THE BURSON AFFAIR.—The legal fight over the alleged abduction in Chicago of Miss Anna L. Burson, of this city, by J. P. Gage, president of the Clinton, Iowa, National Bank, has assumed a new phase. As stated yesterday civil suit has been entered against Mr. Gage by Miss Burson for $100,000 for alleged breach of promise of marriage. This case will probably come to trial within three or four months. The first charge against Gage was of a criminal character for assault and abduction, and on this count he was last week indicted by the grand jury in Chicago and is now under $1,200 bail.

The Burson family have returned from Chicago and will probably remain here until the case comes to trial in that city, when it is thought that Miss Burson should return and give her evidence in person at the trial, rather than have it taken by deposition.

It is stated by Miss Burson's friends that the Chicago dispatches immediately after the occurrence rather tended to do the girl an injustice by imputation. In speaking of the affair yesterday and its probable outcome, Mr. L. G. Guthrie, Miss Burson's attorney in Washington, said:

"In justice to Miss Burson and her mother it ought to be stated that in all of this affair neither of them acted in anything but a careful and discreet way, and it was only through the deception practiced by Gage on an innocent and confiding girl that the matter turned out as it did.

"Gage himself is a high roller. He is the president of the Clinton Bank, a thorough man of the world, handsome, wealthy, and well dressed, with rooms at two or three of the best hotels in Chicago, so that he is at home anywhere. The Bursons come from the same county as Gage, and they were known to each other before they were introduced by some mutual friends at the Bureau, a fashionable South Side hotel, where they were stopping. Gage, in fact, was introduced to the Burson family by Mr. Bennett, the owner of the hotel where they were stopping. Mr. Bennett is of the firm of Bennett & Foster, who are now prosecuting the case in Chicago, and he has expressed his determination to fight the thing through to the bitter end.

"Gage had been with the Burson family almost every day for ten days after they were introduced before the night when they went to the theatre together, and when he made what was fortunately an unsuccessful attempt to lead the girl astray. Mrs. Burson was with her daughter, and the party were all together in the orchestra when Mr. Bennett, who had a box with some vacant seats within twenty or thirty feet of where they were sitting, asked Miss Burson and Gage to join his party. To this Mrs. Burson very naturally gave her consent, as she was still almost within speaking distance of her daughter, who was accompanied by Gage, to whom they had been introduced by as close a friend as Mr. Bennett.

"When the performance was over, however, and the crowd was going out Gage told Miss Burson to wait for him a moment in the box while he went to ask her mother's permission to take her back to their hotel in a carriage, the way being long and Miss Burson in evening dress, which would suffer from the crush of the street car. Gage pushed his way a little distance through the crowd, which was dense. He did not go near Mrs. Burson, but returned in a few minutes to tell Miss Burson that her mother was willing for her to go back to the hotel with him. On the way they stopped at the Metropolitan Hotel for some luncheon, and here it was that Gage is accused of drugging the glass from which Miss Burson was to drink.

"Had she been a girl that was used to drinking and going about at night it would have probably had the desired effect, but, as it was, the dose was too strong, and she fell asleep at the table. She was taken in charge by the proprietor of the hotel, and put to bed by the housekeeper, while Gage became frightened and left the house. The next morning he returned, and said that he had sent word to Mrs. Burson that her daughter was ill, but this was not so. This is the whole and the true story of the affair, and it is due to the girl that it should be told.

"There is indisputable proof that Gage did tamper with the drinks at the hotel and there is also evidence from the families of several other girls whom he has tried to ruin and who will testify against him at the trial. He is rich, however, and able to spend a good deal of money in his own defense. It is said that he has had lawyers and detectives in Washington and Alexandria trying to work up some defense for him at this end of the line, but there is no way of telling how true this is, and whether it is true or not does not matter much."

[As heretofore stated Mr. Burson and his family are comparatively strangers in this city, having lived here but a few years. Mrs. Burson and her daughter hold positions in one of the government departments in Washington and Mr. Burson is employed about the Capitol grounds in that city.]

CITY SCHOOL BOARD.—At the monthly meeting of the City School Board held last night there were present Messrs. Aitchison, Carne, Harrison, Man-kin, Marbury, Sweeney, Thompson, Vincent and the Superintendent. In the absence of the chairman Mr. Marbury presided.

Mr. Vincent, from the committee on school houses and furniture, reported that there was some complaint about the wells under the out buildings at Peabody Building and stated that Mr. Nichols had offered to sell for $30 a barrel of disinfectant for abating the nuisance complained of.

Mr. Marbury suggested copperas or some cheaper disinfectant, and the Superintendent suggested that a ventilator be constructed, or that the experiment of running fresh water into the wells be tried. The matter was referred to the committee on school houses and furniture, with instructions to make such experiments as they deemed necessary to abate the nuisance.

