

ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 2.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mrs. Ann Eliza Young is in New York, prostrated with a nervous disease. We are indebted to a friend for a copy of the Glasgow, Scotland, Herald of a late date. "The Rising Daughters of Sepulchre" is the title of a colored female association in Jacksonville, Fla.

A Michigan stump speaker boldly announced the other day that "the country is drifting into anarchy."

A Frenchman professes to have discovered evidence in Pekin to prove that the Chinese discovered America in the sixth century.

The jury in the Jefferson Borden case yesterday rendered a verdict of murder against Miller and Smith, two of the mutineers.

In September 174 deeds were recorded in the Chancery Court of Richmond—about 100 less than usual at this season of the year.

The published statement of the public debt shows a decrease for the month of September of $3,342,562 61.

It is expected that the new constitution of North Carolina will forbid the intermarriage of whites and blacks.

The U. S. Consul at Cairo writes that the Egyptian Government is making active preparations for the representation of the products of that country in the Centennial.

An explosion of alcoholic vapors took place in a Louisville office yesterday, injuring four men, two of whom, it is feared, will not recover.

Colonel John M. Calhoun, Mayor of Atlanta, Ga., when that city was entered by Sherman, and of whom the demand for the city's surrender was made, is dead.

The report of the Comptroller of the Currency shows that the national bank currency outstanding to-day is $347,863,742, or $4,000,000 less than on January 14, 1875.

Laidlaw & Co., agents of the Bank of California in New York, state that they will pay all outstanding drafts of the Bank of California on and after to-day.

Dr. W. D. Quisenberry, of Caroline county, has been nominated for re-election to the State Senate by the Conservatives of Caroline and Hanover.

If a man stands in his own light he should not complain of seeing his shadow. Keep your face to the sunshine if you wish to avoid the shadows of life.

Mrs. Partington, who was every day prevented from going out by showers, said: "This promiscuously occurring rain is enough to irrigate an angel."

The value of lemons, oranges, pineapples, bananas, limes, mangoes and coconuts entered at New York, last month, were $262,876, upon which the duty amounted to $44,316.

Gov. Allen rather likes the title given him of "old fog born." He says it is used to give warning of danger, and then proceeds to show the dangers to be avoided.

The ages of certain Virginia newspapers are as follows: Virginia Herald, 82; Alexandria Gazette, 76; Richmond Enquirer, 69; Staunton Spectator, 52; Richmond Whig, 52.

The Lynchburg Republican notes signs of business revival, in consequence of the fact that the crops of corn and tobacco are the most bountiful that have been produced in the State for a number of years.

Emperor William of Germany is living a vigorous old age. He was in the saddle during the whole of both days of the recent Sedan anniversary, and galloped up and down the field at the head of his staff as briskly as ever.

The Republican papers are trying to bolster up the flagging spirits of the party in reference to the canvass in Ohio; but advises from that State, of the most reliable character, represent that Allen will be elected by a large majority.

Robert Fleury, the French artist, who is now in his eightieth year, is painting a work for the Centennial Exposition, illustrating the visit of Benjamin Franklin at the French court in the last days of his life.

On an island in the Mississippi river, near Davenport, Iowa, the remains of an aborigine were recently found in a cave. The person when living had worn a wooden leg, strapped on with leather straps and bronze buckles.

A sportsman complains that in shooting rail in the Delaware woods, cels seize and get away with the dead birds before they can be retrieved, and the Forrest and Stream says they will not only drag small birds under water, but even ducks.

The Kropatchek rifle, with which the Austrian army will probably be armed, fires fifteen shots in ten seconds, and has a mechanism with two short movements so simple that it can be set in motion even by fingers numbed with cold.

The enterprise of journalism is illustrated by the case of the editor of the Daily Index, published at Belvidere, Ill., who, being horse-whipped, got out an extra containing a full account of the affair, and sold papers enough to pay for the arnica and plasters.

THE SUICIDE OF MRS. BARRETT.—It now turns out that Mrs. Isabel Barrett, widow of Lieutenant Barrett, late of the United States Army, who took her own life on Tuesday night by swallowing poison at a boarding house in Elizabeth, was the daughter of a Virginia Episcopalian clergyman, but because of having first embraced Catholicity and then renounced it was subject to persecution by her family. It seems she was placed by her father in the Ursuline Convent at Georgetown, D. C. While there she became a convert to the Catholic religion. Subsequently she married the lieutenant, who died at Pensacola. Three years ago she renounced the catholic religion and joined the Congregational Church. For this step, as she told her boarding house keeper in Elizabeth, and for the legal squabble over certain property, she was subjected to annoyance that amounted to persecution. Finally, she heard that her relatives had had papers drawn up concerning her to the St. Joseph's Convent in New York. This, with her other troubles, drove her to commit suicide.—N. Y. Herald.

