COLORED SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

The Summer Tribune publishes the following account of the late meeting of the Colored School House Building Association of this city: "On Monday night pursuant to a call from the Baptist A. M. Church was held with the patrons of education to hear a report from the Trustees of colored school property. At 7 o'clock Mr. G. L. Seaton, the President of the Board, called the meeting to order and said that persons interested had asked him to call a public meeting of the people and submit to them a report of the doings of the Board for the last six years. Mr. Seaton further said that he could make a report on the organization of the Board until within a few weeks past, and for that report they would have to call on the other President of the Board who was the Rev. S. W. Madden. At this point numerous queries were made as to who elected Mr. Madden the president? and by what authority was he elected? when Robinson, that audacious blackguard of a preacher, arose to his feet, looking like one of our mountaineer rabbits that has been shot at and missed, and said for the edification of those present that Mr. Madden was president by the right of usurpation and no other that he knew of which of course satisfied him to vent a little of his bad English on some one, even though it was a fellow-laborer in the cause of Christ. On motion, Mr. Seaton, after some debate, proceeded with his report. He started out by saying that, after the organization of the Board and the accumulation of a debt of twelve hundred dollars or more, the Trustees decided to give an excursion to Fredericksburg for the purpose of raising funds to liquidate that debt; that the excursion proved a failure and brought them into debt one hundred and forty dollars more. From this time until within the last year the whole Board looked the property entrusted to them by the people and said to him to get on with it as best he could (his excursion was given six years ago) and after he had succeeded in getting the property out of debt and in good condition, he thought that he would pay himself something for his six years trouble, but before even getting the money back which he had advanced the stupid trustees stepped in, elected another man President of the board and refused to pay him the sums advanced by himself. He then read the names of those contributing to the fund in the outset; and said that the trustees had his bills, vouchers, &c. Here a loud and continued discussion took place. Mr. McK. Ware said that the reason this meeting was called was that Mr. Seaton had a bill for a little upward of a thousand dollars for services rendered which the board had refused to pay; and it was at the bottom of this meeting. Mr. Seaton replied by saying that under the new regime the collectors had passed five percent. toll money which had been paid through his hands; this too, before any of the bills were met. This line of charges was stopped by Mr. Beckley offering the following resolution, that a committee of five be appointed to ask for a full examination and elaborate report from the Trustee Board and present it to the people two weeks from tonight. Mr. Ware thought that the President should not appoint the committee. Mr. Beckley here made use of his humorous but pointed speeches, saying, among other things, that it was a most remarkable thing that the first one to attack the resolution was a trustee. He thought that the objection came with very poor taste. The committee was then appointed as follows: R. D. Beckley, R. B. Clarke, Samuel Lee, H. C. Robinson, Robert Smith.

A number of ladies and some of the best citizens of Alexandria attended this meeting."

IMMIGRATION.

At the meeting of the legislative committee on Immigration, last Friday, Gen. Fitz Lee said he had been led to the study of the subject of immigration by the conviction that the necessities of the State demanded that something should be done, and done quickly, if we ever hoped to revive her prosperity. The resources of the State were stretched by him, and the advantages she offers to immigrants seeking pleasant and promising homes were pointed out.

He cited authorities to show the value of immigrants in an industrial point of view, and gave his idea of the class we needed to buy our lands, and proved that of the immigrants entering the Atlantic ports one-third are British and the other two-thirds are Germans. Virginia was shown to be far behind most of the States of her population, even of the South, in getting immigration. The good already done by the Rappahannock and Potomac Immigration Society in calling attention to the advantages of Virginia were referred to. A letter from the secretary of the society was read, exhibiting by figures and absolute statements that by fair dealing and a determination to do justice to land buyers, and a proper and judicious system of advertising, especially through the excursion to New York made last year an interest had been awakened which gave assurance of future success.

General Lee spoke of the Centennial, and thought Virginia should take advantage of the Centennial year to institute decided measures to secure immigration. He believed the Centennial Exposition afforded us the very opportunity we needed. The present scheme adopted by the State to secure immigration met with his disapproval, and was, as he had learned, almost a complete failure. Not one of the banks sent out by the Board had been filled up and returned by land owners.

In lieu of that board the General suggested a board of ten, consisting of the Governor and the nine members of Congress to serve without pay. The advantages claimed was that they would fairly, intelligently represent all sections of the State; that they were at Washington in winter, when they could do us great good by coming in contact with foreigners and people from the North, and that they were fully acquainted with the wants and wishes of the people. He would have a brief and concise statement concerning his section written by each Congressman, the whole to be consolidated by the Secretary of the board, and to which should be added a guide to points of interest in the State, such as Yorktown, Mount Vernon, &c.

Gen. Lee stated that two immigration commissioners should also be chosen, one to be located in Europe and one in New York, to turn the tide toward Virginia, and to guard and protect the immigrant.

The experiment, he asserted, would not cost more than $5,000 per annum, and the money could be taken out of the present immigration fund. The pamphlet mentioned he would have distributed at the Centennial, in New York, and Europe, and wherever else it would be likely to attract attention and secure readers.
