MEDICINAL

THE BALANCE OF HEALTH

Is often very much against the wife. Her strength is undermined, she loses flesh and her energy and courage slowly leak away from her. Gradually the comradeship of husband and wife is broken up. At first he takes his solitary pleasures reluctantly, but later he hardly seems to remember the old days over which his wife in her weakness mourns daily.

Women who find their health failing, and wondrous ailments fastening on them, should promptly begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It corrects irregularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well. Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I had been a great sufferer from female weakness for about two years," writes Mrs. Emma Richardson, of Ouse, Wayne Co., Ky. "I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and felt as well as I ever did. I have also used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for ulceration of the throat with good results and half of one bottle cured my throat which I could scarcely swallow."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, free, on receipt of stamps for mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-covered book, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

United States with their larger population.

The report pays no attention to the various cures which have been announced from time to time, but maintains that the sovereign remedy for the disease in any stage is pure air "such as is found on the seashore and high mountains." The only condition of cure is that the patient should persevere in the air cure for a long time, keeping both windows and doors open night and day.

Among the important results of the investigation are the discovery that the breath of the consumptive does not transmit the germs, but that it is "the spittle, dried and reduced to dust," which is the common agent of communication.

The germs remain active in the dried sputa for months, and even years. Spits on the walls and furniture of a room has been found to be capable of infecting tuberculosis after many months. Sunlight, however, is fatal to the bacilli in a few hours. Another discovery is that the disease may be cured at any stage. The commission placed much reliance on the statement of a Dr. Darberg, who reported the cure of himself and many other patients, some of whom have resumed their active occupations.

All this confirms the judgment of the Berlin and the London tuberculosis congresses, both of which laid great stress on the location of sanatoria in the dry atmosphere of the mountains. Almost everybody has known of persons afflicted with consumption who have recovered from all the distressing features of the disease after spending a year or two in Colorado or Southern California. The purpose of the organized movement in England and in Germany is to provide sanatoria in favorable climates for persons who lack the means to leave home for the required time. FABULOUS RICHES.

At a time when millions of men are struggling their hardest for the doubtful privilege of keeping themselves alive it seems difficult to realize that jewels and gold whose value is counted in hundreds of millions of pounds should be lying hidden in royal treasure houses untouched and seen only by a privileged and curious few.

Those who have been privileged to gaze on the wonders of the Shah's treasure house tell astonishing stories of wealth which is indeed beyond the dreams of avarice, and which might well form a climax to the marvels of the Arabian Nights' tales; of diamonds and rubies, emeralds and sapphires, so countless that they might literally be measured by the peck; of shelds, helms and armor thickly encrusted with priceless gems, and sword scabbards which it pains the eye to look on, so dazzling are the jewels which sheath them.

One of these scabbards is completely covered with diamonds, the smallest of which is as large as a finger nail. Vessels of solid gold, so large that only a strong man could lift one of them, crown blazing with every color of the rainbow, chains of gold and rare precious stones, emeralds of matheless beauty lie scattered about in careless profusion; trays are heaped to overflowing with sapphires and pearls, many of which are worth tens of thousands of pounds.

A glass case, two feet long and a foot and a half in width and height, is more than half filled with thousands of pearls, perfect in form and lustre. By its side is a globe of gold, twenty inches in diameter, with seas of emeralds and continents of rubies and diamonds to the number of 50,000, and each stone specially chosen for its purity and beauty. The value of this globe is £1,000,000 sterling.

Among the countless treasures of the Shah are a flawless uncut ruby said to be as large as a hen's egg and of a value which no one has ventured to estimate; a turquoise as long as a man's finger and a foot wide which is so closely set with many-colored precious stones that it is one unbroken blaze of diamonds and emeralds, pearls and rubies.

All of the ancient princes of India the Gajawar of Bioroda is the richest in gold and jewels, a mere catalogue of which would fill some of the world's richest millionaires with despair. One of his most interesting, though by no means most valuable, possessions is a carpet, ten feet long and six feet in width, composed entirely of a ground work of exquisite pearls on which is traced a design in diamonds. This carpet which certainly has no rival in the world is said to be worth £300,000 or £500,000 a queue foot.

Of much greater value than this carpet of gems is a matchless collar, consisting of five rows of diamonds and two of emeralds, the stones being of graduated sizes from that of a walnut to the size of a pea; from this collar of 700 of the most perfect stones in existence hangs as a pendant the famous "Star of the South," a diamond, one of the most magnificent diamonds the world has ever seen.

The Czar of Russia has a treasure-house in each of his many palaces, and one of which might well satisfy the ambition of any monarch in the variety and value of its contents. Two crowns alone are valued at £8,000,000, and the jewels in the Winter Palace, which include many of the choicest gems in the world, are valued at many millions more.

The treasures of the Kremlin are said on authority to be worth over £100,000,000, and the gold on the walls of the Palace of Tsarskoye Selo, with its walls and ceilings of amber, tortoise-shell, ivory, and mother-of-pearl, has been valued at nearly a quarter of a million pounds.

But it is doubtful whether the Czar's wonders of gold and jewels can rival those of the Sultan, the accumulations of centuries of predecessors. The Sultan is as careless of the treasures as the Shah, and the room in which they are kept has rather the appearance of a lumber room than a treasury of countless millions.

But no disorder can conceal the riches and splendor of gold vessels filled to the brim with diamonds and sapphires, rubies and emeralds; of suits of armor, crowns, sword-scabbards, chains and rings blinding with gems; although, as a traveler recently declared, "One cannot fail to gasp with amazement at the spectacle of hundreds of beautiful pearls worth probably £60,000 contained in an old tin tobacco box."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Brands May Come

and brands may go but the famous old "Plantation" gets on forever. Years ago, when we first put this brand upon the market, we determined there should be one firm which would make an honest effort to keep its product up to a certain standard, and the popularity of our "Plantation" brand is evidence that we have succeeded. The stock is of the same quality, and the blend exact. The same care is exercised in the manufacture of our entire output.

Every Plantation cigar is stamped with the firm name of
