THE JUDGE OF HANOVER COUNTY SPEAKS.
Tim. Howard suffered for three years with lung and throat troubles, and last spring was thought by his neighbors to be dying. I heard of his condition and gave him A. B. C. Tonic. Its effect was magical. In a very short time he was able to leave his bed, and now regards himself as a well man. Others in this vicinity have taken the "Tonic" with pronounced benefit.
Very respectfully,

Belle Boyd, the Rebel Spy
A dispatch from Saratoga, N. Y., says "Belle Boyd, the Rebel Spy," went to Hookick Falls a short time ago to give an entertainment there. She was accompanied by her husband, Nat. R. High, and three children, and they all went to the Commercial House, where the children were suffered to remain while the father and mother gave performances in neighboring places. "Belle" several times sent money to the hotel proprietress for board for her children, but not enough to pay the full board, and so Mrs. Turner, proprietress of the hotel, entered complaint to the Postmaster so as to put the children upon the town, and a warrant was issued for the arrest of "Belle Boyd." She was arrested in Catskill and taken back to Hookick Falls. On the trial it came out that the $10 a week which had been sent for the care of the children had been applied toward the payment of a board bill previously contracted and which was partly due, and that the children had been unjustly given to the charge of the Postmaster. The Justice decided that there was no cause of action. "Belle Boyd" comes from an excellent West Virginia family. She is 45 years old, and is of striking appearance. As a girl she won a reputation as a horseback rider. She rode in man's clothes as often as in woman's dress. She was in sympathy with the rebellion, and gave frequent proof by dangerous service of her devotion to the South. When she learned of some Federal movement which she thought would be valuable for Stonewall Jackson to know, she rode by night in the midst of dangers and gave him the information. From that time she was attached to Jackson's Brigade. She rode across the battle field of Port Royal and carried dispatches to Jackson which sent him in pursuit of Banks. She became the pet of the Confederate army. Later, Jackson recommended her to Mr. Davis, and he commissioned her to carry an important document to England. She sailed from Wilmington on the steamer Greyhound as one of the crew. The vessel was captured by the steamer Massachusetts, and she, with the crew, was taken to Boston and imprisoned. All the prisoners were court-martialed and shot except the daring Belle Boyd. When her sex became known her sentence was commuted to banishment through the influence of Lieut. S. W. Harding her captor. Belle went to London, and soon after Harding also went there and married. Harding died soon after. She returned to this country and married a Philadelphia. Then she went to Texas and there married again. This her third husband, successively, Cole Younger, Sam Starr, and Jim Starr, the two Stars being full blooded Chickaw Indians. All these husbands, as well as herself, were hardy with weapons. Several years ago she was wounded and nearly killed a man whom she charged with having made improper advances to her daughter. Of late years "Belle" has devoted her time to lecturing, at which she has been moderately successful. Nat. R. High, her seventeenth husband, is also her business manager. He declares that his wife, "Belle Boyd, the Rebel Spy," will see Mistress Turner, proprietress of the Commercial Hotel for damage.

AN ELEPHANT'S REVENGE.—Fanchon, an elephant, who for the past year has been undergoing a course of training as a track elephant, was on Saturday in New York put through a more severe lesson than usual. After the elephant's owner, Mr. Hermann Rolche, and the assistant trainer had put the beast in his stall at the stable and departed, the elephant became very sullen, and, breaking out, made his way to the floor above, where the wife of the colored stableman was getting into the kitchen, the quadruped smashed everything within reach, making a total wreck of the apartment. The woman succeeded in closing the kitchen door, keeping the elephant there, where, after an hour, he was secured without doing further damage.
