Louis XI and Lannoi.

The Count of Lannoi, one of the bravest of the soldiers of Louis XI of France, and one of the most brilliant ornaments of the Court, was condemned to death by that monarch for a supposed implication in a conspiracy. The count not only declared his innocence of the charge, but offered proof that would have convinced had it been listened to; but Louis was exasperated, and deaf to all such approaches. The King sent his barber, Olivier le Dain, made so familiar by Scott in his novel of "Quentin Durward," to announce to him, as a special favor, that his royal master allowed him to choose whatever mode of death he might prefer. Lannoi, himself a man of courage, knew that the King not only possessed the same quality, but liked to see it in others. Bearing this in mind, he announced his choice in the following letter:

"Sire, I am penetrated with gratitude for your Majesty's extraordinary kindness, and for the anxiety you manifested on the subject of my punishment. You will believe me when I say that I would rather have lost my life in your Majesty's service than on such a charge as this. But, since my death is determined, I send you for that purpose the chain of gold which your Majesty wore at the battle of Quesnoy, and which you placed on the neck of my father, Koul de Lannoi, the thickest of dukes, with these memorable words: 'paque dien! my friend, you combat too freely.' You must be up, for I cannot afford to lose you just yet. I want your services for years to come.' With this chain, sire, I wish to be hanged at the foot of the Tower du Nord, where I was wounded in the breast by an arrow meant for my Majesty, when I covered you from Ruzzy's fire-attack."

A ROMANTIC INCIDENT.

A rather romantic incident occurred recently in the prosaic city of Boston, which has at least the merit of novelty and is not lacking the poetic element. A stranger entered a horse car, and was quietly seated in a corner with a lady with a bright-eyed little girl of three years entered and took a seat next to him. The child, wishing to watch the street sights, stood up between the two. Mr. A., noticing that the child was playful, indulged in a little quiet familiarity, and at length remarked as the car passed round a curve: "Don't fall, baby, papa would be sorry."

The lady's face, which had worn rather a smiling expression, changed at once, but before he recovered his senses, seeing the faux pas he had made, the little girl exclaimed: "Papa's dead." The position was embarrassing, but he turned the conversation to a casual remark. The child, however, turning her blue eyes upon him, said in the most artless manner: "You dot say 'I had a little girl once, out she and her mother are both dead.' The mother of the child was now more confused than ever, but when her eyes met those of the gentleman, there was a sympathetic expression perceptible.

MUSIC ON GAS JETS.

A rather numerous company met on Saturday afternoon at the house of M. Frederick Kastner, in the Rue de Clichy, to witness his experiments with a strange invention of his which he calls the "pyrophone." The pyrophone, as its name indicates, is an instrument which produces sounds by means of gas jets. It had long been known that flames emit sounds, and M. Kastner himself had tried experiments in London; but yesterday the special public found themselves in the presence of an almost complete instrument composed of a series of glass tubes similar to organ pipes of different lengths and dimensions, in which gas jets were burned, and which played some powerful and very moving morceaux. The difficulty of the invention consisted, of course, in regularizing the jets. The theory is this: When an isolated gas jet produces a sound, you have only to bring another similar jet near it to make the sound cease. M. Kastner, then, has invented a contrivance which opens and shuts like the fingers of a hand, of which each one should allow a jet to escape. When the fingers are extended the sound is produced; when they are closed, or approach to each other, the sound ceases. He next regulated the force of the sound by the dimensions of the tubes and by the height at which the jets were placed in the tubes. The contrivance corresponds to the key board of a piano, and you are deeply moved at hearing those jets sing with extraordinary power, purity and correctness.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

For all Diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Spleen.

After Forty Years' trial it still receives the most unqualified testimonials of its virtues from persons of the highest character and responsibility.

It is eminently a Family Medicine, and by being kept ready for immediate resort will save many an hour of suffering and many a dollar in time and money.

DOCTORS' BILLS.

Your Regulator is one of the best family medicines I ever used. I have not spent one dollar for my family for medicine in five years, only for your Regulator, and must say it does all it says it will. You can also recommend it in Colic for stock, it having cured a fine milch cow with five hundred dollars.—(J. A. Nelson, Macon, Ga.)

The Liver, the largest organ in the body, is generally the seat of the disease, and if not regulated in time great suffering, wretchedness and DEATH will ensue.

If you feel DULL, DROWSY, DIZZINESS, have frequent Headache, MURKY TASTES, bad Appetite, and Tongue Coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently.

Hon. Alexander H. Stephens.

"I occasionally use, when my condition requires it, Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator, with good effect."—(Hon. Alex. H. Stephens, Governor of Alabama.)

"Your Regulator has been in use in my family for some time, and I am persuaded it is a valuable addition to the medical science."—(Gov. J. Gill Shorter, Ala.)

"I have used the Regulator in my family for the past seventeen years. I can safely recommend it to the world as the best medicine I have ever used for that class of diseases it purports to cure."—(H. F. Thigpen, Baltimore Episcopal Methodist.)

This medicine is acknowledged to have no equal as a Liver Medicine, containing those Southern Roots and Herbs which an all-wise Providence has placed in countries where Liver Diseases most prevail.

Lady's Endorsement.

"I have given your medicine a thorough trial, and in no case has it failed to give full satisfaction."—(Ellen Mescham, Chattahoochee, Fla.)

Professional.

"From actual experience in the use of this medicine in my practice I have been, and am, satisfied to use and prescribe it as a purgative medicine."—(Dr. J. W. Mason, Florida M. E. Conference.)

"I have used Dr. Simmons' Liver Regulator in my family for Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, and regard it an invaluable remedy. It has not failed to give relief in any instance."—(Rev. W. F. Esserling, President Oglethorpe College.)
