TERROR OF A MAD WOMAN.—A woman, driven insane under peculiar circumstances, only by good fortune was prevented from putting a bullet in her husband's heart and doing other deeds of blood at Mount Carmel, Pa., a few days ago. Mrs. Nimrod Kramer has been ill for a year, and, as the doctor failed to cure her, a fortune-teller volunteered to do so. The intention of the latter produced no effect, and the stricken woman became violently insane. She had retired to her bed room immediately after eating supper. Procuring a considerable sum of money, a knife and a revolver, she ran to the dining room, where the family was assembled. Everyone jumped up in alarm as Mrs. Kramer glared at them. As her husband approached to pacify her, she pressed the muzzle of the revolver to his heart and pulled the trigger. There was no report, as the trigger had been pulled on the only unloaded chamber of the five in the weapon. Mrs. Kramer jabbed at her husband with the knife, but he escaped by leaping behind a table. The maddened woman suddenly desisted in further attacks and escaped to the street. For twenty minutes the neighbors were terrorized. In continuing the authorities had an exciting time to escape being shot and stabbed. Mrs. Kramer was removed to the Danville Asylum.