BLACK LEG.—We understand a disease called black leg has made its appearance among the cattle in the neighborhood of Brandy station, in this county.—Mrs. M. J. Wise having lost three very valuable calves from it. It is confined exclusively to calves, but is very fatal—killing them in ten or twelve hours from the appearance of the first symptoms.—Culpeper Observer.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

"To show the very age and body of the Times." The French claims against Spain for the murder of Reygoudeau in Cuba, by the Spanish troops, have been satisfactorily settled.

The standing committee of the diocese of Ohio have given their unanimous consent to the consecration of Dr. Molares, bishop elect of Illinois.

The Italian Government has ordered a frigate to proceed to La Union Bay, San Salvador, to enforce the claims of Italian subjects for damages growing out of the recent disturbances.

The British Commander at Gibraltar has formally complained to his Government of the aggressions of the Spanish Guardacostas in those waters.

The total disbursements of the Treasury for the month of September amounted to $16,737,060 93, exclusive of principal or interest on the public debt.

The funeral of the late Rev. Dr. Porteous took place in Brooklyn yesterday. His friends give no credence to the story of foul play, and will not demand an examination into his death.

It is said that the amount due by the United States Government under the treaty of Washington, on account of the Canadian fisheries, will amount to seven million dollars per annum.

Mr. Willard Carpenter, of Evansville, Ind., has given the sum of $500,000 for the purpose of endowing a great educational institution in that city, and will give $200,000 additional when it is established.

Some of the friends of the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher serenaded his house Thursday night. The reverend gentleman was not at home. His son told them to come and play again when the old man got back.

At Clearfield, Pa., yesterday, in the case of Sney and Parks, alleged conspirators in the Pennsylvania riots, the prosecution concluded their principle testimony, and Senator Carpenter opened for the defense.

The failure of Shepard, Hall & Co., lumber merchants, of Boston, is announced, with liabilities amounting to about $1,500,000. One million dollars of the paper of the firm is held in Boston, and about $300,000 in Montreal.

Clayton & Co.'s (of San Francisco) suspension will probably last only a few days, the creditors being disposed to grant an extension of time. Their assets are ample to cover the liabilities if payments are not pressed.

The Naval Examining and Retiring Board convened yesterday at the Navy Department, and a number of officers have reported for examination for promotion. The Board, during their recess, have been engaged in the revision of the Navy regulations.

Twenty-eight mills are now running at Fall River, and all show a large increase in the number of help, many coming from towns in Connecticut, Maine and New Hampshire. The difficulty is now virtually ended, although the police and military still remain on duty.

A serious riot, has occurred at Stockholm, Sweden, between the militia and the police. The militia stormed the police station and wounded a number of policemen. The disorder was only suppressed by ordering out the Life Guards and the Horse Guards.

The San Francisco Stock Board will reopen for business on Tuesday next. The Farmers' and Merchants' Bank of Los Angeles, which suspended at the same time as the Bank of California, resumed business yesterday, and Temple and Workman's Bank, of the same city, will probably reopen to-day.

CANAL BOATS AND DEMURRAGE.—A case of interest to canal boatmen was tried before Judge Thomas, Justice of the Peace, on Tuesday last. Capt. Samuel Lyneh, of the boat Samuel Swan, suid Gilmor Meredith & Co., consignees, for eight days' services of his boat, and, claiming that, by omission to unload his boat during that period, over and above the usual number of days required for discharging, the consignees became liable for the use of the boat, $25 a day, at $100 per judgment for $50, or for five days, at $100 per day, deducting three days for the time when the basin was impassable by reason of the flood.

Canal boats not being sea-going vessels, have never been able to claim "demurrage," as it is technically called; and boats have often been detained here, wilfully and capriciously, to the great hardship and loss of the boatmen. The latter determined to ascertain whether they were to be subjected to this treatment any longer; and the result is found in the above suit, which was made a test case. The news of this decision will give much gratification to the large class who are engaged in transporting coal on the C. & O. canal.

The law governing the case was fully prepared and considered, and the decision is, in our judgment, a righteous one.—Georgetown Courier.

