

ALEXANDRIA, VA. TUESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 21.

Mr. ELLYSON, chairman of the State democratic committee, has issued an address to the voters of Virginia, urging them to support the regular democratic nominees at the approaching election.

"It is our duty, as it is our duty, we will give it to the highest, even until the blood shall run in streams if necessary, till the mingling of white men's blood and black men's blood our country shall be the grandest and our government the greatest and most lasting the world has ever seen or will see."

This utterance of itself alone, but especially when supplemented by the facts that Langston is recognized by his race in Virginia as their leader, and has been told by Mr. Harrison that he has the whole support of the administration, should be sufficient to make every right thinking white man in the State do as Mr. Elyson advises.

"Do not vote against us because heretofore you have been a republican. In this election you will have an opportunity to vote for the republican principles advocated by a Lincoln, a Sumner or a Greeley. Weigh the issues and see if they do not affect you as much as they do any democrat in Virginia."

Do not let past party affiliations swerve you from recognizing that the future of Virginia, and the care of your own future, depends upon the maintenance of the rights of self-government. Do not let your vote attempt to fasten upon your fellow-citizens as well as upon the manifold evils that would flow from the establishment of a judicial oligarchy. We hope to welcome your assistance in our efforts to defeat measures so injurious to our individual prosperity, so detrimental to our common name, so violative of our form of government and so contrary to the ties of the ties."

MR. SPEAKER REED'S "LITTLE RECORD" in the Constitution of the United States that all men are equal. A man occupying Mr. Reed's prominent position should be better informed. The Constitution doesn't say a thing about the quality of men, except that they shall be taxed equally, which intention Mr. Reed and his party flout and regard in the most audacious manner. The Declaration of Independence, however, does say that all men are created equal. But that the equality soon becomes lost, at least in the estimation of the republican party, is proved by the fact that while that party gives the widows of the officers of the federal army large pensions, some to the amount of two thousand dollars a year, it only gives those of the brave privates, who bore the brunt and burden of the war, the small sum of twelve dollars a month. No, the Constitution doesn't say that all men are equal, and Mr. Reed shouldn't tell people it does; and he knows they are not equal, for he is perfectly aware of the fact that while he does not equal even some men of his own party in the qualities of bravery, honesty, culture and natural ability—he excels them in that of girth and in the size of his shoes.

THE PRICE of cigars has already advanced in consequence of the new tariff, and now, for the same reason, the price of beer has advanced in Buffalo to $7 a barrel, and that advance will probably become general throughout the country. The brewers say they must have Canadian malt to make good beer, and that the increased duty on that article, imposed by the new tariff bill, compels them to charge more for their beer now than formerly. As the retail dealers can hardly raise their price, and as they cannot afford to lose, they will of course put more froth and less beer in their glasses and thus constantly remind their customers of the benefits of a bill that imposes an increased tax on such a mild drink as beer, but allows the tax on whisky to remain unchanged.

THE WORD has not only come from Washington that the negroes in Virginia must vote for the anti-democratic congressional candidates, but the poor, ignorant creatures have been deceived into the belief that if those candidates be elected such of their race as were slaves will be granted pensions. They have been told by their leaders that such will be the case, and they are silly and foolish enough to believe it as implicitly as though it came from the mouths of their "spell" doctors.

FROM WASHINGTON.

[Special Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.] WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 21, 1890. A member of the Tammany Hall democracy of New York, here to-day, says that Mr. Fairchild, Mr. Cleveland's Secretary of the Treasury, and Mr. Stetson, Mr. Cleveland's law partner, have joined the mushroom republican combination to defeat the Tammany and regular democratic ticket in New York city, and that the democrats of that city will compel Mr. Cleveland to take one side or the other in the political fight now in progress there, and will contest against them those who are not with them.

Among the strangers here to-day is ex-Senate Senator Meredith of the Alexandria, Virginia, district, who was prominently spoken of as a candidate for the democratic congressional nomination in his district, but who as soon as General Lee was nominated tendered his support, has been advocating his election ever since, and with General Eppa Hunton, spoke for him at Fairfax Court House yesterday. He says from what he learned at Fairfax he thinks the county is safe for General Lee. Regarding his own county, Prince William, he says it will give its usual democratic majority, and he is confident of General Lee's election by a decisive majority. In respect of the story of his being unopposed recently at Stafford Court House when his letter denouncing the action of the Stafford convention was read to him, he said that so far from being nonplused, he had responded on the instant that he had no apology to make for that letter, written, as it was, in the heat of a contest, but that it was a private letter, written to Mr. Hume, and that he was never more surprised than when he learned it had been made public.

Mr. Robert Porter, of the Porter Brewing Company, of Alexandria, told the GAZETTE'S correspondent to-day that he had united with Mr. Albert Carry, of this city, in a joint stock company, with a capital of $500,000 for the purpose of erecting one of the best and largest breweries in the country. Among the directors of the company are Mr. Porter and Mr. Strangman, of the Porter Brewing Co., of Alexandria. The Washington company has nothing to do with the Alexandria company. Mr. Porter says the latter company will at once proceed to enlarge and improve their brewery at a cost of not less than sixty thousand dollars.

