

ALEXANDRIA. WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 22.

FROM WASHINGTON.

[Special Correspondence of the Alex. Gazette] WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22, 1887.

Among the latest congressional arrivals here is that of representative Townsend, of Illinois. Mr. Townsend is one of those congressmen who think everything the administration does is right, no matter how wrong it may be.

Among the members of the House at the Capitol yesterday was Mr. Randall. He looks paler than he did some time ago, but that change rather improves his appearance, and his face is now really strikingly handsome.

A New York paper contains a card from a subscriber stating that he belonged to a Union regiment that captured two flags from the 17th Virginia regiment at Gettysburg.

It is estimated at the Treasury that there will be a decrease in the surplus during the months of July and August, instead of an increase as was expected.

Mr. Bourke Cockran, of New York, who made the most eloquent speech delivered at the last national democratic convention, is out in a card to the republican postmaster at New York, in the papers of that city to-day, saying he does not complain of the exclusion of his political circulars from the mails.

Mr. Harrison, of Danville, says a Virginia banker, a short time ago, wrote to a bank in New York, asking it to negotiate the sale of some first class bonds of a Virginia town or county, and that the answer he received was as follows: "We regret to say that we find on examination that the securities on account of the repudiation of your State debt that it will be very difficult to do anything with your bonds."

After the grand display in London yesterday, judging from the accounts, the most magnificent and imposing ever before made in the world, and the patent manifestation of the enthusiastic esteem and affection of the English people for their excellent Queen, future reports of the disaffection of those people toward her and her government will receive scant credence.

As the newspapers have now pretty well settled the question of the successor of Associate Justice Woods, in favor of Secretary Lamar, the successorship of the Secretary has become the puzzle at the solution of which the press is now struggling.

The hearing upon the complaint of the Burton Stock Car Company was continued by the interstate commerce commission to-day.

The President has granted leave of absence, with full pay, and the time not to be deducted from that of the regular furlough, to all members of the Army of the Potomac in federal employ who may desire to attend the approaching re-union of that army.

Judge Edmund Waddill and M. W. Hazlewood are spoken of in connection with the republican nomination for the House of Delegates in Henrico.

A democratic member of the Legislature from one of the lower counties, expresses it as his opinion that the republicans will furnish Mahone with money in the fall campaign.

The Lynchburg Advance sent out a large number of inquiries in regard to the crops, and the answers summed up show that wheat is very promising, and is now being harvested, corn on an average, and tobacco, not more than half a crop planted, but is doing well.

Mr. Winfield Scott, who was cut by E. A. Levy in Richmond last Sunday night, was somewhat better yesterday. The muscles over the left lower jaw are severed, which gives a good deal of pain, and will scar Mr. Scott's face for life.

A heavy wind and rain storm visited Roanoke and vicinity yesterday doing considerable damage to property. The iron mine at Fox Mountain, on the Shenandoah Valley Railway, was struck by lightning yesterday evening, killing one man and injuring six others.

MR. BLAINE will probably receive the republican nomination for the next Presidency, and as the nominee, probably receive the votes of all republicans. But for all that, there is no doubt of the fact that in his own State the temperance people at present are not enamored of him by reason of his vain attempts to straddle the temperance question, and that the medical fraternity there are opposed to him because of his recent efforts in behalf of those who profess to cure diseases on the spiritualistic plan.

MR. BLAINE would not attend the recent Irish banquet in New York, but he was a prominent figure at Westminster Abbey, in London yesterday, during the celebration of Queen Victoria's jubilee.

NO MATTER what may be said of the President's letter to the late Mr. Beecher, his letter to Queen Victoria upon the occasion of her jubilee is a model of good taste, propriety and regard for safe, certain and conservative government.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

THE PRESIDENT'S CONGRATULATIONS. The following are the congratulations from the President to Her Majesty, Queen Victoria:

GROVER CLEVELAND, President of the United States of America. To Her Majesty Victoria, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and Empress of India: Great and Good Friend: In the name and on behalf of the people of the United States I present their sincere felicitations upon the arrival of the fiftieth anniversary of your Majesty's accession to the crown of Great Britain.

It is justice and not adulation to acknowledge the debt of gratitude and respect due to your personal virtues for their important influence in producing and causing the prosperous and well-ordered condition of affairs now generally prevailing throughout your dominions.

May your life be prolonged, and peace, honor and prosperity bless the people over whom you have been called to rule. May liberty flourish throughout your empire under just and equal laws and your government be strong in the affections of all who live under it, and I pray God to have your Majesty in his holy keeping.

Done at Washington this 27th day of May, A.D. 1887. GROVER CLEVELAND. By the President: T. F. BAYARD, Secretary of State.

IN THE ABBEY.

As the procession filed up the aisle of Westminster Abbey Dr. Bridge played the march by Handel, and the royal family slowly took their seats on the dais, the Queen occupying the coronation chair, over the back of which drooped the regal robes of state, which the Queen presently assumed, with the assistance of the mistress of the robes. The Abbey was a blaze of magnificence.

