THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Post papers report that Count Andrassy on Wednesday definitively refused an alliance with England...

A Constantinople dispatch says: "The Porte, through the Embassy at Berlin, has given notice of its acceptance of the invitation to the Congress."

The embarkation of the Russian Guards has been countermanded. Russian troops are moving northward. The reason is unknown.

A correspondent at Vienna says he knows the idea of an Anglo-Austrian alliance was recently summarily discarded by the highest authority in the State.

The Official Journal of St. Petersburg publishes the full text of the treaty, which fully confirms the correctness of the versions previously published to the Associated Press.

The London Times, commenting on the text of the treaty, says there is much to criticize and resist, but nothing absolutely beyond the pale of discussion.

A Belgrade special states that the Serbians have evacuated Vranj, notwithstanding their threat that they would not leave the place unless forced to do so.

In the British House of Lords last night the Earl of Derby said for obvious reasons the fleet should not be sent into the Black Sea at the present moment. He protested against the repetition of unfounded statements relative to dissensions in the Cabinet.

A Paris dispatch says: "The questions which France demanded should be excluded from the Congress were those touching the holy places and introducing a needless complication and tending Syria, because Syria might have been offered to her as compensation for English occupation of Egypt, and because she considers that the two fold questions of Syria and Egypt might impair the good understanding with England."

The Times has a dispatch from Valo saying: "The villages of Olympus, Repansa, Caria and Litchora have been sacked and burned by the Turks. The women, children and old men were massacred, except some who escaped to the mountains, where are still covered with snow."

MISCELLANEOUS.

A dispatch from Rome says: "The new Ministry, it is believed, will be constituted as follows:—Signor Cairoli, President of the Council, without a portfolio; Count Corti, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Signor Zanardelli, Minister of the Interior; Signor Bruzzi, Minister of War; Signor Doda, Minister of Finance; Signor Sananetti, Minister of Public Instruction; and Signor Deblasio, Minister of Public Works."

The French Chamber of Deputies passed the entire budget of revenue yesterday. There were only three dissenting votes. The irreconcilable Radicals abstained from voting.

A dispatch from Paris says: "Work is suspended in the printing houses and the publication of books is stopped in consequence of the printers' strike. The newspapers continue their regular issues, not being affected by the strike."

It is asserted that the Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm will be appointed the Emperor's substitute in Alsace and Lorraine, and will reside there temporarily.

An Orange mob at Ottawa on Wednesday night disturbed a congregation of Indian converts who were listening to an address from the Rev. Mr. Picot, a French missionary, and afterwards attacked the converts. The police prevented any rioting.

LONDON, March 22.—The Times states that the iron trade in South Yorkshire is in a most stagnant condition. Large numbers of men are out of work. Within the past few days two of the leading works in Rotherham have stopped owing to the scarcity of orders, and about one thousand additional men are rendered idle. These establishments—the Midland Iron Company had, during the last ten years, paid dividends averaging fifty per cent. per annum. It is also feared that the collieries will strike against the reduction of wages in which case thirty thousand men will be unemployed.

Cardinal McCloskey and Lieutenant General Count Gerbraux de Somnaz, King Humbert's aide de camp, have visited General Grant.

Five Men Drowned.

A correspondent of the Richmond Whig gives the following particulars of the deplorable accident that was mentioned in the telegraphic news in yesterday's Gazette:—"On Saturday, the 16th of March, 1878, five good and true men lost their lives by a dreadful accident, the memory of which will never fade from many hearts, who now, in grief and sorrow, lament their loss."

Three men and a boy about sixteen years of age, left their work, as was usual with them on Saturday evening, to go across the river to the town of Howardsville. They were laborers upon the farm of a gentleman who owned the Buckingham side of the river.

