

THE LONG winter and heavy rains have, in a measure, damaged some of the unpaved streets, in some instances the top dressing of sand and gravel having been washed away. These damages can be repaired now at a comparatively small cost, whereas should this work be delayed, the condition of affairs will become worse and much more time, labor and money will be required to remedy the evil.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.

Washington, March 11. Secretary of the Navy Long has resigned from the Cabinet. The resignation will take effect May 1. His formal letter to this effect was handed to the President by the Secretary personally this morning. It will be given to the press later. The Secretary announces his intention of resuming his law practice in Boston after his retirement.

Mr. Long in his letter to the President says: "Will you accept this as my resignation of the Secretaryship of the Navy, to take effect on the 1st day of May next, or sooner if you so desire. I shall at any time so wish. It has been a delightful service. I leave the official circle of your Cabinet, in which my association with you and its members has been so happy, with high appreciation of your administration and with most cordial good wishes for its success and for you personally."

In his reply President Roosevelt says: "It is with very sincere regret that I accept your resignation. I shall always count it a privilege, not only to have known you, but to have known you in the service of your country. I leave the official circle of your Cabinet, in which my association with you and its members has been so happy, with high appreciation of your administration and with most cordial good wishes for its success and for you personally."

Latest reports show that affairs in connection with the street car strike in Norfolk are still critical and are as far from settlement as ever. Besides this there are indications that the trouble will extend to Richmond. The strike in Norfolk has several times assumed a serious phase, and there is no falling back on discretion as to follow. Rioting is to be deplored wherever it may occur, and the fact that there are sporadic cases of strikes in Virginia is regretted, especially by many who heretofore have taken pride in saying that such commotions as well as Coxy armies will not flourish in the Sunny South. Times change, however, and the Old Dominion, so long a spectator of such turmoil, is now called upon to exercise bayonet rule in one of its most prosperous cities. May the good sense of all parties interested bring the trouble to a speedy end.

The approaching court-martial of Major Lyttleton W. T. Waller and Lieutenant Day, of the marine corps, charged with atrocious cruelty and murder in the Island of Samar, is said by well-informed officials to have more behind it than the charges. Major Waller, who made a record during the war with Spain and later in the Philippines, is a strong candidate for the brigadier generalship to succeed General Heywood. There will be a big fight between the staff and the line for this position. Major Waller is one of the line candidates. Colonel Meade, another of the line officers, whom the staff hoped to put out of line for promotion, was recently court-martialed on the charge of drunkenness, but was acquitted. Now the bitter feeling has been brought forth the charges against Major Waller.

The British have met with another reverse in South Africa, and there is consequently dejection in London today. The English met a Boer general on this occasion who is animated by a determined purpose to die in the last ditch, and his followers have drunk deep of the same spirit. They have shown dash, daring and military genius in this last conflict and the fruits of victory now perch on their banners. The English people generally have long since become thoroughly disgusted with the South African war, and as the burdens of taxation grow more onerous each day the time will come when a demand will be made to call off the dogs of war which the ministry will be forced to respect.

It was hoped that after the release of Miss Stone the reading public would be given a rest, as most people had grown weary of the matter; but it now seems that this government, for reasons best known to itself, is pressing Turkey for indemnification, holding that government responsible for the act of the brigands who captured Miss Stone and her companion. This may be regarded from an international standpoint as a legal procedure, but from an equitable view it is questionable. That Turkey has no more desire for bandits within her borders than most people have for rats in their houses must be apparent to all fair-minded persons, and the United States will not add to its lustre by attempting to bully another superannuated country.

The constitutional convention has inserted a clause in the instrument it is framing reducing the rate of State tax from 40 to 30 cents. Should by hook or by crook the new constitution become the organic law the tax reduction of course would become effective from that time, but the Legislature, which is now in session, can and should call the bluff of the convention and pass a bill making the tax reduction and making it effective at once. This would take the wind out of the sails of the demagogues in the convention and let the new constitution stand upon its merits should it be submitted to a vote of any electors.

