

MEDICINAL.

WEAK NERVES

PAIN'S CELESTIAL COMPOUND is a Nerve Tonic which never fails. Containing Celery and Cocca, these wonderful nerve stimulants, it speedily cures all nervous disorders.

RHEUMATISM

PAIN'S CELESTIAL COMPOUND purifies the blood. It drives out the lactic acid, which causes rheumatism, and restores the blood-making organs to a healthy condition. It is the true remedy for Rheumatism.

KIDNEY COMPLAINTS
PAIN'S CELESTIAL COMPOUND restores the liver and kidneys to perfect health. This curative power, combined with its nerve tonic, makes it the best remedy for all kidney complaints.

DYSPEPSIA

PAIN'S CELESTIAL COMPOUND strengthens the stomach, and quiets the nerves of the digestive organs. This is why it cures even the worst cases of Dyspepsia.

CONSTIPATION

PAIN'S CELESTIAL COMPOUND is not a cathartic. It is a laxative, giving easy and natural action to the bowels. Regularly and surely follows its use.

Reminiscences of Mr. Conkling.
In social life Mr. Conkling was of the most hospitable and entertaining disposition, accessible to rich and poor alike. If you called on business he might not be able to receive you, and frequently could not as the interests of others and previous engagements prevented, but he would make an appointment with you, and he always kept it, no matter how unimportant your business might be to him or urgent or valuable to some others who were delayed on your account. He was always candid and honest about both persons and things. If he recollected persons—and he generally did—he addressed them as they were entitled; but if he had forgotten or didn't know them he frankly told them so.

Of the numerous personal incidents in his career one of the most notable was the encounter between himself and Senator Gordon, of Georgia, in the winter of 1880, which threatened to result in a duel. A nomination upon which Gordon was speaking was under consideration in executive session, when Conkling interrupted with the remark: "Go on with the calendar." A few moments later Gordon complained that Conkling had attempted to usurp the functions of the presiding officer, to which Con-kling replied that Gordon had "stated what was not true." Gordon said: "Very well, we will settle that hereafter," and Conkling rejoined: "We will settle it here." Mr.
Gordon then again said: "We will not settle here, but elsewhere." It was finally agreed that Senators Hamlin and Howe, as friends of Conkling, and Ransom and Mc-Donald, as friends of Gordon, should endeavor to adjust the difficulty. They did so, after two conferences, in an adroitly worded statement that attributed the trouble to a mutual misunderstanding. "It is not true," writes Major Poore, "that any communication passed between the parties, although it is known that Mr. Lamar counseled General Gordon, and that Senator Jones, of Nevada, and General Phil Sheriden were the advisers of Mr. Conkling."

Another well-remembered event was the feud between ex-Governor William Sprague, of Rhode Island, and Mr. Conkling, growing out of what Mr. Sprague deemed the too effusive attentions of the Senator to Mrs. Sprague, the brilliant daughter of Chief Justice Chase. It led to the retreat of Mr. Conkling from the Sprague residence at Canochet before the angry husband, who was armed with a shotgun. It is fair to add that the name of Mr. Conkling did not figure in the divorce proceedings that separated Mr. and Mrs. Sprague.

Mr. Conkling married the youngest sister of Horatio Seymour. Their only child was a daughter, who became Mrs. Oakman, wife of an official of the New York Central railroad. The Senator was so opposed to the marriage that he declined to countenance it with his presence. After his retirement from the Senate he made his home in New York city, while Mrs. Conkling continued to reside at Utopia. They subsequently met, but rarely until they were reunited at his death bed.