They returned about 7 p. m., and found no boat upon the Nelson landing, which is situated upon the land of A. J. Bondurant, etc., and upon calling out for some one to come over and ferry them across, they were answered by Allen McFaddin, a miller upon the premises of Capt. C. Pateason. He carried over to them a small, frail canoe, the large boat having (some day or two before) been carried down the river. It seems that all five took passage in this wretched bark. About 8 o'clock, p. m., a small boy, who happened to be near the river, which was quite high, heard a great splashing and outcry near the Nelson bank, and distinguished the words, "Hold on to the boat!" "Where is little Jimmy?" He immediately gave the alarm, and instantly a number of persons rushed with eager haste to the rescue. But, alas, it was too late! Not a solitary object could be discerned upon the waters, and their sudden shrieks of the widow's mother of an only son, who stood upon the bank of the angry current and cried aloud, "Where, oh where, is my darling boy?" By her side stood the widowed wife of another, and two sisters of two others. Never shall I forget the awful scene! The moon was partly obscured by clouds, and ever and anon would cast a glare of light upon the roaring waters, when these unfortunate people would rush to the bank and try to see some sign of their loved ones. Then, after each fresh disappointment, their wails of woe would deepen into shriek after shriek, that would have touched with pity a heart of adamant.

Nearly all night long the river was searched for miles below for some traces of them, but without success, and two families, containing thirteen helpless women and children, were left without a solitary man to support them. All were lost, and as yet no trace of their bodies, or even the canoe in which they perished, has been found. Allen McFaddin, the miller, was about 65 years of age, and though poor in worldly goods, was a brave and honest man, and there beat beneath his fastidious jacket a warm and tender heart as ever animated a human bosom. Though beyond the age required for conscription, he served four years in Stuart's cavalry with credit and distinction. His son James McFaddin, a noble youth of about 22 years of age, perished with him, as did also his grandson, James Woodie, a good and upright boy, whom he tenderly loved. John Dawson, a young man of about 25 of most excellent character, met with the same sad fate, as did also a faithful colored man, named George Roberts, who was about 45 years of age, and the father of seven infant children. He too was a good and well disposed man. The two McFaddins and Dawson were excellent swimmers, the others could not swim.

John J. Wood vs. John A. Thompson; forcible detainer; jury and verdict for defendant; and that he hold possession until January 1st, 1879.

Virginia Politics.

The Hon. A. L. Pridemore, of the Abingdon Congressional district, has given positive notice to his constituents that he will not be a candidate for reelection next fall. The present is Mr. Pridemore's first term in Congress, and his action in this case is certainly the most remarkable on record that we can now call to memory. When before did any man, in Virginia or out of it, decline a second election to Congress or any other office to which he was eligible? It is true, that when Mr. Pridemore first announced himself a candidate for his present seat in Congress he then proclaimed that he would only serve one term, because he thought all representatives should frequently return to the bosom of their constituents, and let other people have a chance for the honors and emoluments of this world. He was, therefore, under a pledge not to run again for reelection. But how many representatives are there in Congress, or elsewhere, who have stuck to their pledge with the integrity of Pridemore, and rejected honors within their grasp after once tasting of the golden fruit? All honor to the representative of the southwest district.—The Morning Post.

The Hon. B. B. Douglas seems likely to have opposition for renomination to Congress. From Prince William we hear the names of J. R. Purcell and Charles E. Sinclair. Stafford will present General Fitzhugh Lee. From Spotsylvania the names of John L. Marye, Charles Herndon, A. W. Wallace, E. M. Braxton, J. H. Lyle and J. H. Kelly are mentioned. King George will present Charles Mason. From Westmoreland there will be a number of names—Judge Cricheer, R. M. Mayo, R. J. Washington, Rev. W. W. Walker, and last, but not least, Gen. R. L. T. Beale. Richmond and Lancaster are yet to hear from. From Essex the names of Thos. Croxton and T. R. B. Wright are mentioned. From Middlesex we hear of B. F. Bland. From Matthews, C. A. Bohannon and T. J. Christian. King and Queen will be for E. B. Montague. From King William we hear of Col. W. H. Aylett. Gloucester will present Gen. Talliferro. John Neely and B. T. Gantner are the Accotink candidates. Northampton is not yet heard from. There are several magisterial districts unrepresented. In all thus far there are just twenty-five names. Of course two dozen will not get the nomination.—Fredericksburg Bulletin.

