LORD CRANBORNE'S STATEMENT.

The German foreign office denies that Germany desired or associated itself with any other government that may have sought to bring about European intervention in the Spanish American war. The correspondent of the Associated Press yesterday afternoon communicated to the German foreign office the statement emanating Monday from the British foreign office to the effect that Germany, France, and Russia had supported the Austrian Ambassador at London in his attempt to induce Great Britain to sign a collective note addressed to the United States, proposing action by the European States, in view of the outbreak, or expected outbreak, of the late war between the United States and Spain. Later in the day the following statement was handed to the correspondent: "The foreign office declares with all positiveness that Germany, neither before the outbreak of the Spanish American war nor during its course, proposed intervention in other powers. Neither did Germany support such a proposal made by other powers. It is true that, in several instances, suggestions were made to the German government from another source, in the sense of intervention. But the German government without exception maintained a negative attitude toward such suggestions, and made known its negative standpoint whenever occasion offered. It may further be remarked that such suggestions reached the German government."

Some announcements have been expressed in official circles in Berlin that the British under secretary for foreign affairs, Lord Cranborne, and the British foreign office at this moment should make statements tending to discourage the growing good feeling between Germany and the United States, and seemingly designed to spoil the pleasant prospect of the visit to the United States of Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia. The interpellation in the British House of Commons Monday to which Lord Cranborne replied is considered in Berlin to have been gotten up especially to give the opportunity of saying something in Parliament which might be taken as a basis for reviving stories adverse to Germany in the matter of German relations with the United States.

A telegraphic report of Lord Cranborne's statement in reply to the interpellation by Henry Norman, M. P., was distributed to the German newspapers by the news agencies early in the day, yet none of the Berlin evening papers, with the exception of the North German Gazette prints it. The North German Gazette does not comment upon Lord Cranborne's statement. This suppression of what at another time would be regarded as news is taken to mean that the German press is determined not to revive unpleasant discussion in an inopportune moment.

Inquiries made at the Austro-Hungarian foreign office confirm the essential points of the statement made by Lord Cranborne, the British foreign under secretary, in the House of Commons, yesterday. The dynamic relations of Austria with Spain, the Queen Regent being an arch-duchess of Austria, led Austria, before the declaration of the war between Spain and the United States, to begin a peace propaganda, which was carried on not only in England, but throughout Europe. France was ready to second the efforts of Austria. Germany and Russia maintained a passive attitude. Great Britain was at first disposed to sign the proposed note, but after a confidential report from Washington declined either to sign such a note as the Austrian ambassador proposed, or to take any further steps. Afterward Austria and France made direct representations at Washington, but ceased their efforts after the declaration of war, from that time forward relying on the efforts of the Pope, who was backed by the tacit approval of all the powers.

The State department in Washington will not be drawn into the controversy which has sprung up between the European powers respecting the efforts made by them to prevent the United States from going to war with Spain. Lord Cranborne's statement in Parliament is recognized as absolutely correct as far as it went, but there are chapters in the story which did not touch upon and which are recognized in Washington as inexplicitly sufficient reason. The frank statement of Lord Cranborne to prevent Austria's earnest efforts to prevent war caused no resentment in this country where it is realized that there were dynamic and sympathetic reasons that justified or at least extenuated the Austrian purpose.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says F. Demick, Bensenville, Ind. You don't live by what you eat, but stomach doesn't assimilate. If you're really starving Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food.