"Years ago I was employed by the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore railroad at the junction a few miles out of Baltimore," said a telegraph operator. "One afternoon an unusually handsome and athletic man entered the little station. 'Does the limited express for Washington stop here?' he inquired. 'No, sir, I replied. 'Can you stop it?' 'Not without orders from the main office,' I will explain my situation to you, said the stranger, 'in the hope you will do all in your power to aid me. I came from Washington to intercept at Baltimore a gentleman who is on his way from New York to the capital. He is on the limited express. It is of the greatest importance I should see him before he reaches Washington. A railway conductor directed me to the Union station, where he said the limited would stop, but I lost my way and wandered here after a long tramp.'
'Telling him I would see what I could do for him, I telegraphed to Philadelphia for permission to stop the express. 'You might use my name if you think it would be of any use,' said the gentleman. 'And your name is?' 'Conkling—Roscoe Conkling,' replied the gentleman. I flashed over the wire: 'Senator Conkling wants me to stop the limited express for him to get aboard.' The answer came back: 'How do you know it is Conkling?' Turning to him, I said:
'Philadelphia wants identification.' 'Will this do?' he asked, displaying a handsome gold watch, with the initials 'R. C.' engraved on the case. At the same time, either by design or chance, he removed his hat.
Grasping the key, I ticked these words to Philadelphia: 'Letters R. C. on gentleman's watch, but I know he's Conkling by his laughing red beard and the Hyperion curl of Nasel's cartoons.' Straightway the sounding rapped: 'Stop train by order H. F.
Kenney, general superintendent.'
'Conkling was profuse in his thanks. As the express shot around the curve with him safely on board, he made a courteous gesture of farewell to me.' Mr. S. S. Cox in giving some reminiscences of Mr. Conkling in reply to a question, 'Were you present when the contest occurred between Mr. Blaine and Mr. Conkling in the House?' said: 'Yes. It was the Thirty-ninth Congress. I was not a member, but yet happened to be present. It was a wild scene. It began with a little matter about Provost Marshal General Frye. It was not a great theme, but it aroused interesting excitement, inasmuch as Mr. Conkling had insinuated some dishonesty against the General. It was a hot debate. The democrats stood aloof and observed it, not without some satisfaction. It began, as a great many of these troubles do in Congress, about the report of the debate. Mr. Conkling charged Blaine with frivolous impertinence in putting into the debate an imputation upon his motives. It ended promptly some time in April, 1866, about this time twenty-two years ago. But it was renewed on the last day of April. It was a terrific encounter between two men who were thoroughly ironclad by that time. It began on that day with a demand from Mr. Blaine to have Gen. Frye's letter read. Mr. Blaine contempuously referred to Mr. Conkling as 'the member from the Utica district.'

'Then the debate began. Mr. Conkling in his measured, quiet, sardonic tone and humor threw his hot shot upon the member from Maine. Of course, the democrats enjoyed it. This debate showed Mr. Conkling in his best light of temper, so far as the House was concerned. Several gentlemen interposed to stop, if they could, the blows that were given and taken, but Mr. Blaine, who was skilled in the details and rules of the House, got the last word, and after repeating what he called 'the cruel sarcasm,' in which Mr. Conkling was an expert, he hoped that he would not be too severe in that mode of handling his innocent self.
'The contempt of that large minded gentleman is so willing; his haughty disdain, his grandiose swell, his majestic, superintending, overpowering, turkey gobbler strut has been so crushing to myself and all the members of this House that I know it was an act of the greatest temerity for me to venture upon a controversy with him.' Then Mr. Blaine referred to the man whom I suppose to be the most eloquent orator I have met in Congress—Henry Winter Davis. He referred to the 'little jocosse satire' of Theodore Tilton—that 'the mantle of David had fallen upon the gentleman from New York,' and that that gentleman had taken it seriously, and it had given an additional zest to his pomposity.' 'It is striking,' said Mr. Blaine 'Hyperion to a satyr, Theristes to Hercules, muted to marble, dappled to diamond, a singed cat to a Bengal tiger, a whining puppy to a roaring lion!' These phrases have never been repeated in the House with so much vindictive ani-mity. But the democrats enjoyed it. It was not their fight.
Mr. Thomas Neligen, of the patent office, in Washington, a friend of Mr. Conkling, received the following letter: from him three days after his struggle with the blizzard on March 12:
'2 WALL STREET, March 15, 1888.—My dear sir: Bless your kind soul. You know that one can't step into the snow without stepping into the newspapers. I had an ugly tramp in the dark—the lights out—from Wall street up over drifts so high that my head bumped against the signs, and dug out opposite the store doors suddenly letting a wayfarer down a foot or two, over fallen snarled telegraph wires and slippery places, with a blizzard in front not easy to stand against, and so cold as to close the eyes with ice, and drifts were not packed enough to bear up, in which one sank to the waist. Bumps and falls and strains and tugs made it quite an interesting excursion, but not one worth anybody's while to talk about. But many thanks to you for asking about it. I hope you and yours are well. Cordially yours,
'ROSCOE CONKLING.'

Syrup of Figs
Is Nature's own true laxative. It is the most easily taken, and the most effective remedy known to cleanse the system when Bilious or Costive; to dispel Headaches, Colds, and Fevers; to Cure Habitual Constipation, Indigestion, Piles, etc. Manufactured only by the California Fig Syrup Company, San Francisco, Cal. E. S. Leadbeater & Bro., agents Alexandria, Va.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.
Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP, for children teething, is the prescription of one of the best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and has been used for forty years with never-failing success by millions of mothers for their children. During the process of teething the child is impatient, irritable, and the child from pain, cures dysentery and diarrhoea, griping in the bowels, and wind-colic. By giving health to the child it saves the mother. Price 25 cents a bottle. - - - - - 25-1-1/2 W&B