The rays of the sun, streaming through the colored windows, gave a rich and varied glow to an assemblage which in itself was as picturesque as the world has ever witnessed. The long spaces between the Abbey pillars glowed with the iridescence of many rainbows.

The Queen's dress was not striking. Across her breast she wore the broad blue ribbon of the Garter. The only other decoration she wore was that of the order of Coburg-Gotha.

Prince Frederick William, the German Crown Prince, in his white uniform was easily recognized by the populace, and he was applauded by Englishmen as he never has yet been in his own country. His manner was modest and affable and he captured the hearts of the crowds and bowed again and again in acknowledgment of the warmth of his reception.

The Prince of Wales, who wore the familiar red uniform, seemed insignificant in comparison. The Grand Duke Sergius, of Russia, who wore a curious but picturesque cape, was after the German Crown Prince, much the most striking figure.

The Crown Princess of Germany wore a robe, the front of which was of silver and gold embroidery of Turkish design, wrought with real silver and gold thread. The train was of pale French gray corded silk. The front was gracefully tied with loops and long ends of dark olive green velvet.

Among the dresses of the peeresses, that of the Duchess of Bedford was notable for softness and grandeur of color. It was of royal purple velvet, trimmed with antique Malines lace.

The Duchess of Manchester wore a dress of white and gold moire, worked with gold thread and gray silk in Arabesque design. The Duchess of Roxburgh wore a train of black broche gauze over white silk, draped with black lace.

The Duchess of Sutherland and daughter wore robes of broad striped satin and moire, draped with jetted gauze. Generally the dresses of the ladies in waiting outshone those of the royal personages present.

LORNE THROWN FROM HIS HORSE. The horse ridden by the Marquis of Lorne was restive while the procession was moving along Constitution Hill and threw the Marquis. He managed to alight unhurt. The Queen stopped her carriage and asked the Marquis if he was injured. He assured her he was not, walked alongside the carriage a short distance and then mounted another horse and continued his journey by a shorter route to the Abbey, having fallen behind and relinquished his place as one of royal escort to the Queen's carriage.

MAYOR HEWITT, of New York, early yesterday ordered the keeper of the City Hall to set the flags flying in honor of Queen Victoria's jubilee. This demonstration excited many adverse comments from Celtic sources.

REPORTED BREAK IN THE CANAL.—A break is reported in the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal on the four-mile level, near dam No. 6. Owing to the fact that the canal telephone it could not be ascertained whether the trouble is a break in the body of the canal or a washed-out waste weir. It is believed to be the latter. It is thought interruption to navigation will be short.

of those present were ladies. The entire stage was occupied by the chorus of the Oratorio Society of New York and an orchestra of sixty pieces. The Rev. Dr. DeCosta offered prayer, Erastus Wiman delivered an address, a jubilee ode by Robert C. Winthrop, of Boston, was read, and an address to the Queen adopted.

A number of prominent Irishmen throughout the city expressed indignation on learning that Mr. Cummings, the president of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, seconded the address to Queen Victoria adopted at the jubilee services at the Metropolitan Opera House. Gen. Kurwin, editor of the Tablet, said that if Mr. Cummings claimed to represent the feeling of his countrymen in his action he lied.

A solemn requiem mass was celebrated in the Church of Holy Innocents, over the victims who have died in the fifty years of English misrule. A coffin was placed in the church covered with a black pall, and having the inscription "I. H. S." There was no corpse in the coffin, which was placed there as a memorial of the thousands of Irishmen who had perished from British laws during the past fifty years.

The Queen rose early this morning and took a drive in the garden of Buckingham Palace. Subsequently Her Majesty received guests and then she visited the Duchess of Cambridge. In the afternoon she received the homage of the foreign princes and others and the presents sent in commemoration of her jubilee.

Thousands of children are marching to Hyde Park to attend the young people's fête that is to be held there to-day in honor of the Queen's jubilee. The day is bright and sunny and a refreshing breeze is blowing.

Among the presents received by the Queen was one of £75,000 subscribed by three million women. Her Majesty accepted this, and graciously thanked the donors. The Queen left Buckingham Palace this evening and went to Windsor Castle. At the different stations along the route she was cheered by enthusiastic crowds.

Nolidoff and the Count De-Montebello, the Russian and French Ambassadors, respectively, have addressed a note to the Porte on the subject of the Egyptian convention. TRAIN ROBBERS ARRESTED. GALVESTON, Tex., June 22.—A special to the News from San Antonio says: "U. S. Marshal Rankin telegraphed yesterday to district clerk Duval that three of the train robbers had been arrested and identified but were being held at Flatonia for further identification. It is believed here that Ham White, the celebrated stage robber, is implicated in the robbery. The officers are still diligently at work."

THREE PERSONS DROWNED. OMAHA, Neb., June 22.—Three persons were drowned in Lake Kearney, near Kearney, Monday night. A man named Anderson was boating with two young women. Failing to return late at night a search was instituted. The capsized boat was found and the three bodies recovered in twenty feet of water.

The market was very dull. Prices were steady in the general list, with an upward tendency in the early dealings, which afterward disappeared. At 11 o'clock the market was very dull and steady. Money easy at 6 1/2.
