AUCTION SALES.

PUBLIC SALE

of THE Washington and Ohio R. R.

Under authority of a decree of the Circuit Court of Richmond city, rendered April 23, 1880, in the suit of Henry Lewis et al., vs. the W. & O. R. R. Company et al., and affirmed by the Court of Appeals of Virginia at its September term, 1881, the undersigned special Commissioners, will, at 12 o'clock on the 16th day of May, 1882, at the railroad depot of the Washington and Ohio Railroad Company, in the city of Alexandria, Va., offer at public auction the ENTIRE LINE OF THE WASHINGTON AND OHIO RAILROAD, including that partly and that wholly constructed, and also all and singular the works and property, real, personal and mixed, rolling stock, locomotives, cars, &c., and all rights, contracts and franchises of said Washington and Ohio Railroad Company.

The said property consists of a constructed line of railway in active operation from the city of Alexandria, Va., westward through the counties of Alexandria, Fairfax and Loudoun to Round Hill station, in Loudoun county, a distance of 51 1/2 miles, including a line connecting with the Washington and Alexandria Railroad. The road is also extended beyond Round Hill for a distance of three miles.

The other real property of the company consists of a large brick depot building and freight house, in the city of Alexandria, a round house, machine shop, car shop, car shed, store house &c., and about fifteen acres of land adjacent thereto; also eleven depot houses and lots at various intermediate stations between Alexandria and Round Hill.

According to the route surveyed the distance from Washington city to Point Pleasant, on the Ohio river, is three hundred and twenty-five miles, and passes through a country heavily timbered and of great mineral resources.

Terms: The entire property, real, personal and mixed, trackage, &c., is sold together, and for the same the purchaser must pay fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) of the purchase money in cash, and the residue in four equal annual payments, with interest from the day of sale, which said payments are to be evidenced by bonds which are to be secured by a deed of trust upon the property sold, to be executed upon the confirmation of the sale and conveyance to the purchaser.

This sale is subject to the lien of the deed of trust executed August 6th, 1878, to indemnify the county of Clarke, State of Virginia, against liability for the annual interest on the bonds of the said county for the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) "up to and until the time when said road shall be commenced, and under construction in said county of Clarke;" and against liability for the payments of the principal of said bonds in case they shall become due and payable before the road shall be commenced and under construction in said county, the said bonds falling due in the year 1892.

The purchaser will be entitled to the net profits of the road from the day of the sale.

BLOOD CURDLING STORY.—We find the following given the round of our exchanges:

There is a lonely place near Mt. Nebo, where Yellow Creek flows through a deep gorge, on one side of which is a cave which is regarded with horror by the superstitious people there, who tell the following story:

Twenty years ago two peddlers sought shelter in this cave from a blinding snow storm on a cold night. Before lying down to sleep one of them counted out a large quantity of gold and put it into his belt. He then lay down and was soon sleeping heavily.

His companion then arose and gazing into the face of his companion to see if he was sleeping, plunged the blade of his clasp knife into the peddler's breast. The dark blood gushed from the wound in a stream, the form stiffened, and all was over. The murderer secured the belt, slimy with blood, and poured out the gold. Suddenly he saw the blood forming into a pool where the gold lay, and he realized what an awful deed he had done to get the gold. He threw the body far into the cave, buried the gold, and rushed out of the cave, intending to go back some day. He cut the trees along his way to guide him when he should return. He was found miles away from the cave in the snow, with his hands and feet frozen, and was taken to the hospital at Cleveland. After a long sickness he told the story of his crime to his niece, and died. After the funeral the niece and her husband went to the cave by means of the trees, which were cut to guide them, but found that the roof of the cave had fallen in. They hired help and began removing the rocks and earth, when they were startled by unearthly voices and lights, and they gave up the search, the cave filling up after them. Since then many unsuccessful attempts have been made to secure the hidden treasure. One party went out and while sitting around the camp fire, the ghostly figure of a peddler appeared. The hair of one of the party turned perfectly white, and they say he died the next day. Another man worked alone to find the gold, but told Mr. Ditmar, in an excited way, that "there was no use hunting for the gold any more" and disappeared. "The people of Mt. Nebo have given up the search for the hidden fortune.—Steubenville (O.) Herald.
