MEDICINAL.

Take Simmons Liver Regulator One Dose WORTH 100 Dollars

DEAR S. L. R.—FRIENDS: I consider one dose of Simmons' Liver Regulator worth $100. I was constipated, had headache, could eat nothing with satisfaction or appetite; had the blues and felt altogether out of sorts. I resorted to blue mass, calomel, quinine and all remedies; but got no relief, only obtained temporary relief. One dose of S. L. R. did me more good than the $100 worth of doctors and doctoring. R. S. CUFFLEY, T. C. MARKLEY.

I have been a teacher for twenty years; and during that time have had repeated attacks of headache, produced by torpid liver, and I have been entirely cured by the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator. I found it to be of so mild a character in its action as not to interfere, in the least, with my duties in the school room. To those similarly situated and subject to same, I cannot too highly recommend Simmons' Liver Regulator. E. A. CREEK, Campbellsville, Ky.

A Whale Chase by Indians

The Oregonian on Sunday published a thrilling account of a whale chase by Indians of the Neah Bay reservation off Cape Flattery, in which one canoe was lost and seven Indians were drowned. The whale was discovered spouting off the coast, and following the custom of the Indians, a report of the fact was made to the medicine man, who called a hurried council and allotted a number of picked men to the different canoes. Incantations were then held wherein a certain harpoon was blessed by the dreamer or medicine man and handed to the thrower, with the warning not to let it go from his hands except ordered by the dreamer himself, lest their efforts in the chase should prove abortive. The ceremonies over, the dreamer seated himself in the stern of the canoe, and the thrower, armed with the prophetic harpoon, which must be the first one hurled, took his position in the bow of the boat. They were then to run through the surf by the members of the tribe who were to accompany them, closely followed by two other canoes fully manned, which according to instructions, kept astern of the first, but close at hand. The whale was successful harpooned but at sundown it commenced to blow a regular norwester and the sea became so heavy that the canoes were obliged to disconnect and leave their victim to tire himself out battling with the air floats secured to him. That night the wind increased in velocity and the sea ran mountains high, and on the following day only two of the canoes were discoverable. By this time the whale was dead, and the surviving canoes towed him to land. In the evening the Indians of the surrounding country who had been reached by the runners assembled and a "cultus putch" was held. Formerly the cultus putch was a meeting of the Indians to trade among themselves, but since the advent of the whites it has degenerated into a drunken debauch. On this occasion the ceremonies opened with incantations over the eyes of the whale, after which the skin of the animal was passed around to be eaten by the guests raw, being considered by them a rare delicacy. After this the blowing bowl was brought forth, and the howling and mourning over the lost Indians was plainly heard a mile distant above the booming of the surf.

The Passing of the Straw Hat.

With the fifteenth of September, white hats of every tone and shape pass into the cold shadows of desuetude. The bells of fashion have been rung and straw headgear is a thing of the past. No man of right feeling or good taste will appear in public to-day with a hat whose tinge is higher than golden brown or gray. The peary gray high hat is above all things to be frowned upon. Its presence in the streets is a wanton defiance of the canons of custom. There is a certain kind of moral heroism in the citizen who refuses to shoot his white hat on the fifteenth of September. He looms up on the landscape amid the jeers of the populace a martyr to conscience. But it is proper that there should be a limit fixed and we have no sympathy with the victim of misguided obstinacy. Now comes a more serious question. Does the curfew which tolled for the white hat Sunday, also sound the knell of flannel shirts and yellow shoes? What a tremendous vista this issue opens up! It is a problem that might well enlist the genius of the conjurer. Its ramifications are vast and complicated. The Oriental sash, the silk belt, the clocked stocking, the boiled shirt, the stiff collar and the necktie are all involved. We are of the opinion that flannel shirts and yellow shoes ought to depart with straw hats. The summer is over and all attempts to disguise that fact are vain. The white hat must go and the flannel shirts must go.

Hark! The loud voiced bells Stream on the world around, With the full wind as it swells, Seas of sound. —N. Y. Herald.
