VIRGINIA NEGRO LYNCHED.—William Brooks, a Virginia negro, employed in one of the camps building the coal and iron extension of the West Virginia Central Railway, was lynched at Elkton, Va., last night by a mob of 400 citizens. Brooks had probably fatally shot Robert Lilly, chief of police of Elkton. The officer attempted to arrest Brooks who had been insulting women. He broke away and then turned and fired two bullets, one of which entered Lilly's abdomen while the other penetrated the shoulder. Brooks tried to escape, but was soon caught and lodged in the city lock-up. Intense feeling prevailed there had been several murders in Elkton and vicinity during the last four months, the murderers in each case escaping. As Brooks was being escorted by the police from the lock-up to the station to be taken by train to jail at Beverly, the mob took him from the guard and dragged him some distance to a tree in the city park, where he was hanged. He was badly lacerated and begged for mercy all the way. The man was almost dead before he was strung up. The negro was holding a revolver in the park and Brooks had previously quarreled there with a colored woman. The negro was very quiet, knowing the whites are fully determined to act summarily should there be any demonstration on their part. The body of Brooks was still hanging in the park today. Lilly is being hurried to hospital to be operated on, but there is little hope for his recovery. He has a grown family.