Mr. Vincent reported that Prof. Scharf instead of using one room in Peabody Building for his German class, was occupying several rooms in that building—one for a lodging room. The Superintendent read a letter from Prof. Scharf stating that forty-three pupils from the public schools had entered his German class and that he must have more room for their accommodation; also complaining of the restrictions which the janitor insisted on placing upon him.

The janitor was instructed to enforce the regulations of the board in reference to the occupancy of Peabody Building, and to notify Prof. Scharf to remove within one week his furniture, etc., from that building, and to further notify him that he can only use one room of that building and that for educational purposes.

The janitor was also directed to furnish Prof. Scharf's room with the necessary benches, etc., for the use of his pupils.

The Superintendent, from the committee on studies and discipline, reported in reference to the selection of additional books for higher studies and recommended the adoption of the following additional text books for use in the schools, viz: Hudson's Shakespeare, Shaw's History of English and American Literature, Norris's Class Book History of England, Steele's Geology, Davies's Surveying, Magill's History of Virginia, Barnes's Primary History of the United States, and Allen's Book-keeping to supersede the Rochester Book-keeping.

The recommendation of the Superintendent was adopted.

Mr. Carne, from the committee on studies, reported that that committee had not yet taken action in reference to the question of granting the use of a room in Peabody Building for a singing school, but as a gentleman was present who was interested in the matter, the board might hear what he had to say. Mr. Carne said that before the board took action in the matter, however, he wished to offer a resolution, and gave notice that at the next meeting he would move its adoption as one of the by-laws. He then offered the following which was adopted:

Resolved, that all schools conducted in any of the rooms of the Public Schools buildings shall be free to all pupils of the public schools fitted to attend such schools and of capacity to learn the arts and sciences there taught.

Mr. Hines then appeared before the board and stated that he proposed to open a singing school and that upwards of one hundred pupils of the public schools had been enrolled. His proposition was for the board to furnish him a hall, fuel and lights and in return he would teach singing free of charge to such of the pupils of the public schools as choose to attend; the pupils to pay seven cents apiece for lesson leaves, of which each pupil would use about 30 during the session. He was also to have the free use of the room for his other classes. Prof. T. D. Gambrill was named as instructor.

On motion of Mr. Carne, Mr. Aitchison was added to the committee on studies and discipline and was put in charge of the musical part of the studies. The matter was then referred to that committee with the request that they report at the next meeting.

Several bills for repairs, supplies, etc., were ordered to be paid.

The Superintendent stated that he had reconsidered his determination not to present an annual report and submitted one, a copy of which was placed on the desk of each of the members. The Superintendent stated that he had been asked by the principal of Hallowed School to furnish that school with maps. No action was taken in reference to this request.

The Superintendent reported that he had visited all the schools and that they were doing well; but few children were waiting for admission in any of the schools.

POLICE COURT.—Mayor Strauss presiding.—The following cases were disposed of this morning:

John Proby, a Washingtonian, arrested by Officer Grady for being drunk and disorderly, was fined $5.

Norman Williams and Dan Corbin, both colored, for occasioning trouble on the chain gang, were locked up.

Henry Stevens, colored, arrested by Officer Sherwood for discharging a gun in the street, was fined $1.

Clarence Rome, colored, and Virginia Meade, white, arrested by Officers Bettis, Ticer, Griffin and McCuen, charged with killing Edward Meade, were sent on to the grand jury.

A King street business man, who had neglected to take out a license, was given until 3 o'clock this afternoon to do so.

Coles Miles, colored, arrested as a suspicious character, and as answering the description of a man wanted elsewhere, was held until his identity could be established.

Henry H. Williams and Henry Thomas, both colored, were arrested to-day near the Midland Railway depot by Policemen Brenner and Sherwood as suspicious characters and locked up. When they saw the officers approaching both started to run. A shot from the pistol of one of the officers, however, speedily brought them to a halt.

Night Report.—Last night was cloudy and mild. Five prisoners and two lodgers were at the station house.

THE SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.—Mr. K. Kemper, Superintendent of Public Schools, has made his annual report, which is concise and comprehensive, containing considerable information and interesting facts regarding educational facilities in Alexandria. The schools, the Superintendent says, opened this year with one additional division in Lee School and a small increase in the number enrolled over that of last session. In the average daily attendance there was a small increase. The percentage of attendance remains very high. The course of study in the several grades is well arranged and the teaching is of a high order. The free art school, under the direction of Misses Minnigerode, Critcher and Ramsey have been kept up during the session with larger numbers and increasing interest. The work, Mr. Kemper says, is excellent, and reflects much credit upon the teachers. The finances of the board are in a satisfactory condition and they have been enabled to accomplish much through the skillful management of their limited means.

ILLICIT LIQUOR.—U. S. revenue agents W. W. Colquitt and T. H. Vanderford, of Atlanta, and Deputy Collector S. L. Monroe, of this city, have just returned from a trip through the counties of Culpeper and Rappahannock where they captured between 50 and 60 barrels of illicit brandy and whisky made at the moonshine distilleries in those counties.

