MEDICINAL.

"LUCKY"

Is often the name given by careless and thoughtless people to those who are careful and thoughtful. "What a lucky woman," is said of one whose health and beauty proclaim her free from womanly diseases. The luck often consists in her having thoughtfully considered the merits of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and proved its ability to cure the diseases peculiar to her sex.

"Favorite Prescription" is a reliable medicine for the cure of womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"I had poor health for nine years," writes Mrs. Armistead Watkins of Ames, Kanawha Co., W. Va. "Had female weakness, was very irregular and would suffer untold misery. My family doctor did not do me any good and I concluded to write to you. When I wrote I had no idea that I would ever get well, but when your letter reached me I began to have hope. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicine as directed and began to improve in strength. I was soon able to do the work for my family of six. I took eight bottles, three of 'Favorite Prescription' and five of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of 'Pell's'."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 308 pages, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

HOUSES OF VIRGINIA SIGNERS.

Recently the State Regent, D. A. R., of Georgia, made a request of the State Regent of Virginia to prepare a paper on the homes of the Virginia signers of the Declaration of Independence. Mrs. Hugh Nelson Page, the Virginia State Regent, therefore asked Mrs. Anne C. Harper, Montpelier Chapter, of Orange, to prepare the paper. It was read before the conference at its final meeting, and is practically as follows:

"Of the Virginia signers of the Declaration of Independence there were seven: George Wythe, Richard Henry Lee, Thomas Jefferson, Thomas Nelson, Jr., Benjamin Harrison, Francis Lightfoot Lee and Carter Braxton. In regard to the homes of these men, Virginia is more fortunate than many other States, as a number of them are still standing, and well preserved and kept by their present owners, who are in some instances members of the original family.

"George Wythe lived at one time in Richmond, his residence being on the corner of Fifth and Grace streets. Although the original house was pulled down to make way for the present building, a large tulip poplar tree still graces the spot and overlooks the newer building as it did its predecessor. In a family letter, belonging to a friend of mine, this house is mentioned, and attention is called to one of its chief attractions—is the view of Manchester.

"Another house in which George Wythe lived still stands in Williamsburg on the Palace Green by the Old Courthouse. It is a fine large square house of brick, well cared for by the family of Harrison who now live in it.

"At the time of the signing of the Declaration, Richard Henry Lee lived at Chantilly, which he built on a part of the old family place, Stratford, Westmoreland county. This was originally called the Hollis Farm. Chantilly House is not now standing. Stratford House is about three miles below Stratford on the Potomac river. It is a large, dignified residence, built in the shape of the letter H. It contains eighteen rooms. The middle part of the house is a large hall, used as a library and sitting room, and occupies the two wings. In one of the bed rooms were born Richard Henry Lee, all his brothers, and, tradition says, Robert Edward Lee.

"In the kitchen of the building may yet be seen the huge fireplace, 12 feet wide, 6 feet high and 5 feet deep, in which a whole ox could be roasted. In the yard is a large old-fashioned well, which was used at the house by the British army, and which is now used for the peaceful service of a tying place for horses.

"Later in his life Richard Henry Lee paid a rental for this place to General Henry Lee, and mentioned to his will that he held the estate only on a lease. "Of Jefferson's home, Monticello, enough to say it is the pride and delight of lovers of the beautiful, not only in Virginia but throughout America.

"Thomas Nelson, Jr., lived in a fine house in Yorktown, still owned by the Nelson family. One incident in connection with this place is historical. At the time of Cornwallis's surrender, the British commander was in this house. As the soldiers hesitated to fire upon it, General Nelson himself ordered the guns to be turned upon it. The house, however, is now standing and in fine condition.

"Benjamin Harrison lived at Berkeley on the James river, near Westover. While I am on the subject of the house is yet standing, it should be for the walls of the fifth floor were a yard thick.

"Francis Lightfoot Lee lived in Loudoun county where he and his brother Phillips are said to have founded Leesburg. On marrying, Lee moved to Richmond and built a house, calling it Westholm. There he died in the winter of 1797.

"Carter Braxton, the last of the signers, lived at Cherokee, King William county, about twenty miles from Richmond, on a Johnson grant of land. The house was burned and later rebuilt by Braxton's grandson. Unless it has been very recently sold, it is still in the Braxton family."

Among the tens of thousands who have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for colds and influenza during the past few years, to our knowledge, not a single case has resulted in pneumonia. Thos. Whitfield & Co., 240 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, one of the most prominent retail druggists in that city, speaking of this, says: "We recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a gripe in many cases, as it not only gives prompt and complete recovery, but also counteracts any tendency of a gripe to result in pneumonia." For sale by Richard Gibson, druggist.

Kodol Digests what you Eat

Dyspepsia Cure

A powerful engine can't be run with a weak boiler; and you can't expect to keep up the wear and strain of an active life with a weak stomach. Our boilers, or rather our stomachs, can't be replaced, and we cannot stop the human machinery while making repairs. But when the stomach is unable to digest enough food to keep the body strong, we can use what you eat, so that you can eat all the good food you want, without any distress after eating.

"After forty years of suffering from indigestion, a few bottles of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cured me."—Amel Red, Fredonia, Pa.

It can't help but do you good
