FOR BLOOD—
AND SKIN!

A. B. C. Chemical Co.,
Richmond, Va.

Having for a long time suffered from the effects of a horrible blood trouble, and after resorting to medical skill and other remedies without benefit, I tried "A. B. C. Alterative." I have been entirely restored, and it affords me pleasure to attest its virtues. It is evidently a very great tonic and alterative, and I recommend every suffering from blood trouble, to try it.

A. H. Stephens' Romance.
There was always much speculation during the life of Alexander H. Stephens why he never married, nor did this speculation cease after he had gone to the grave a celibate. Johnson & Browne's "Life of Alexander H. Stephens" gives one version, and the News, upon the authority of the lady interested, gives another version, but as to which is the best founded, or whether there is some foundation for both versions, the reader must draw his own conclusions.
"The Life of Alexander H. Stephens" alluded to says that when Mr. Stephens was a teacher at Madison, Morgan county, Ga., in the fall of 1832 he lost his heart. It says: "One little episode not noted here, or even stated by him until nearly forty years after this occurrence, we may briefly advert to. One of the pupils at this school was a young girl, lovely both in person and character, from whom the young teacher learned more than is to be found in the books, and whom he grew to love with a depth of affection all the greater that it was condemned to hopelessness and silence. The poor student, with no prospect of worldly advancement, the invalid, who looked forward to an early death, must not think of marrying—must not speak of love. And he never spoke of it to her nor to any until a generation had passed, and then to but one friend."
The other version of Mr. Stephens' early love is located in Savannah, where he visited in the fall of 1834, and the authority of the story is Mrs. Caroline Egler Maria Smith, a lineal descendant of Lord Richard Percival Bland. Mrs. Smith says that when Mr. Stephens was in Savannah he met herself, then the wife of Edward Thomas Courtenay, her unmarried sister, Belle, and their father, and after the meeting Mr. Stephens asked permission to pay his addresses to Mr. Bland's daughter, Mr. Bland, on his return home, related to his daughter Belle what Mr. Stephens had said, and she very politely said that she would not receive Mr. Stephens for a suitor, whereupon Mr. Courtenay spoke up and said: "I think my wife is the younger looking and the most handsome, and I would not be surprised if Mr. Stephens fell in love with my wife, instead of your Belle." The father of the ladies, patting his married daughter on the shoulder in an affectionate way, said: "I would not be surprised if Courtenay is right; I shall see Mr. Stephens and bring him around to tea this evening, and then we will find out."
Later in the afternoon Mr. Bland met Mr. Stephens in the office of Mr. McLaws and asked him to which of the ladies he preferred, and Mr. Stephens described the personal appearance of Mrs. Courtenay; and remarked that she was the only lady he had ever met and loved at first sight; to which confession Mr. Bland made reply that the lady in question had been married. Mr. Stephens rejoined that he did not care if she had been married; that he desired to renew his request to pay his addresses to her, and then Mr. Bland said: "My daughter's husband is living, and you see how vain your request is." A shade of pain passed over the face of Mr. Stephens, and the invitation to tea was declined.—Savannah News.

A Prolific Family.—"Are you descended from one of the twenty-three?" is the first question asked when you introduce Mr. Camp to Mr. Camp, which is explained as follows:
Thomas Camp, of Rutherford county, N. C., had ten sons and one daughter by his first wife. He married again, as his second wife, Miss Margaret Carney, of North Carolina, and had by her ten sons and two daughters. Then he died. The 23 children of Thos. Camp were, as might have been expected, a prolific and stalwart race. Only one of them, a daughter, approached the father's record, however. She had 23 children.
At a reunion a few years ago in Douglas county, Ga., fully 3,000 descendants were present. Monday at the residence of the late Major William A. Camp, near Dalton, Ga., assembled all of his seven sons and their descendants in a family reunion, the occasion being their mother's seventieth birthday.
Mr. W. A. Camp, of Augusta, Ga., is compiling a record of the descendants of his great grandfather, Thomas Camp, of North Carolina, and wishes all the Camps to write him a history of their branch of the tree.

A planter in Alpharetta, Ga., has an acre of cotton, every stalk of which is of a deep red color, leaf, boll and bloom. This novel crop is the product of seed derived three years ago from two stalks of red cotton found in a cotton field. There is a fortune in this variety if it can be perpetuated.

MEDICINAL.

Take
Simmons
Liver
Regulator
One Dose
WORTH
100 Dollars

DEAR S. L. R.—FRIENDS: I consider one dose of Simmons' Liver Regulator worth $100. I was constipated, had headache, could eat nothing with satisfaction, and appetite, had the blues and felt altogether out of sorts. I resorted to blue mass, calomel, quinine and all remedies suggested, but only obtained temporary relief. One dose of S. L. R. did me more good than the $100 worth of doctors and doctoring. Respectfully,
T. C. MANKLEY.

I have been a teacher for twenty years, and during that time have had repeated attacks of headache, produced by torpid liver, and I have been entirely cured by the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator. I found it to be of so mild a character in its action as not to interfere, in the least, with my duties in the school room. To those similarly situated and subject to same, I cannot too highly recommend Simmons' Liver Regulator.