The U. S. Supreme Court resumed its session to-day, all the seats on the bench being filled except that made vacant by the death of Associate Justice Miller. Justice Field is now the senior Justice and occupies the seat of the late Justice Miller. A case in which Mr. Cleveland is counsel is high up on the docket of the court, and the ex-President is expected here during the next few days.

A letter received here from Mr. Moran, editor of the Enterprise, a Loudoun county, Va., newspaper, says that while the democrats of that county are practically solid, the republicans, having no regularly nominated candidate, are divided, and that Gen. Lee's majority there is estimated at from eight hundred to a thousand.

The fall meeting of the Washington Jockey Club commenced to-day at Benning, near this city. A large number of noted horses are entered, and the attendance for a first day was more than fair. Among those present were more than the usual number of amateurs. U. S. Consul Gillman at Jerusalem reports to the Department of State under date of September 22 that three American locomotives intended for the new railway from Jerusalem to Jaffa have arrived at Jaffa. The Consul says it must interest the citizens of this country to know that the first locomotives ever used in that ancient land were made here.

The following was the only change in the 4th class postoffice of Virginia that was made to-day: Roanoke, Madison county, Rebecca C. Sommers appointed postmistress, vice G. A. Sommers deceased.

DEMOCRATIC ADDRESS. Hon. J. Taylor Elyson, chairman of the democratic State committee, has issued an address to the democratic voters of Virginia. This paper is a strong appeal to the members of the party to organize and poll their full vote at the approaching election for Congressmen. The address opens with a quotation from the inflammatory speech made by John M. Langston in Washington before he was seated. On that occasion Langston's words were as follows:

"It is our duty, as it is our duty, we will give it to the highest, even until the blood shall run in streams if necessary, till the mingling of white men's blood and black men's blood, our country shall be the grandest and our government the greatest and most lasting the world has ever seen or will see."

Commenting on this utterance Chairman Elyson says: "Surely the republican party, by fastening such representations upon Virginia, not only inflicted a wrong upon her people, but offered an insult, the repetition of which should be rendered impossible. It is within your power to do this. At the coming election you should exercise that power to the utmost, not only to resent the insult, but to stigmatize and rebuke the many other unjust and injurious measures proposed by the republican party during the session of Congress just ended. So apparent are many of these injustices and so obvious are they to the people that the outlook for democratic success in November is most assuring. We see but one source of danger—that is the possibility of overconfidence. Overconfidence begets indifference. Indifference almost certainly follows indifference. Democratic inaction is more to be dreaded than republican activity. In this contest we represent the rights and liberties of the people, and we have the voter. It depends upon you whether we shall also have the victory."

On sending a note of warning against the Force Bill Chairman Elyson says: "But the crowning injury of the republican party was the passage of the Force bill. That bill is now pending in the Senate, and is a measure so paltry, so revolutionary, so subversive of the rights of the people, so tainted with moral taint, and so destructive to republican institutions as to defy all words to impeach or to amend them." It is sensible object is to secure fair elections of members of the House of Representatives. Its real object is to insure the election of republican members of Congress from the Southern States.

Mr. Elyson then reviews at length the several other injurious measures the republicans attempted to pass at the last session of Congress. The address closes in these words: "Let each and all of us—those to the manor born—and those who have recently moved to the State, remember that this is not a fight of party against party, but of the people against power, and let our efforts be worthy of the cause."

THE OCEAN'S FLOOR—Here is an end of all romance about hidden ocean depths. The whole ocean is now mapped out for us. The report of the expedition sent out from London for the purpose of ocean surveys has recently been published. Nearly four years were given to the examination of the currents and the floors of the four great oceans. The Atlantic, we are told, drained, would be a vast plain with a mountain range in the middle running parallel with our coast. Another range crosses it from Newfoundland to Ireland, on the top of which lies the submarine cable. The ocean is thus divided into three great basins, no longer "unfathomed depths." The tops of these sea mountains are two miles below a sailing ship, and the basins, according to Reclus, almost five miles. These mountains are whitened for thousands of miles by a tiny, creamy green of shell, lying as thickly on their sides as frost crystals on a snow bank. The deepest parts are red in color, heaped with volcanic masses. Through the black, motionless waters of these abysses move gigantic abnormal creatures never seen in upper currents.—St. Louis Republic.

THERE'S NO NEW SOUTH—If Porter has taken a correct census of the South all the talk of the "New South" is a gross delusion and Henry W. Grady was a visionary. There is no new South, for the South has not grown so fast in the last ten years as it did while reconstruction was still going on, while the wounds of war were still to be healed and when many Northern men were afraid to venture into the Southern States. Does anybody believe that? No wonder the Southern people in Washington denounce Porter's lying census. No wonder they sympathize with New York in its efforts to get justice. These people want justice for themselves, and when Congress meets it will go hard if they don't get it.—N. Y. Herald.