DISINTERMENT OF THE REMAINS OF POE.—The Baltimore American says: On Wednesday the work of preparation for the new monument to be erected over the grave of the lamented poet, Edgar Allan Poe, was begun. In order to prepare a suitable foundation, it was found necessary to remove the remains from where they lay to the neighboring grave of Mrs. Clemm, the mother of Poe's first wife, and the disinterment took place late in the afternoon. The grave, without a distinguishing mark beyond the green mound, stands in the southeastern portion of the old Westminster graveyard, at the corner of Greene and Fayette streets, and has probably been the most neglected of any within the enclosure. The laborers employed to perform the task, upon digging to a depth of about five feet, discovered the coffin in a state of good preservation, after having laid in its place nearly twenty-six years. The lid was removed and the remains curiously examined by the present. There, before their gaze, was extended the skeleton, almost in perfect condition, and lying with the long bones of the hand upon the other, as they had been arranged in death. The skull bore marks of greater decay, the teeth from the upper jaw having become dislodged, but those in the lower were all in place, and some little hair was still clinging near the forehead. Beyond what has been described nothing was to be seen, and it was an impressive commentary on the fact that in these few last crumbling bones existed all that was mortal of one of the brightest of God's creatures. The coffin was enclosed in another and reinterred.

PRINCE WILLIAM COUNTY ITEMS.—Mr. Jas. Davis, who is employed on the W. C. V. M. & G. S. R. R., while pushing the truck across Cedar Run bridge, on Wednesday morning last, missed his foothold and fell through the bridge, a distance of some fifty or sixty feet, breaking his left arm, and cutting the left side of his face very severely.

A grange of the Patrons of Husbandry was organized in Manassas on Saturday last by Deputy J. C. Underwood, assisted by Messrs. Wedderburn and Farr. Mr. J. C. Underwood was elected Master and J. J. Cockrille secretary. Some of our most substantial and influential farmers compose the organization.

Mr. A. F. Woodyard and Mr. Newton Woodard conveyed to the colored lunatic asylum, at Richmond, on Tuesday last, an old colored man who was found wandering in the woods near Manassas, a month or so ago, and who was sent to jail as a lunatic.

A half mile race will take place at Manassas, on Saturday next, October 9th, between H. B. Varn's white race mare "Belle of Fauquier," and B. F. Pattie's sorrel horse "Friday," for $100 a side.—Manassas Gazette.

Letter from Fauquier.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.] FAUQUIER COUNTY, Va., Sept. 30.—What can be more perfect than a day in June, but could the poet linger a time in the mountain in these dreamy days he would set September above them all. This month of all others, with its genial warmth, its breeze so redolent with its rich odors of ripened grain and fruit, as well as the rich scent of the dogwood and oak; the faint cloud, like haze, that rests loving on the earth beneath, and softens, like a touch of moonlight, everything it rests upon; to ride through the varied scenes of hill and dale, and see the wondrous beauty around you, and the hundred varying tints that nature has robbed herself, makes one think himself in Teonnyson's Land of the Lotus Eaters.

are beginning to look up in this county, and when Fauquier spreads herself on politics, there is a warm time generally. On next Saturday there will be a primary election, and there is a fierce conflict for the victory. There are six aspirants for Legislative honors:

Gov. Smith, William Williamson, S. Embrey, Baroes Kerrick, Capt. Alf. Glasscock and Bailey Shumate. Gov. Smith, it is thought, will be elected, and either Capt. Glasscock or Mr. Kerrick, it is said, will be the other nominee.

There will be on next Saturday, at Mr. Forbes' place, near the Springs, a genuine HURDLE RACE, ridden by the Jockey Club, of Fauquier, for a silver cup. The entrance fee is ten dollars, and thoroughbreds are not allowed to contend. The distance to be run is two miles, with twelve hurdles, four feet high, to be jumped, two of them are, I hear, stone walls, and there is really a fascinating prospect of somebody breaking their necks, and making the occasion one of great interest.

On Tuesday I attended, in this county, a

TIN WEDDING, being the tenth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. Cassius Carter and his estimable wife. A goodly company were assembled, and the fair maidens, and the true gentlemen of the county and hospitable Fauquier, have been so often extolled, that to detail on this subject is simply a task of supererogation. It was an occasion where all the courtesies were joyously and heartily tendered, and most charmingly and gracefully received by the happy and stylish couple, and I am sure that to witness such a scene would convince the most cynical bachelor that ever lived that matrimony is per se the happiest state, and that Talleyrand was right when he called a married man a lucky dog. The presents were all, of course, of tin, but it was a useful and beautiful collection. May the congenial pair yet celebrate, in the future, their crystal, golden, and diamond wedding, and may I be there to see the last.

In all my travels I have not yet met one farmer who was an advocate of hard money. If Ohio thinks as the agricultural people of Virginia do on the then the 12th of October will witness an astounding victory for the Inflationists. The people say they want more money. It is useless to argue with a hungry man on questions of etiquette, and whether right or wrong the sorceries are bound to have their own sweet will.