Although the election for members of Congress does not take place till next November, impatient letter writers are already surveying the field and indulging in speculations on the result. A Richmond correspondent of the Alexandria Gazette appears to have made it a subject of serious and protracted study, and in a recent number of that paper, passes in review each district and the various aspirants, real or reputed. He bases his calculations on information derived from members of the Legislature; but everything, he admits, may be seriously affected by the introduction of the debt question into the canvass—and how far it will enter the canvass cannot be foretold. The first important fact stated, or taken for granted, is that all the present members, (except General Pridemore, who will not run again) desire a renomination and reelection. The next patent fact is the great numbers who desire to serve the glorious Union. In most of the districts nine or ten names are mentioned as coveting the splendid prize—and a broad hiatus left for all as many more, yet to be besounded by the trumpet of Fame. We do not remember our columns by copying it. It is intimated, in case of the nomination of certain persons in the different districts, there will be independent candidates. It seems to be taken for granted that Conventions are to be held under the direction and auspices of the conservative organization, and all who refuse to support the nominees will be denounced as bolters, and no better or worse than radicals. Another fact, not so patent as the long list of candidates—but worth nothing; the correspondent does not seem to advert at all to the fitness of the various gentlemen or their acceptability to the people—no merely considers their acceptability to themselves, and their chances of getting a caucus nomination. This may be the result of his inability to determine how far the debt question may influence nominations and elections. It may be a potent and controlling factor in the canvass, all speakers should refer to the people, and not merely consider their acceptability to themselves, and their chances of getting a caucus nomination. The Philadelphia Times says: There is a fair probability that Gen'l. Fitzhugh Lee will be returned to Congress in place of Beverly Douglas.

South Carolina. NEW YORK, March 22.—A Columbia, S. C., dispatch states that the chairman of the Fraud Commission in the Senate, yesterday, publicly announced that they had ample evidence to secure speedy conviction of ex Gov. Chamberlain for his share in the crimes against the State.

Resolutions however which passed the House on Wednesday passed the Senate Thursday to the effect that notwithstanding investigations have proved the truth of several charges made against those who since 1868 have ruled and almost ruined the State, the Governor is requested to order nolle prosequi in any cases brought by the State based upon facts found by the joint investigating committee on public frauds.

A democratic caucus at Columbia, Wednesday night, was addressed by Gov. Hampton, who was heartily endorsed by the caucus.

NEW YORK, March 22.—A special from Charleston says: Five thousand people witnessed the consecration of the Liberia ship Azor at Charleston yesterday, by Bishop Brown of the African Methodist Church. Several addresses were made, the general feeling being expressed by one of the speakers, who said: "In this country the negro is a nation of bootblackers, hostlers and horse servants. A race of menials. If he wishes to rise he must go where he is on an equality with his surroundings."

The Eighth Congressional District. To the editor of the Alexandria Gazette: Mr. Neale has a reputation for ability. If we are allowed a primary election, we are inclined to predict for him a respectable delegation from this county. Old Faugquier is not selfish, and her man having already been elected for three successive terms, she will, no doubt, if the matter is plainly put before her people, unite with her near sister in securing the nomination and election of Mr. Neale. Should, however, Mr. Brooke, the ablest of her living sons, prove to be the choice of other counties, her voice will, of course, be heard in his behalf, or rather in behalf of a first class representative from this Congressional District.

FAUGQUIER. WARRENTON, VA., March 21, 1878.

