrow heads, hatchets, and earthenware cooking utensils have been taken from this bank of shells, and proofs are abundant that the first owners of the soil had their rude arts. The Potomac river at this point is little over two miles in width, and the channel at the greatest depth is eighty feet.

FINE CIGARS.—We have recently added to our always large and superior assortment of CIGARS a few new and very choice brands, to which we invite the attention of smokers. Our "Sobrietas" at 5c, and "Philadelphia" at 10c each, cannot be excelled for the money. As we always make our purchases largely in excess of our immediate demands, our stock has the great advantage of slow drying on our shelves before being offered for sale.