GAME.

Bad news for sportsmen this year. There are very few birds, though the woods are alive with squirrel and the fields with rabbits, but that is a kind of sport one soon tires of.

CHASSEUR.

Roberts, one of the correspondents of the Washington Capital, has been here lately, and gives the following account of her trip in last Sunday's issue of that paper. She was evidently in a bad humor when she wrote it, and should have postponed her visit until the vapors were dissipated, for she is an excellent writer, and her articles usually are conceived in the best spirit:

"Alexandria may be a handsome place and an aristocratic place, but truth compels me to state that at first view it is not exhilarating, and anything worse than the odor of the first few squares cannot be imagined. However, we reached our destination and entered the house where George used to repose his weary limbs. It is really a curiosity. It is old and looks as if it was ashamed of standing so long, and would fall down on slight provocation. In fact, I did not know but what the provocation had arrived with me, by the way my friend skipped around and pulled off stray splinters and loose pieces of mortar. I tried to get up some kind of sentiment, but not with much success, and I sat down to a nice little lunch with a very unenthusiastic appetite, enjoying the bright, happy faces of the present day opposite me, much more than sentimental repining after people who died ages before I was born and who were much better off, as they knew nothing about Delaos, third terms, Holly Tree lunch-rooms, and women's rights conventions and other evils of the present day. So I let others talk sentiment, while I became practical and ate a good square meal; and then we started for a walk through the city and to the church where the "Father of our Country" attended. The walk through the place convinced me that any one who said we Americans rushed things or were a fast set of people, had never visited Alexandria, or he would never have made such a statement. If he did, he would be a fit candidate for the Presidency or any other office where lucre was not considered an objection.

"They put down a track and ran a line of street cars, but as every one stood on the curbstone and looked at the cursas they went by and then walked to their destination, the thing did not prove a bonanza, and the day I was there they were busy taking the track up.

"The thing I enjoyed most was the company of an old gentleman who was one of the 'old set inhabitants' of the place and people. I don't mind hearing of old-time people and places if I am not asked to weep over them; life is too short for that. In walking to the church my peace of mind was somewhat disturbed by the roughness of the pavement, loose cobble stones and bricks setting themselves up in a way not at all consistent with my ideas of a well-regulated pavement or street, and extremely detrimental to the welfare of a buxion I have, which has always been an obstacle to my pilgrim's progress in life. I said to the gentleman with me what a blessing a board of public works would be to them, and was proceeding with great eloquence to demonstrate what incalculable benefit such an institution would be, when my oration was stopped by the horned look on his aged countenance, and in a choking voice he told me that they "had one of those things there," and the common council disbanded, and all the way to the church he was proving to me what untold misery they had escaped by sending the "board" kiting.

"The church has been the scene of many an interesting event, and is a sacred edifice to two senses of the word. I sat down in silence and reverence in George Washington's pew, and so I did in Gen. Lee's, for the same reason. They were both soldiers, and curiously enough both rebels; for it is not so many years ago that the proudest title an American could claim was rebel. My heart, which does not respond to the spreading eagle speeches and cheap John cry of patriotism so much in vogue—which only means so many dollars or so much gain—always has a tender feeling towards a soldier. Born of a family that for three generations have followed that calling, it comes natural, and it does not matter which side he fought on. A war must have two factions, and a man who risks what is dearest to him—his life—does it from a sense of right, whether mistaken or not.

"As I stood there I thought of the two men, both Virginians, yet who had fought on such different principles, and I was sure, from what I have read of his character, that were both men alive, the "Father of our Country," the first in peace," would be the first to clasp in amity his brother soldier's hand, and to weep over the blindness that has kept half of our country in a state of bitterness and bloodshed, brought to that pass by politicians and men whose only interest in a State was the amount of money and honors that could be accumulated for their own benefit.

"While I was doing g in this vein of thought and getting wrathful, my relieving friend was trotting round filling her bag with decayed pieces of wood and mortar. The gentleman with us, who was warden of the church at the time, told me in answer to my question as to how the church was preserved intact during the war, that the commanding officer, General Montgomery, "borrowed" it for himself and family to worship in and kept it constantly guarded."

ASSOCIATION OF THE ARMY OF NORTHERN VIRGINIA.—The following call has been issued by the President of this association with the view of obtaining the presence of as large a number of its members as possible at the inauguration of the S. on-wall Jackson statue in Richmond, on the 26th instant.