He is certain to do it, if many republicans abstain from voting, as they talk of doing down our way."

A LIVE WIRE.—Two men who were repairing electric railroad wires in Newark, yesterday, and were perched on the top of a tall trestle mounted on a wagon, put so much strain on a wire that it broke the cross arm from the pole and fell into the street, dragging the men with it. Both men were badly burned. This was not the end of the trouble, however, for the heavily charged wire to which the bracket was attached came into contact with a pair of mules, and both of them pranced around for a moment and then fell over on their sides. An inquisitive dog ran out to see what was going on, and in his ardor wagged his tail against the protruding wires. There was a flash of blue light, an odd, somewhat electric and the dog turned a full somersault and then started down the street yelping. A fireman put on rubber gloves and moved the wire out of the way, and the mules were soon completely recovered from the effects of the shock. Veterinary Surgeon Sattler is reported as having made an extraordinary discovery on Saturday. A horse was shocked in Springfield avenue, and was taken to his stable for treatment. It is by twisting in the stall for hours afterward. He told of golden gates and streets of pearls, and of friends seen and recognized. He described the white throne, and in addition expounded the Scripture. A PREACHER ARRESTED—Again Rev. Thomas B. Butt has bobbed to the front. Since his troubles at Wilton, the little Jersey town where George Frampass decorated the preacher, and his wife left for her mother's house, Rev. Butt has been on a still hunt for his wife. He thought he found the woman on Saturday last at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Younger, in Tiggs. The preacher found the house closed for the time-being, and defying bolts and bars he jumped the fence and forced his way upstairs. Here he met his mother-in-law.

When ordered to get out of the house Rev. Butt declined, and to Mrs. Younger's more energetic argument with a brooms broom he replied by assailing her and cutting open her ear. In answer to the best woman's cries of "Murder, police," Police-man Stout appeared and after much trouble escorted Mr. Butt to the station, where he was given a hearing and held in $500 bail to answer the charge of assault and battery on Mrs. Younger.

The preacher was hunting for his wife, and he charges his mother-in-law with having induced her to leave him. The woman did not run away with Frampass. Last Monday the wily preacher came to the city and kidnapped one of his little girls. He carried her off to Wilton. He proposes to have all his children again, even if he has to sacrifice his mother-in-law and all his poor relations. Butt is surely on the war-path.—Thila Record.

REPEATED OF HER OLD BATH.

A young woman in rather shabby attire was seen loitering along the pier alone at 5:30 o'clock yesterday evening. For about half an hour she walked up and down the pier. By way of relieving the monotony she would occasionally throw some bits of wood into the water. She then suddenly jumped over the string piece and screamed lustily for assistance. George P. Faure and William Bynes heard her cries, and Bynes lowered a long boat from the side of the pier. The woman's suicide took hold of it with both hands and held on until she was lifted out. She was then taken to Bellevue Hospital, where she said she was a German, but could not talk any English. It was learned that her name was E. Newman, and that she was a domestic. She said she was out of employment and had had nothing to eat all day. She is twenty years old and has no home. Two weeks ago the same young woman was seen wandering about the pier where she jumped off that evening.—N. Y. Star.

A REMARKABLE CASE—Ten days ago

Mrs. Caroline Settle, a widow residing at New Holland, Pa., received a letter from her daughter, Helen, who had been living at Mount Vernon, O., for a year, saying that she was saving up money with which to pay her passage home shortly. To the amazement of the mother a box arrived at New Holland on Sunday evening, addressed to her in which was the body of her daughter; apparently lifeless, marked "suicide." Mrs. Settle wanted a post-mortem examination made, but Doctors Bushong and Kohler declined to make it because the usual sign of death—rigidity—was absent, and they feared that she might be alive. No explanation of the alleged death accompanied the remains, and the mother is still keeping the body in hope of its returning life. The girl was 20 years old. She now looks as her father is warm, and her arms, legs and feet are not in the least rigid. At the latest accounts her body bore the same appearance, and the authorities are instituting a rigid investigation. The doctors are quite nonplused, as the trip in a close box from Ohio to New Holland would have been sufficient to have caused death, even had there been no suicide. Sending the body with no other explanation than that of "suicide" has excited all sorts of speculation.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

NEW YORK, October 21.—The stock market this morning was quiet to dull, with irregular and generally insignificant movements in prices, a slight improvement being followed by a general decline. The opening was made at irregular and generally on slight changes from last night's figures, and the early trading showed slight further gains for almost everything traded in. As usual of late, however, the dullness invited pressure from the bears, and under free offerings for the short account prices receded, and not only were all the early gains wiped out but fractional losses were sustained all over the list. There was a partial rally toward the end of the hour, but at 11 o'clock the market, while quiet, was barely steady and generally at small fractions under opening prices.

Potatoes, Apples, Chestnuts, Chickens, all kinds of Vegetables and Fruits are wanted. Mill-feed is scarce and 25c per ton higher. Hay is without change and is offered liberally.
