WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 3

A COMEDY OF ERRORS.—Here is an amusing comedy of errors with a Parisian edge. Mme. de V. was very jealous, and determined to watch her husband. One day he told her he was going to Versailles, and when he went out, she put on her bonnet and followed him. She kept him in sight until he turned into a passage, which shortened the way to the railway station, where she missed him. She stood for a few minutes, looking about, and suddenly saw a man coming out of a glove shop, with a rather over-dressed lady. From the distance she made sure the man was her husband, and without a word of warning, she gave him three or four sounding boxes on the ear. When the gentleman turned round to confront his assailant, she perceived she had made a mistake, and at the same time she caught sight of her husband, who had replenished a cigar case at a tobacconist's, and was crossing the street. What could she do? She followed in the arms of the stranger whose ears she boxed—while the other lady ran off as fast as she could to avoid scandal. The stranger, who was a comedian, was astonished to find an unknown lady in his arms, and while his ears were still ringing from the blow, he was again startled. A gentleman, who he thought was a friend, asked him what he meant by embracing a lady on the street. "Why, she boxed my ears and fainted," screamed the actor. "She is my wife," shouted the irate husband, "and would never have struck you without cause." The infuriated gentleman shook his fists until the lady, who had been carried into a shop, recovered sufficiently to explain how it happened.
