The President and a Second Term.

It is now said that a prominent democratic politician of Rochester who is also an intimate personal friend of Mr. Cleveland, and knew him well when he was plain Lawyer Cleveland, of Buffalo, recently visited Washington to talk over the Rochester postoffice appointment with the President.

The gentleman was one of the most enthusiastic boomers for Cleveland in western New York during his campaigns for Governor and President.

Mr. Cleveland received him most cordially and spent an hour with him in general conversation, after the immediate business in hand had been disposed of.

They talked over old times and a variety of topics came up. Finally the Rochesterian rose to withdraw and remarked to the President that he had not been in Washington for twenty years and did not care to come again, "unless," he added, "I should come down to see you inaugurated for a second term."

The President immediately replied, with great emphasis and apparent sincerity: "My dear Colonel, if you wait for that event you will never come."

The Rochester man protested, but the President, putting his hand on his visitor's arm, said: "No earthly consideration could induce me to accept another term. When I finish my present term of office I expect to retire from public life."

The visitor says he left the President's presence fully impressed with Mr. Cleveland's sincerity and seriousness in what he said. The conversation was repeated to a Buffalo friend, who happened to be in Rochester one day last week.

The Buffalo News publishes the following reply to a telegram of inquiry as to the truth of the statement that Col. Dorsheimer had seen a letter written by President Cleveland positively refusing to a candidate for a second term:

To The "News," Buffalo: There is no truth in the statement. I never saw the letter mentioned. WILLIAM DORSHEIMER.

New York, April 25.

The following card from Mr. Dorsheimer appeared in the New York Star to-day:

"In view of the reports which have been sent out by the Washington correspondents of some western newspapers I think it proper to make the following statement: In January last the President said to me that he had been contemplating the making of a public declaration which would take him out of the field as a candidate in 1888. He said that he was led to this conclusion not only by personal considerations, but because he thought such a course would relieve him from imputations which were daily cast upon him, and which interfered with his usefulness in office. After listening to the President's observations and supposing that he wished an expression of my opinion, I told him that I thought such a declaration would be very unwise, and that it would increase his perplexities rather than diminish them. I also said it was not for him to say whether he would be a candidate for re-election or not; that that was a matter to be decided by the democracy who had honored him greatly, and who had a right to his services if they desired them. I also urged that no tradition would be broken by his candidacy for a second term, and that it might be most important to his party and the country that he should be re-elected. After a long conversation upon this subject, the effect of which was as I have stated, the matter was dropped and has not since been alluded to except in a casual manner. I have never had in my possession a letter from the President with reference to a second term, nor have I seen such a letter or the draft of one. I have not been in Washington since the 4th of March. If the President has arrived at the determination suggested in his conversation with me last January, I do not know it. But, knowing well his character, I am confident that if he thinks it his duty to decline a renomination he will make his intention public in a way which will render a misunderstanding of it impossible. In common with other personal friends, and as I believe, with the great body of the democracy and a large part of the independent and republican voters, I sincerely hope that Mr. Cleveland will accept the nomination which, according to present appearances, will be tendered to him without serious dissent."

Mrs. Margaret Arnold, a native of Richmond, Va., now living in New Holland, Ohio, will be one hundred and nine years old on the 4th of July next. She has two sisters, one living in Iowa, who is one hundred and twelve years old, and the other in Dakota, who is ninety-seven years of age. The combined ages of these sisters is three hundred and eighty years—an average of one hundred and six years each. It is doubtful if there are three members of another family in the United States who can best this record.

A Printer's Error.

Sweet are the uses of adversity, the printer's copy said, but he set it up, sweet are the uses of advertising. Sweet, indeed, to those who in sickness and suffering have seen the advertisement of some sovereign remedy, which upon trial has brought them from death's door. "The best thing I ever saw in my paper was the advertisement of Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" is again and again the testimony of those who have been healed by it of lung disease, bronchial affections, tumors, ulcers, liver complaints and the ills to which flesh is heir.