EDWARD MEADE KILLED.—Between eight and nine o'clock last night Ed. Meade was found by Messrs. Robert Arnold and Raymond Smith in the northeastern section of the city with blood streaming down his face and three ugly cuts on his head, presumably the work of a "black jack." He was hurt so seriously that it was impossible for him to give an intelligent account of himself. So the two gentlemen conducted him to the station house. Meade led a trail of blood in his wake, and when he reached the station house his hair, beard and face were covered with gore; in fact he looked as though he had made a plunge into a slaughter house vat. Lieutenant Smith took him in charge and escorted him to the hospital where the Lieutenant undertook to wash his wounds. In the meantime Dr. Gulick was summoned, and in a short time the injured man was receiving surgical attention. From all that could be learned it seemed that early in the night Virginia Meade, wife of the victim of the assault, and a negro named Clarence Rone (whose relations with the woman are notorious) were seen walking with Meade in "Petersburg;" that later Rone returned by himself, previous to which Meade had been heard to utter the cry of "murder!" The negro and the woman were forthwith arrested and locked up. This morning they were brought before Mayor Strauss, when witnesses testified that the accused were seen walking with Meade previous to the assault and that had blood had existed between the two men for some time. It was also proven by the evidence that after Meade uttered the cry of "murder!" Rone was seen running away. Meade in his deposition said Rone struck him, and that his wife had deceived him into her black paramour could knock him in the head. Rone in his defense denied the charge, but couldn't tell his whereabouts between the hours of eight and nine o'clock last night. He and the woman were sent on to the grand jury. Meade had a fearful wound on the forehead, another on the top of the head and a third on the left side of the skull. He was very weak from loss of blood, and after the proceedings in the Police Court was taken to the Alms House for treatment. He languished until about 2 o'clock this evening when he expired. Dr. Purvis will hold an inquest at 8 o'clock to-night at Demaines' undertaking establishment, the Mayor having ordered that the body be brought to this city.

THE COMMITTEE TO DECIDE.—At the request of Mr. J. R. Caton, one of the candidates, a meeting of the city democratic committee has been called for to-night to consider the question of the appointment of the city delegates to the convention which meets in this city on Tuesday next to nominate a candidate for the legislature. It is reported that Mr. Caton is dissatisfied with the action of the committee at its last meeting, which changed the rule adopted at a previous meeting. The first rule adopted allowed the candidate receiving a majority of votes cast in the city to name all twenty of the delegates. On a protest from the county committee to such a rule, by which they showed that virtually they would have no voice whatever in naming the candidate, the city committee rescinded the objectionable rule and adopted one allowing the candidate the right to name delegates in proportion to the vote they received. Some of Mr. Caton's friends say the action of the committee in rescinding the first rule was not accomplished by a majority of the committee and was therefore illegal, and claim that Mr. Caton has a right, under the first rule, to name all twenty of the city delegates. This view is ridiculed by Mr. Bendheim's friends, who say that Mr. Caton, having received nearly as many votes in the city as Mr. Caton, and that both having gone into the primary with the clear understanding that they were to name the delegates in proportion to the votes they received—is entitled to name ten delegates, and will be sustained by the committee and the democratic party. The committee to-night will hear the matter discussed and will decide the question. A member of the county committee was in the city to-day and said that the county delegates were solid for a county man and would name one who will be acceptable to the city—probably Mr. A. A. Lipscomb, formerly a resident of this city.

OLD VIRGINIA HOSPITALITY REVIVED.—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Willard, for a week or more have entertained their friends from North Carolina, Baltimore, Washington, Alexandria and Richmond. The entertainment was an agreeable illustration of the ancient hospitality of the Old Dominion. It was elegant and sumptuous. Grace and dignity were blended with the most charming cordiality. Every thing was present that contributes to make the country delightful—the promenade, music, dancing, riding and driving. To these pleasures must be added the society of the neighborhood—celebrated for its grace, beauty and intelligence.

Gus Williams appears this season in a new play entitled "April Fool," which he will present at the Opera House Monday night. The play, which is a musical comedy, is one that affords an amplitude of funny situations of which it is safe to say the inimitable Gus Williams makes the most. The farce is an excellent one and full of good specialties.

ILLICIT LIQUOR.—U. S. revenue agents W. W. Colquitt and T. H. Vanderford, of Atlanta, and Deputy Collector S. L. Monroe, of this city, have just returned from a trip through the counties of Culpeper and Rappahannock where they captured between 50 and 60 barrels of illicit brandy and whisky made at the moonshine distilleries in those counties.

A large crowd of public school children gathered in Peabody Building last night where a singing school is being organized, but the boys seemed more intent on making a noise than on learning to sing.

THE CATRIPLE NUISANCE.—Yesterday Officer Sherwood arrested Henry S. Stephens, a colored youth, whom he caught shooting at birds with a catriple, after he had been repeatedly warned of the penalty for so doing. This morning he was fined $1 in the Police Court. The officers are on the lookout for other offenders.
