The Conflict at West Point.
The West Point outrage was the topic that Dr. J. Fulton discussed in the Riok, Brooklyn, on Sunday. The audience showed where its sympathies lay by frequent applause of passages in which the black man's rights to education and protection were maintained and the white cadets, who have ill treated Whitaker, were characterized as snobs and duffers. The Doctor showed his preference for Mr. Blaine rather than for the ex-President, because the latter, when President, had not treated the colored cadets, Smith and Flipper, with proper respect as the wards of the nation. And even his son Fred, who was a cadet when Smith was at West Point, & cared in his father's presence, in conversation with Congressman Clarke, of Boston, the patron of Smith, that the time had not come to send "niggers" to West Point, and that "No d-d nigger should graduate from the Academy for many years to come." And the man who was then President of the U. S. and Commander in Chief of its military and naval forces listened to this threat of his son with approval. Very different, however, was the conduct of Mr. Blaine, who, when Cadet Flipper graduated, took him warmly by his hand and congratulated him as a noble representative of his race. Flipper is now in a cavalry regiment at Fort Sill, and is treated as a gentleman by his white associates. Dr. Fulton charged the laxity of discipline in the Academy to the faculty, who approve of the insults and injuries heaped upon the colored cadets by the whites. As if Whitaker takes a seat on a bench where white men are sitting the latter will be before the white men are served all of the table he has not been served will refuse to take it after "nigger." And the faculty see these things and never open their mouths about them.
O. South, on trying to draw water from a pump which a white cadet was using, was insulted by the latter and hit with the dipper. He knocked his assistant down after a show of pique of that did him credit, and beat him so that the white hero was laid up in the infirmary for two or three weeks. The two were court-martialed and the court recommended a punishment for the white assailant and reproof for the colored man. But the ex President positively reversed this order. Smith endured this ill to be dismissed; and, though he had sought by every means to re-enter and demonstrate his ability, he has been denied every chance to do so. Of the two hundred students at the Academy about thirty are Southerners, and these control their 170 associates and the faculty because the South is solid.
Dr. Fulton said a regiment of missionaries should be sent to West Point who would pray and preach there until the devil of caste is turned out. (Applause.) No solid South is going to rule this country. It will be ruled by free men, white and black. (Applause.) This country is committed to the Anglo-Saxon race, and if they do right this nation will stand as a beacon light for ever. All the history of this nation proves that we must be true men if we would be true to God. And what we are to God we will be to men. Instead of growing better there is growing worse at West Point every day. Several Congressmen have written to Dr. Fulton to say that whenever they have an appointment to make the colored youth have the preference. And what the Doctor would like to see is a good class of colored youth sent to these demagogues of one or two. There is meaning in the white hairs of Mr. Townsend, at West Point, and also in the fact that Alexander Ramsey is Secretary of War today. This battle will be fought on one day, and it might as well be fought at any time. If the sons of the black man who were true to the flag are to be thus treated in the Military Academy sustained by the people's money, then the whole concern had better be pulled into the Hudson and allowed to float out to sea.