Walking on the Water. NEW YORK, March 22.—A dispatch from Gibraltar says that Capt. Paul Boyton successfully landed on the shore of Tangier Bay, at one o'clock night before last, after a terrible passage of 17 hours. The strength of the spring tides was so great that at one time it seemed certain that he would be carried to sea. The waves were exceedingly high and the darkness was intense. It was a very severe trial of both courage and endurance. Capt. Boyton returned to Gibraltar yesterday.

The Fishery Award.

The London Times on the fishery award says it is unfortunate for the good fame of the United States that at a moment when the financial policy of Congress has awakened grave suspicions and anxieties in Europe, some American politicians of considerable importance and notoriety display another phase of the repudiating spirit in opposition to the payment of the award.

The reckless language of Mr. Blaine and General Butler is not only throwing discredit on the country, but damaging to the system of settling international disputes by arbitration. No country henceforward will be willing to refer claims to arbitration, if the decision of the arbitrators is liable to be challenged by the unsuccessful party. This is as plain as that American credit will be severely shaken if they refuse to abide by the award. It will be reasonably argued that the Government which seeks to evade the consequences of the reference to a tribunal chosen with its full knowledge and free consent is not likely to be scrupulous in maintaining the obligation of inconvenient contracts with foreign creditors. It would be as unwisely to indemnify for the United States the private wrongs of England and all the civilized world by a refusal to pay an indisputable claim. The questions considered by the Commissioners are such that only those who mastered the whole case, perhaps only those present, throughout the whole inquiry, have any claim to pronounce an opinion. The American case ran before the Commissioners was most ably, completely and fully heard.

We take it for granted therefore that the amount of the award is reasonable. If it seems to the Americans unduly large self respect and regard for the principle of arbitration ought to have restrained expressions of impatience. Attempts at evasion and attacks upon the impartiality of Mr. Dolosse are of a piece with the spirit of chicanery which has attempted to force an interpretation of the unanimous award. We hope and believe that Mr. Blaine will not be able to get the Congress of his countrymen to support him in a refusal to pay the award and to stamp American policy with the double discredit of meanness and trickiness.

News of the Day.

A dwelling in Newport, Rhode Island, occupied by a family named Murray, contained yesterday four children who had died of diphtheria, and three others who were not expected to live throughout the day. The father, insane to his anguish, threatened to shoot the undertaker, and a police officer had to be called in to restrain him.

The New York Star publishes an interview between its representative and ex Governor Tilden, in which Tilden says he is out of politics, and is not desirous of re-entering the field. He says he does not believe that any good result is to be expected from the further agitation of the Presidential question.

A servant girl in the family of Judge Gideon D. Campbell, at Clarksburg, West Virginia, attempted to poison the whole family by a liberal supply of arsenic in their tea. The large quantity administered caused vomiting and saved their lives. The girl is in custody.

At the Rhode Island democratic State convention to-day, J. B. Barnaby was nominated for Governor, Isaac Lawrence for Lieutenant Governor; H. A. Robinson, Secretary of State; Charles H. Pace, Attorney General, and Thos. W. Siger, General Treasurer.

Messrs. Ewing and Chittenden of the House of Representatives, yesterday, viewed the weighing of fifteen million gold in the sub-treasury vaults, at New York. There is about one hundred million in coin and bullion in these vaults.

Blasius Historia, the Catholic priest on trial at Philadelphia for the murder of Isaac Jaquette, at Norristown, in 1875, has been acquitted of murder in the first degree.

Dr. Frank Rice, an eminent physician of Memphis, died yesterday morning of paralysis. During the war he was Medical Director of Cheatham's Division.

