MEDICINAL.

Many women have good reason to dread the approach of the hour of maternity. All too frequently it is a time of almost unbearable pain and suffering and extreme danger. Women who are wise know that this is unnecessary. They know that the woman who takes proper care of her womanly self, who looks after the health of the organs that make motherhood possible, need have no fear of approaching maternity. They know that there is a sure and safe cure for all weakness and disease of these organs. Over 90,000 of these women have testified in writing to the virtues of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It is the discovery of Dr. R. V. Pierce, a regularly graduated physician and an eminent and skillful specialist, who is and for thirty years has been chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. The "Favorite Prescription" makes the organs of womanhood strong and healthy. It cures all weakness and disease. It prepares for approaching maternity. It does away with the discomforts of the expectant period. It alleviates the pains of parturition and makes baby's advent easy and safe. Druggists sell more of it than of all other remedies for these troubles combined.

Woman should know herself. She should not be dependent in every emergency, great or small, upon a physician. She should be familiar with her own physical make-up. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser will reveal a world of important truths to the woman who is ignorant upon these points. It contains many chapters and illustrations devoted to the reproductive physiology of women. It is written in plain, straightforward language. The book contains over 1,000 pages, and is one of the best-selling books in the world. It is sent free of charge to the World's Medical Association, No. 463 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y. If cloth binding is desired, send ten cents extra, thirty-one cents in all.

BETRAYED AT BULL RUN.

The battle of Bull Run, as it is known in history, called Manassas by the South, was fought July 21st, 1861. It was planned and won by Beauregard. It was the greatest victory gained by the Confederates in the entire war. Yet there was a time in the midst of it when the Southern commander's heart "failed," when he "felt as though all was lost," and when he wished "he had fallen in battle" two or three days before.

These revelations are made in a personal letter of Beauregard, written to Miss Augusta J. Evans, of Mobile. The letter came into the possession of the War Department, but has not been made public until now.

Perhaps more interesting than the admitted fact that victory was snatched from defeat is Gen. Beauregard's statement that two women in Washington, whom he names, betrayed the plans in detail of the federal army and enabled him to choose his position and make his arrangements to give battle. The failure of his own orders, not any mistake in the betrayal, jeopardized temporarily the result.

To Miss Evans Gen. Beauregard sent an account of the battle, including with it a personal letter. He wrote as follows:

Miss Augusta J. Evans, Mobile, Ala.—I beg to thank you for your letter of the 17th instant, and am at last able to answer your inquiries by sending you my reports of the battles of Bull Run and Manassas—not copied, however, to my satisfaction, but for fear of further delays I send them as they are by the Southern Express Company.

The young lady referred to (Miss Duval, of Washington) fought, about the 10th of July, 1861, to Fairfax Court-house, headquarters of Gen. Bonham, the first message from Mrs. Greenhow of the intended positive advance of the enemy across the Potomac. I then immediately commenced making my preparations to receive his meditated attack, and I sent one of my aides (Col. J. S. Preston) to communicate the information received to the President, as well as my future operations. On the night of the 16th of July I received by special messenger (a Mr. Donnellan) the second dispatch (in cipher also) of Mrs. G., telling me that the enemy—55,000 strong, I believe—would positively commence that day his advance from Arlington Heights and Alexandria to Manassas, via Fairfax Court-house and Centreville. Early the next morning I telegraphed that information to President Davis. About noon I received his telegram to order General Johnston to join his forces with mine. By that time, however, the enemy had already driven in my pickets in advance of Fairfax Court-house, and I answered the President that "I fear it is then too late, but still would telegraph and send a messenger to Gen. Johnston." The latter arrived about noon on the 20th. At about 4:30 a. m., on the 21st I sent orders to all the troops to hold themselves in readiness to move at a moment's notice, and at about 7 a. m. sent my final orders to commence the movement (see my report of the battle of Manassas). Gens. Ewell and Holmes on the right, to start first to attack and turn the enemy's left and rear at Centreville. At about 8:30 a. m., having given all preliminary orders, I left my headquarters with Gen. Johnston for the scene of action, near Mitchell's Ford, on Bull Run. At about 10:30 a. m. I was informed by a messenger from Gen. Ewell, a gallant and meritorious officer, that he had not yet received directly my orders to advance, but would do so at once from information received to that effect from Gen. D. R. Jones, next on his left, and who was to have followed his movement.

It was, however, then too late, for the enemy was already pressing with vigor my extreme left under Gen. Evans at the Stone bridge. I then had suddenly, on the spur of the moment, to change my whole plan of battle, with troops which had never yet fought and could scarcely manoeuvre. My heart for a moment failed me; I felt as though all was lost, and I wished I had fallen in the battle of the 18th; but I soon rallied, and I then solemnly pledged my life that I would that day conquer or die! Immediately everything appeared again clear and hopeful, although the worst was yet to come. About 3 p. m., finding that the enemy had retaken the plateau of the Henry House, I ordered my reserves (three regiments) forward, and charged at the head of one of them. We drove back the enemy, about five times our number, and held the position until the reinforcements from our center and extreme right of the morning had arrived and decided the fate of the day. The enemy commenced lying about 4:30 p. m. and the President arrived on the field about half an hour later, in time, however, to enjoy that agreeable sight. You will excuse, I hope, these details, which are given only to furnish you events of that day. I beg to remark here that the report of that battle sent you is more a full history of it than a mere report, which would have contained only the leading facts; moreover, I had not much experience in such matters. I am happy to hear that you appreciated so well and truly my two most worthy friends, Johnston and Price. I would serve with pleasure under either of them. I hope you will yet meet also with another one, Breckinridge, than whom there is not a nobler soul.

With my kind regards to all at home, I remain, very truly, your friend,
G. T. BEAUREGARD.

A Valuable Prescription.

Editor Morrison of the Worthington, Ind., "Sun," writes: "You have a valuable prescription in Electric Bitters, and I can cheerfully recommend it for Constipation and Sick Headache, and as a general s' stem tonic it has no equal." Mrs. Annie Steble, 2025 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, was all run down, could not eat nor digest food, had a backache which never left her and felt tired and weary, but six bottles of Electric Bitters restored her health and renewed her strength. Prices 50 cents and $1.00. Get a Bottle at E. L. Allen's Drug Store.

"Last summer one of our grand-children was sick with a severe bowel trouble," says Mrs. E. G. Gregory, of Fredericktown, Mo. "Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief." For sale by J. H. Jannay, Druggist, 701 King street.

For Over Fifty Years
AN OLD AND WELL-TRIED REMEDY.—Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea. It is pleasant to the taste. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup and take no other kind.
