

MONDAY EVENING OCT. 2, 1893.

change in the tariff, but, as its president says, because there is not now and has not been for several years any money in the woolen business. And yet during all that time the woolen, has been among the most protected of all protected industries in the country. It might be better if the tax on raw wool were removed; it could certainly be no worse.

WHILE every right thinking man must condemn Mr. Breckinridge for hypocrisy, the fact that his accuser has publicly and without necessity taken up her abode in a home for fallen women, should be enough of itself alone to deter any right thinking jury from awarding her pecuniary damages.

THE MONEY that has been spent by people of this State in trips to Washington for the vain purpose of getting employment in the federal service amounts to no inconsiderable sums, and its waste is already regretted by some of them, and will be more so before the close of the coming winter.

FROM WASHINGTON. (Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.) WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 2. Officials of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway direct attention to the fact that in dispatches from Memphis, Tenn., as to a railroad strike, because of a reduction of wages, the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad has been confounded with the Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern system, now called the Newport News and Mississippi Valley Railroad. There has been no reduction of wages and no strike on the Chesapeake and Ohio. On the other hand everything is prosperous.

Representative Marshall of Virginia was not in his seat in the House to-day, having gone to Spotsylvania Court-house to whom up the democrats of that county for Mr. O'Ferrall.

It is understood that the policy of the administration in respect of Hawaii has been determined upon and that it meets the approval of the chairmen of both the Senate and House committees on foreign affairs. It is the wise one of allowing the people of those islands to manage their own affairs in their own way, and to prevent any foreign government from interfering with them.

Representative Crain of Texas says Mr. Quincy of Massachusetts, ex-Assistant Secretary of State, put the consultation where they would do Massachusetts the most good. He will demand an investigation.

At a funeral in Kingston, Wis., on Saturday, the floor of the house in which services were held gave way, and two persons were badly injured. Two hundred people of Austin Tex., have petitioned Governor Hogg to prevent the total bankruptcy of the State by accepting the sugar bounty which is accumulating in Washington, and which he has refused.

A series of demonstrations against the House of Lords has been arranged in several large English cities, and the National Liberal League has been urged not to delay in starting an agitation against the peers.

It is understood that the Rockefeller and the Standard Oil Company are back of the Steel and Iron Improvement Company, of Pittsburgh, which intends erecting an immense steel and iron manufacturing plant at Ashtabula, Ohio.

The final settlement in the dispute between France and Siam was concluded at Bangkok yesterday. The convention will be signed on Tuesday morning, and in the afternoon M. de Villois, France's special envoy, will leave that city, probably for Saigon.

The book of Treasury receipts and disbursements for the last fiscal year has just been issued. It shows that in this city the customs collections amounted to but $73.45. The collector received a salary of $214.82 for the year and his deputy $1,200. Of course the officers have other duties to perform beside the collection of customs.

Thousands of Irishmen marched through a heavy rain in the parade in celebration of Irish Day at the world's fair on Saturday. Frank Millet, director of decorations, tried to prevent the hoisting of the Irish flag on the Electricity building, but after it had been hauled down twice by his orders, the council of administration ordered him not to disturb it, and it remained up the remainder of the day.

Miss Pollard's whereabouts. Miss Madeline Vinton Pollard, the plaintiff in the Breckinridge-Pollard damage suit, is at present a resident of one of the Episcopal homes for women in Washington. Since the damage suit against Representative Breckinridge she has been forced to leave her former boarding place, and six weeks ago she made application to be received into the home.

Miss Pollard did not enter the home under her own name, and even now none but the officers of the institution and a few others are aware of her real identity. She is not on exactly the same footing as the regular residents of the home, being given liberty of the street and house as well. She seldom goes out, however, and then only to see her lawyers, and receives no visitors except by special written permission from her attorneys.

The time of her stay in the home has not been definitely decided, but it is supposed that she will remain where she is for a considerable time to come. In an interview recently Miss Pollard said her family had entirely renounced her. She discussed the matter calmly, as she did every other phase of the unpleasant affair in which she is so prominent a figure.

REVENUE. The very evident absence of a quorum this morning was called to the attention of the Vice President by Mr. Wolcott, and there was thereupon a call of the Senate; to which (after some delay) the requisite number of Senators—45—responded.

A bill to give settlers on the public lands in Oklahoma territory another year in which to make their first payments on the land was reported from the committee on public lands, and was passed.

The resolution offered by Mr. Teller last Saturday, calling for information as to the purchase of silver bullion in September, 1893, was laid before the Senate, and agreed to.

Mr. Sherman called attention to a misstatement contained in the speech of Mr. White last week—quoting an article from the Bankers' Magazine of August, 1873, as to the demonetization of that year. There was no such article, he said, in the Bankers' Magazine. The statement was false and fraudulent, and he wanted to have it marked with the brand of infamy.

Mr. White explained that he had taken the extract from other speeches and papers and had not consulted the Bankers' Magazine to prove the correctness of the extract. As his attention had now been called to it, he would have the allusion omitted from all future copies of his speech.

The silver purchase repeal bill was taken up, and Mr. Kyle rose to address the Senate, but yielded to Mr. Dubois. Mr. Dubois complained of a remark made by Mr. Gorman last week on the repeal bill and other measures until the three vacant seats from Montana, Washington and Wyoming were filled. Mr. Gorman had spoken of the resolution as one of a series intended to obstruct action on the repeal bill. To that statement Mr. Dubois took exception.

He said that he had offered the resolution from a sense of duty, entirely on his own responsibility, and without consultation with Senators opposed to the repeal bill. He was not in any plan to obstruct business. He found a precedent for the resolution in the filibustering of republican Senators some years ago to prevent the filling of committees while there were three seats vacant in the Senate.

Mr. Washburn said that he had not supposed that the Senator from Idaho, when he offered the resolution, had seriously supposed that the Senate would sit still and allow Senators to be chosen from States which had not performed their constitutional functions. The Senator could not have thought of anything so absolutely absurd. Mr. Washburn added that of the three States in question two were not silver-producing States, and had no more interest in the coinage of silver than any other States of the union. Furthermore those two States were now represented by two Senators, both of whom were in favor of the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law.

"Please to name," Mr. Wolcott interposed, "the two States that are represented by Senators in favor of unconditional repeal."

"I will do so with great pleasure," Mr. Washburn suavely replied. "They are the States of Washington and Wyoming."

THE FEDERAL ELECTION LAWS. Referring to the war he created a laugh by the sentence "You were successful, but you did not whip us, we wore ourselves out trying to whip you." Proceeding to a review of the reconstruction measures he asserted that when the Anglo-Saxon race came into conflict with any other race than the Teutonic, the Anglo-Saxon race must prevail. When the Anglo-Saxon and Teutonic races came into conflict, war would be the result.

His progress towards recovery has been again retarded by the entire failure of his appetite. He will now scarcely touch food. The reports that he had suffered an attack of paralysis are borne out by the fact that his right hand is apparently completely useless.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL. NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The only development of note in financial circles during the past hour was the weakness of sterling exchange, posted rates having been reduced by 1/8 for long and a full cent for short bills to 4 1/4 and 4 1/8. There was little disposition on the part of the traders to take advantage of this favorable turn in the foreign exchanges and the market for stocks remained dull. There was very little news about gold, but prices and operators are still anxiously watching the trend of legislation at Washington. At 11 o'clock the market was dull and weak.