Letter from Falls Church.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.] FALLS CHURCH, VA., March 21, 1878.—We had our weekly literary entertainment last evening. Rev. B. W. Pond and Mrs. Eastman sang duet, and Miss Merrifield a solo, with guitar accompaniment. Miss Adams recited Paul Revere. Poor Paul! his ghost has been called up so often during the last decade that I know he don't want to come to Falls Church again soon, and I hope he won't. Col. Kent, of Washington, whom I met at Valencia, gave us his lecture on "Spanish Characteristics," that is if a long string of rhymes, in a blank verse style, can be considered a lecture. The matter was good, and occasionally drops of facetia showed the humor of the gentleman, but to ask an audience to undergo the sustained strain of closely following the reader through an hour's length of blank verse is not much of a good thing, and future applications of that kind we prefer to take in broken doses. Mr. Merrifield bore again to take up his collection, to the evident disgust of some who had come prepared for the occasion, and who were annoyed at being spared the infliction. Rev. J. W. Boyer is announced for the next lecture, which is set for April 3d.

Judge Bramhall has sold his farm to Samuel G. Norman, of Washington.

L. S. Abbott is about moving back to Falls Church, and the chances are he will take a hand in making things lively for the fossil ignoramus, who have been running affairs during his absence.

THE WEST VIRGINIA HORROR.—A special dispatch to the Baltimore Gazette from Wheeling says:—"The Register's special from Littleton, W. Va., say that the testimony in the case of George and John Wallace, charged with the murder of three persons on the 19th instant, makes their guilt almost certain. It seems that John Wallace induced his sister in law, Mrs. George Wallace, to come to his home, saying his wife was sick, and then made improper advances to her. She attempted to escape, and ran nearly half a mile, but was overtaken and killed with a hammer. George Wallace, alias George Baker, says it was John who did the deed, and told the jury where the hammer could be found, with which John killed the woman and child. It was found, covered with blood, where he said it was. Blood was also found on John Wallace's coat, which he had tried to wash off. John came to the town and gave the alarm. John having committed the crime, the other with arrested and placed in jail. Both men wore hundreds of people gathered under a heavy guard of the scene of the horror, and one of the brothers was probably by himself before morning. Both men have been lynched to make their people with God and prepare for death and everything is in readiness for the execution. It seems that the murderer took the three months' old child by the feet and dashed its brains out against a tree."

Virginia News.

The Valley Virginia says: Mr. David Rhodes, residing near Pleasant Valley Depot, Rockingham county, had recently completed a new barn. It had all his farming implements, and in the stable attached, two horses—all that he owned. On Sunday last, while he was attending the morning service at church, the building was set fire to, and it, with the contents, including the horses, entirely burned. The citizens in the neighborhood of Spring Hill have been somewhat agitated because of the frequent depredations committed upon their smoke houses, corn cribs, &c. Suspecting certain parties for complicity in the raids, and other crimes of recent date, they have notified them to leave the county, and given them fifteen days in which to do so. We understand some unhealthy demonstrations in the choking line were recently indulged, and more serious results arrested by the promise of the suspected to shake the dust of the county from their feet as soon as possible.

The Rockingham Register says: The stock dealers of this section have suffered considerably recently in the general decline of prices of cattle, hogs and sheep in the eastern market. Large numbers had been purchased by our dealers, deliverable at stipulated times, which upon delivery and shipment proved a loss to the shippers. A dealer informed us the other day that there was a case in point where one farmer sold a lot of fifty cattle upon which he was compelled to suffer a loss of $20 per head.

Miss Helen A. Miller, about 35 years old, of Logansport, who arrived at Richmond and stopped at Ford's Hotel on the 16th, was found dead in her room at that hotel yesterday morning. Deceased retired to rest at night in apparent good health and spirits. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of death from natural causes. The lady was evidently highly educated, and of literary taste. She was travelling alone.

The Amherst Enterprise says: Rev. Mr. London Mason has declined the call extended to him by the vestry of Lexington parish. We'll bet our Sunday hat that the parishioners will fall upon some young seminary graduate next Summer.

The Fredericksburg Bulletin says: A tract of land, near Richards Station, of 225 acres, with a very good residence on it, was sold at Stafford Court Wednesday, and purchased by Rev. J. M. Meredith for $600.

