SENATOR BAYARD'S RESPONSE.

WILMINGTON, DEL., November 15, 1880.—Dear Sir: I have just received your letter, dated the 13th inst., accompanied by a newspaper cutting, purporting to be an extract from a public speech made by me at Dover, in this State, "near the end of the recent canvass." I made but one speech at Dover, and spoke then without notes. Until I received your letter I never knew that any report had been made or published. The Press, from which you tell me you cut the extract, is a Philadelphia paper, and the Sentinel is published in Dover; both are republican in politics, and I have never seen a copy of either during or since the canvass. Reading for the first time the extract you send me, it appears to me so grossly inaccurate as to cause the belief it could not have been written by an honest person.

I remember well speaking of the case of Phelps, Dodge & Co. and the proceeding under which a great sum of money ($200,000) was wrongfully taken from their pockets. I described and denounced in severe terms "the moiety system" and the share which in this case accorded to the collector, surveyor and naval officer and to the informer (Jayne or Horne) and stated that "the senior senator from New York (Mr. Conkling) was understood to have received compensation as his counsel from Messrs. Arthur, Cornell and L. Ho for his services and assistance in the transaction." Also that my authority for this statement was derived from a document published by one of the houses of Congress accompanied by testimony and statements made in open debate on the floor of the House and never to my knowledge contradicted. I believe I also referred to a publication by Wm. P. Wood, an ex-treasury official, made in the New York Sun October 27, 1880, giving his account in full of the case. This I believe to be the "form and substance" of that part of the speech in question which had any reference to you or the moiety system. I shall be surprised to learn there is any error of fact in my statement and shall regret if the slightest injustice has been done to you, and if it there has been will feel myself bound to apply my proper remedy when my error has been disclosed to me. Your obedient servant,
T. F. BAYARD.

Bayard-Conkling.

The following statement and the appended letters have been furnished for publication:

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12, 1880.—The publication in the Philadelphia Press, signed by Chester A. Arthur, Roscoe Conkling, George S. Boutwell and Noah Davis, dated New York, November 29, 1880, but not published until December 11, reverts it proper that the subscribers letters should also be published. The dates of these letters and their contents fully explain them, and no other correspondence has passed between any of the signers of the card in the Press and myself. Mr. F. A. Burr, one of the editors of the Press, had received in Philadelphia a letter from me prior to November 20, in which I stated the falsity and malice of the report of my speech at Dover, which had been published in the Press of Oct. 29.

After the foregoing correspondence, no further statement on my part was deemed necessary. An interval of nearly three weeks elapsed before the parties published the card alluded to, in which they denounced as false the alleged report of a speech which weeks before I had stated to be untrue. These facts are submitted to the judgment of a honorable man.

T. F. BAYARD.

SENATOR CONKLING TO SENATOR BAYARD.

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 13, 1880.—Dear Sir: I ask your attention to the following correspondence of remark alluded to have been made by you to a public speaker at Dover, Del., near the end of the recent canvass.

"That he may not be certain that he is misrepresented, we give a verbatim report of the language he used: When that interview took place, the senior senator from New York among others, Mr. Conkling; also Mr. Nash Davis, the district attorney; Mr. Arthur, the collector; Mr. Jayne, the spy, or special agent, they called him. All were present. Mr. Boutwell, that distinguished financier, who was secretary of the Treasury, was also there. And they all stood around this unhappy merchant who had given his $250,000 subscription to Gen. Grant; this president of the Young Men's Christian Association, this member of the Union League, and this president of the Chamber of Commerce. He thought that would protect him. Not much! Not much! They took from that man's pocket in one sum $267,000 in money, and they divided it among themselves. [Great laughter.] Gentlemen, this no exaggeration of record, and I want to tell you it is a thing of which I have knowledge and means of knowledge."

The extract is cut from the Philadelphia Press of Friday, October 29, 1880. The State Sentinel, published at Dover, on the 30th of October, contains the same report in substance. The appearance of these two publications in journals near you and their having gone thus far without contradiction or correction, will I trust secure sufficient excuse for bringing them to your notice. Will you inform me whether you did see this statement in form or substance? It is hardly necessary to add that it is not meant to imply that I suppose, you did or would make such an utterance. My purpose is only to adopt the most natural, convenient mode to set right an injustice, greater perhaps, to you than to others.

Your obedient servant,
ROSCOE CONKLING.

The Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, United States Senator, Wilmington, Del.

