DERVISH FREE MASONRY.—Interest in the Masonic societies lately made here in connection with the obelisk that is to be moved to New York has not yet ceased. Mr. Ralph Borg, British Vice-Consul here and Worshipful Master of the English Lodge, recently made the following statement to our correspondent: "In 1864 I was present in Cairo at a working Masonic lodge composed of Egyptian dervishes, whose traditions purport to emanate from the most remote period of Egyptian antiquity. These traditions are, however, unfortunately oral—they have been handed down by word of mouth from generation to generation—for dervishes know of no other form of record or tradition. I obtained admission to this lodge in the following manner: One of these dervishes was an intimate friend of an English Free Mason resident at the time at Alexandria. The dervish, one day, much to the Englishman's surprise, invited him to visit his lodge. The Englishman, who was perfectly familiar with the Arabic language, made three visits to the lodge, but finally pledged himself never to reveal anything about it to any body, because the other dervishes were not at all pleased that one of their number had spoken upon the subject to the Englishman. Subsequently the Englishman asked permission to bring one of his countrymen to the lodge. This permission was at length granted to him reluctantly, and upon condition that the new comer should be blindfolded in coming and going. The Englishman invited me to accompany him. I was most carefully blindfolded. After proceeding on foot for over an hour and a half the lodge was reached. It seemed to be in a sort of stone cavern underground temple. From the nature of the ground passed over I should judge that it was situated in the desert near Mount Mokattam. The interior was very similar to those employed in European lodges. The dervishes said that this was only a branch of their Grand Lodge and that their traditions related back to the time of memory. Upon my suggestion that they might have obtained from one of the numerous Masonic lodges established in Egypt by the French in 1798, the dervishes said that they were entirely independent of those lodges, and that we were the first Europeans who had ever been admitted to their lodge."—United Correspondence New York Herald.