Anthracite coal has been discovered on the land of Isaac Bowers, on the North Mountain, in Rockingham county, also on the land of the Royal Land Company, near Sangersville, in the same county.

A signal station is in process of erection on Elliott's Knob, one of the highest peaks of the North Mountain.

Hung. NEWCASTLE, DEL., March 22.—Samuel Chambers and George Collins, the two negroes convicted of outraging Kate Smith, alias O'Toole, near Middletown, August 15th last, were hanged here to-day. The woman was a tramp, and in company with James Smith, alias Clegg, her alleged husband, was tramping through the State. Since the trial and conviction Clegg has made a confession, declaring that his testimony was false, and that the woman was not his wife, but a common prostitute and that the acts for which the men were convicted were committed with her consent. On the strength of this and other evidence tending to weaken the testimony at the trial, petitions for pardon, and others for a reprieve, have been presented to the Governor and Senate as yesterday, and the day before, delegations of citizens and lawyers called upon him in behalf of the condemned men, but without avail. Chambers was thirty-five years of age, and Collins about nineteen.

Last night they rested better than at any time since they have been in prison and felt better this morning. They breakfasted heartily and at 8:30 a. m. were visited by two colored ministers, Revs. Issa Young and Thomas Mollerbert.

Shortly after ten o'clock the prisoners were visited by the Rev. B. McLackey, Bishop of Newcastle, and by a delegation of the Young Men's Christian Association whom Chambers thanked for their efforts in his and Collins' behalf. The three ministers remained until 10:30 when they were greatly affected.

At 10:30 Warden Herdman pronounced the prisoners, and at 10:57 they were led out. Sheriff Grubb, Chambers, Collins, Rev. B. McLackey, Young and McLackey and Herdman ascended the scaffold in the order named. About two hundred persons were present to witness the execution.

At 11 o'clock Rev. McLackey made a prayer of five minutes' duration, the prisoners frequently making responses of "Amen." A hymn was then given out by Rev. Young as sung by the prisoners, whose voices were weak and trembling. Chambers then expressed himself as forgiving Governor Conroy and those who had injured him, and called on God to bless his friends and enemies alike. He then declared his innocence of the crime for which he was to suffer, and hoped that Delaware would never have another innocent man under the same circumstances. He then said huskily:—"Let me go now; I am ready; life's work is done."

Collins spoke so low that he was nearly inaudible. He made a short prayer, asking God to forgive him. The scaffold was then deserted by all but Sheriff Grubb and warden Herdman and Rev. Mr. Young. The nooses were then adjusted upon the men's necks and the black caps drawn over their heads.

At 11:18 a. m. sheriff Grubb with two blows of the halberet severed the ropes and the bodies fell straight down with a heavy thud. Collins made one convulsive movement and then made no movement but about five minutes by breathing, which lasted about five minutes. Chambers died in a few minutes and Collins a half a minute later. Both died easily. The bodies were then cut down and placed in pits. The bodies will be buried in the almshouse cemetery at W. The burial was a little or no excitement manifested there.

THE AMES COMPANY IN TROUBLE. NEW YORK, March 22.—A special from Springfield, Mass., says about 200 workmen of the Ames Company, of Chicopee, have attached the mill and machinery for wages due from December to the amount of about $50,000. Other creditors have also attached the property making a total of $75,000.

The stockholders are fighting to overthrow the present management and the annual meeting at Boston, yesterday adjourned to the 28th. The Chicopee people are excited. The Ames Company cast the bronze doors at the Capitol, canon for the government during the late war, the bronze work on the Lincoln monument, and many other well known works. The Company was once rich but it has less heavily of late years.

THE WALKING MATCH. O'Leary was still ahead last night in the international walking match at London.

LONDON, March 22.—O'Leary, the American, continues to lead in the international walking match. At 11 o'clock this morning he had completed 402 miles, Vaughan had traveled 399 miles, and Brown 367.