The Governor of Virginia having issued his proclamation designating Tuesday, the 26th of October, proximo, as the day for the inauguration of the statue of Lieut. General Jackson, of the Confederate army, the members of the Association of the Army of Northern Virginia are requested to be present in the city of Richmond on that occasion for the purpose of participating in the ceremonies of inauguration, and also of holding a meeting for the more general and efficient organization of the Association.

The Vice Presidents of the Association for the several States, appointed at the meeting held in Richmond in November, 1870, with their assistants, are especially requested to attend, and to take steps for as full representation from their respective States as may be practicable.

In the States where the vice-presidents are dead the senior assistants will act as vice-presidents, and where the assistants as well as the senior surviving officer of the Army of Northern Virginia in the State will act as vice-president and appoint two assistants.

All officers and soldiers who served honorably with the Army of Northern Virginia at any time from the beginning of the war to its close are entitled to be members of the Association.

The surviving officers and soldiers of the other Confederate armies, as well as the surviving officers and sailors of the Confederate navy, are invited to be present at the inauguration of the statue, to unite with us in the ceremonies, and also to participate in the proposed meeting; and it is hoped that as many of them may attend as can do so.

J. A. EARLY, President of the Association of the Army of Northern Virginia, September 30th, 1875.

SPECIFIC FOR DIPHTHERIA.—The Italian journal publishes a letter from Dr. Galligari, describing the remarkable success which has attended his treatment of diphtheria with phenic acid. He relates the losses he formerly experienced among his patients when treating them with emollients, solvents and cauterization with hydrochloric acid, and observes that this cauterization can no more eradicate the morbid principle than tearing the leaves off the plant will destroy the root. He now simply uses a certain application of new phenic acid, food and drink to be taken cold. After the adoption of this treatment, Dr. Galligari lost but one patient out of fifty-eight. He requests the Italian journals to publish the discovery.

The following is claimed to be a certain remedy for diphtheria. A physician says that of 1000 cases in which it has been used, not a single patient has been lost. The treatment consists in thoroughly swabbing the back of the mouth and throat with a wash made thus: "Table salt, two drachms; black pepper, gold seal, nitrate of potash, alum, one drachm each. Mix and pulverize, put it into a teacup, which half fill with boiling water, stir well, and then fill up with good vinegar. Use every half hour, one, two and four hours, as recovery progresses. The patient may swallow a little each time. Apply an ounce each of spirits of turpentine, sweet oil and aqua ammonia, m. x. to the whole of the throat, and the bracebone, every four hours, keeping fanned to the part."

BRIED WITH HIM.—When the late King of the Sandwich Islands was gathered to his fathers, he was buried in a great feather cloak which had passed down to him through numerous generations of royal chieftains. When the remains were about to be placed in the coffin, and were removed from the feathered robe on which they had lain in state, the aged father at once commanded that the body be buried in the robe, as the dead king, his son, was the last of the family, and to him, therefore, it belonged.

It will cost more than $100,000 to replace this beautiful robe, if it is ever replaced, for one million of birds, possessed of rare red and yellow plumage, were caught to furnish the material of which it was made.

SWINDLE.—A swindle was practised on a Baltimore merchant, yesterday. A man appeared at his store in the guise of a telegraph messenger, and delivered what purported to be a dispatch from a customer in Washington, ordering some goods. He signed his name in the delivery book opposite the figures which were supposed to represent the number of the dispatch. It turned out, however, that he had really signed his name to a check for $233, which was ingeniously concealed under the page on which he wrote his name, and so arranged that the signature appeared in the usual place for signing a check. The rascal immediately went to the bank, got the money, and made his escape.—Balt. Am.

The oldest tree in the world is said to be a bot-tree at Anuradhapura, in Ceylon, which was planted B. C. 288. It is so decrepit with age that it would have blown down long ago were it not for a straggling wall encircling the trunk and pillars supporting all the main branches. Every leaf that falls from the tree is picked up with pious care by the Buddhist priests and preserved in a holy part of their temple. The leaves are thence sold to the people as a sovereign panacea for their sins.

Dr. Louis A. Boswell claims to have invented a practicable flying machine, which he describes as a fish-tail swimmer in the air, equipped with the power to drive and guide himself through the medium in which he floats, just as the natural fish, by the use of his fins and tail and the gyrations of his body, drives and guides himself through the medium in which he floats.

SALE OF LAND.—The Bowman tract of land, near Middleburg, was sold by Wm. B. Noland, on Saturday, the 25th, of September, for $200 acres were bought by Harrison Lewis for $25—184 acres were bought by Fenton Furr, for $21.55.—Leesburg Washingtonian.

TEXAS AID FUND.—The subscriptions in this city to the Texas relief fund, to date, aggregate $5,345.