WILMINGTON, DEL., November 15, 1880.—Dear Sir: I have just received your letter, dated the 13th inst., accompanied by a newspaper cutting, purporting to be an extract from a public speech made by me at Dover, in this State, "near the end of the recent canvass." I made but one speech at Dover, and spoke then without notes. Until I received your letter I never knew that any report had been made or published. The Press, from which you tell me you cut the extract, is a Philadelphia paper, and the Sentinel is published in Dover; both are republican in politics, and I have never seen a copy of either during or since the canvass. Reading for the first time the extract you send me, it appears to me so grossly inaccurate as to cause the belief it could not have been written by an honest person.

I remember well speaking of the case of Phelps, Dodge & Co. and the proceeding under which a great sum of money ($200,000) was wrongfully taken from their pockets. I described and denounced in severe terms "the moiety system" and the share which in this case accorded to the collector, surveyor and naval officer and to the informer (Jayne or Horne) and stated that "the senior senator from New York (Mr. Conkling) was understood to have received compensation as his counsel from Messrs. Arthur, Cornell and L. Ho for his services and assistance in the transaction." Also that my authority for this statement was derived from a document published by one of the houses of Congress accompanied by testimony and statements made in open debate on the floor of the House and never to my knowledge contradicted. I believe I also referred to a publication by Wm. P. Wood, an ex-treasury official, made in the New York Sun October 27, 1880, giving his account in full of the case. This I believe to be the "form and substance" of that part of the speech in question which had any reference to you or the moiety system. I shall be surprised to learn there is any error of fact in my statement and shall regret if the slightest injustice has been done to you, and if it there has been will feel myself bound to apply my proper remedy when my error has been disclosed to me. Your obedient servant,
T. F. BAYARD.

The Hon. Roscoe Conkling, United States Senator, Utica, N. Y.

MR. CONKLING STILL UNSATISFIED.

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 17, 1880.—Dear Sir: I read with surprise your letter of the 15th inst., just received. I inclosed you a statement, widely published in two newspapers, of definite charges said to have been publicly made by you, and made on your own knowledge of their truth. These charges were of unlawful and criminal conduct, imputed together to several persons, of whom I am one. I asked you whether you made the statements. This would seem to call for a frank disclaimer or admission. You answer nothing as to anyone concerned except me. As to my own denial is inferential, by impeaching the honesty of the reporter, and then you proceed with a new, quite different and erroneous statement which you say you uttered, as to me, in the form of alleging what "was understood."

Thus your response to a plain and warrantable inquiry is one which does not meet the inquiry, but consists chiefly of allegations far more serious, and though less injurious, offensive and untrue, basing them, you say, on publications and statements of which I have no knowledge. Do you wish to leave the matter here? If you think it desired, further attention, will you answer my question, namely, whether the published statement sent you in print was made by you.

Your obedient servant, ROSCOE CONKLING.
The Honorable T. F. Bayard, senator, Wilmington, Del.

SENATOR BAYARD MORE EXPLICIT.

WILMINGTON, DEL., November 21, 1880.—Dear Sir: Your letter dated the 17th inst., and post marked the 18th, was received this morning. You sent me on the 13th an anonymous communication, cut from a Republican newspaper in Philadelphia, purporting to be an extract from a public speech made by me at Dover near the end of the recent canvass. I should not have considered a statement so irregularly made worthy of notice, but as you did I replied to you instantly in a spirit of courtesy that I had never before seen or heard of the article; that it was so grossly inaccurate as to cause the belief it could not have been written by an honest person. But as I had spoken of the case of Phelps, Dodge & Co., and mentioned you in connection with it, I went on candidly to give you, as fully as memory enabled me, what I did say, which necessarily excluded what I did not say, and included "all of my moiety question."

The extract you sent me is untrue, and I believe maliciously so, and I can be surprised, as your letter had assured me you did not mean to imply that you supposed I did not know the truth, such an utterance, that any further statement than that contained in my letter could be desired. In that letter I also expressed my regret if the slightest injustice had been done to you, and that I should feel myself bound to apply any proper remedy when my error had been pointed out to me. Your letter in reply to this characterizes as my statement, "new, quite different and erroneous," and subsequently that my "response consists of allegations far more serious, and though less injurious, offensive and untrue, basing them on publications of which I (you) have no knowledge."

The publications to which I made reference, of which you say you have no knowledge, which relate to your alleged connection with the case of Phelps, Dodge & Co., you will find in the testimony of Mr. Wm. H. Dodge at page 226, and of the Hon. Noah Davis at pages 247 and 248 of House Miscellaneous Documents, No. 264, of first session, Forty-third Congress. The statement of Wm. P. Wood, I have already stated, was published in the New York Sun of the 27th ult.

To your inquiry, whether I "wish to leave the matter here," I can only reply that I have no wish on the subject but to be simply just to myself and others, and wherever that leads me I shall try to follow. Your obedient servant,
T. F. BAYARD.
