AMERICAN BLOOD PURIFIER
Alterative, Tonic AND Expectorant
FOR BLOOD AND SKIN!
A. B. C. Chemical Co., Richmond, Va.
Having for a long time suffered from the effects of a hereditary blood trouble, and after resorting to medical skill and other remedies without benefit, I tried "A. B. C. Alterative." It has been entirely restored, and it affords me pleasure to attest its virtues. It is decidedly a very great tonic and alterative, and I recommend any suffering from blood trouble, to try it.

To Reduce a Swelled Head
A convalescent Habonite stepped into Young's Hotel, in Boston, one morning and confided to the tonsorial artist that his head was swollen from the effects of the previous night's debauch, and asked if he could not, metaphorically speaking, soak his head for him with a wet towel.
The barber immersed the towel in almost boiling hot water and placed it across his customer's brow.
"How does it feel?" he asked, as the steam began to rise.
"First class; give us some more," replied the man under the towel, and the barber continued the soaking process for fully half an hour, till at last, when he took the towel off, the face of his customer presented the appearance of a boiled lobster, and the owner of the swelled head declared that he never felt better in his life—that all the dizziness and the swelling had departed and left his cranium clear as a bell. After that whenever he had been on a racket he came on the following morning to have his head soaked. He told his friends about it, and they came also, and others, seeing its soothing effect, became regular applicants for the laying on of the hot-water towel.
The men who had not been and who never would go on, hearing how delicious the sensation of the hot-water towel was, tried it, liked it, and thereafter asked for it.
Thus the fad became established in Boston and spread from there to other cities, and now it is a regular custom in all the big hotels to apply a hot-water towel after the shave, and now it is being established in New York.

Two prominent tonsorial parlors on Broadway have already following suit.
The time is at hand when the hot towel custom will be universal, for the simple reason that it is a delightful and most refreshing process. Not many New York barbers yet understand how to administer the hot towel to a customer. To be done properly, not one towel alone, nor two, should be applied, but at least half a dozen, completely covering the face with the steaming cloth, and replacing each towel as it becomes cool with another fresh from the hot water faucet. A dresser's finger creeps over the nose. On the hottest day in summer, as well as the coldest in winter, one goes forth feeling much better for his steaming. The philosophy of the Boston shave is this: The hot towel draws the blood away from the brain to the face, making in summer the skin much warmer than the air, which, when the towel is withdrawn, strikes the skin cool and refreshing.
In winter the blood heated by the towel offers the same resistance to the cold as if it were heated by exercise, and the unpleasant chapping of the skin which sometimes follows the old-fashioned shave is obviated. The steam also removes the oil which exudes from the skin, and leaves the complexion clear and fresh; therefore, a man feels better, thinks better, talks better and works better after the Boston shave.—New York World

Mr. Dashley—Sorry you could not come to our little "house-warming" last evening. Mr. Hesley Peck—I'm sorry, too. But we had a little house-warming ourselves. In fact, the house got too hot to hold me.

HAS TWENTY-THREE CHILDREN.—To Chas. Mortimer, a prominent real estate agent of St. Paul, Minn., was born a day or two ago his twenty-third child, a fine girl, whom the proud father declares is as welcome as the first. Mr. Mortimer was married at the age of twenty-two to a widow named Mrs. Hayes, who had two little boys, and who, in ten years of married life with Mr. Mortimer, bore him eight children. She died when her youngest was a week old, and in another year Mr. Mortimer married a Miss Wallace, by whom he became the father of triplets, whose birth cost the mother her life. The widower then remained such for nearly five years, when, meeting a Mrs. Richardson, who, with her three children, was visiting friends in this city, he fell in love with the lady, a widow of some standing, and married her soon after. This union has been blessed with five children, making Mr. Mortimer the father of eleven girls and twelve boys, all living. He is still a few months on the sunny side of fifty, and in spite of his numerous responsibilities, boasts there is no happier man in the State. The household is said to be one of the best regulated and most harmonious to be found anywhere. There are now, however, only fifteen left at home, owing to the marriage of the eight eldest, five of whom are still living in St. Paul. It is somewhat remarkable that not one of Mr. Mortimer's married children has a child, which he deplores with every appearance of sincerity, as, he says, he fully expected to be the grandfather of at least a hundred.

It is said that the address of the Papal Zoavees to the Comte de Paris at Montreal, which was not given to the press, pledged the members of that organization to give their hearts and arms for the restoration of the temporal power of the Pope.

Dear S. I. R.—Friends: I consider one dose of Simmons Liver Regulator worth $100. I was constipated, had headache, could eat nothing with satisfaction or appetite; had the blues and felt altogether out of sorts. I resorted to blue mass, calomel, quinine and all remedies suggest ed, but only obtained temporary relief. One dose of S. I. R. did me more good than the $100 worth of doctors and drugging. Respectfully,
T. C. MARLEY
I have been a teacher for twenty years, and during that time have had repeated attacks of headache produced by torpid liver, and I have been entirely cured by the use of Simmons Liver Regulator. I found it to be of so mild a character in its action as to interfere in the least with my duties in the school room. To the same lady situated and subject to same, I cannot too highly recommend Simmons Liver Regulator. E. A. CHEEK, Campbellville, Ky.