Representative Wm. H. Moody, of Massachusetts, has been offered and accepted the portfolio of the Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Moody said this morning: "It is with great pleasure that I accept the appointment as Secretary of the Navy; further than that I have nothing to say." The news of Mr. Moody's appointment to succeed Secretary Long spread quickly throughout the Capitol and he was soon besieged by members of the Senate who came to offer their congratulations. Messrs. C. B. Marshall, K. L. Field and C. C. Carlin, of Alexandria, were called at the Capitol today to invite Senator Martin, Mr. Swanson and others to attend a banquet of Andrew Jackson Lodge of Masons to be held in their city at an early day. Senator Martin and one to Richmond had previously accepted the invitation to be present and Mr. Swanson said he would certainly go. It is reported here that those who divided Kretz stock among the masses and took dividends on it had been brought to book and made to refund, if they have any property out of which anything can be made. It is also said that other branches of the Kretz Company will, in all probability, become involved in the troubles of the parent company, and that there is trouble ahead for a number of persons connected with the various companies which are on the "inside."

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Reports from Panama state that it is rumored that the government forces have met with a severe defeat. Canadian scouts have discovered a Boer magazine in the Orange River Colony containing 810,000 rounds of rifle ammunition.

The United States has presented a note to Turkey insisting that the brigands who held Miss Ellen M. Stone a prisoner should be captured.

The rebellion in China continues to spread. The members of the Triad secret society have joined the rebels and are looting and burning villages.

President Roosevelt's action on the permanent census bureau bill is said by his opponents to have eliminated him as a presidential candidate in 1904.

A unique advertisement appeared in one of the county papers at Shenandoah last week as follows: "Lemuel Bonner offers his house and lot for sale, Calvary—unless he can find a wife to help him run it." Mr. Bonner's wife died about a year ago, when he created a sensation by conducting the funeral services and preaching a sermon in the German Baptist church, at Calvary.

William Clayton, a well known contracting painter, was murdered in Richmond yesterday in a manner that thus far baffles the police. He was found on the street in a residential section of the city early in the morning, frightfully beaten, and died last night, without having regained consciousness. Whether he was waylaid, robbed and murdered or beaten to death in a fight is not known.

Mrs. Emily Voss Southall, wife of Mr. S. Valentine Southall, died on Saturday at her residence in Charlottesville in the sixty-second year of her age. Her daughter, Miss Emily V. Southall, married Mr. Thos. L. Waters, formerly of this city, now of New York city, and died before her mother, leaving two children, Emily and Alexander, who live with their grand-parents in Charlottesville.

Prince Henry was the guest of the German Society of the city of New York at its annual dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria on Saturday night. He was received by President Gustav H. Schwab, of the society, and a subcommittee. The large banquet hall was beautifully draped, and the guest table being two immense German and American flags around the German imperial eagle, which was studded with electric lights. All around the table were German and American flags and blue banners, with the name of each state of the union.

The table of honor was burdened with American beauty roses and small. The other tables were liberally provided with flowers, La France roses being most conspicuous.

There were 750 guests in the main banquet hall and several hundred more in the adjoining rooms.

The entertainments provided for Prince Henry in New York yesterday included a concert by the Arion Society; a luncheon at the University Club, given by the governing committee that has had Prince Henry in charge; a dinner at the Cornelius Vanderbilt home and an informal reception at the New York Yacht Club.

At the concert given by the Armstrong Association for Prince Henry, Booker T. Washington, the colored educator, was presented to the Prince. The two chatted for fifteen minutes, during which time the Prince asked many questions as to the negroes. He asked Washington for a book of negro melodies, and the latter promised to send him one.

The dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt began at 7 o'clock. The Vanderbilt home was handsomely decorated and brightly lighted. Mrs. Vanderbilt received the Prince and his staff and then presented her own guests. Oval-shaped dining tables were placed in the dining-room and conservatory and there the dinner was served. Mrs. Vanderbilt had Prince Henry at the right and Ambassador von Holleben at her left, and Mr. Vanderbilt had Admiral Evans at his right and Gen. Corbin at his left. Among other at the table were: Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Orme Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Drexel, the Countess Gray, Gen. von Flessen, Admiral von Eschscholtz, street, architect, Stuyvesant Fish, and August Belmont. During dinner an orchestra played a selected programme.

Several cars were operated under heavy guard yesterday and only one disturbance occurred. J. J. Kelly, a union plumber, boarded a car in Main street, and when one of the non-union conductors attempted to collect his fare he refused to pay, and the guards aboard were informed of his action. During an argument with the soldiers Kelly grabbed the gun of one of the guards and attempted to brain him with it, when Private West, of Company F, Suffolk, brought the stock of his rifle down with stunning force upon the side of Kelly's head, inflicting a fearful wound. An enormous crowd soon collected and the attitude of the mob toward the soldiers was for a time menacing. Trouble was averted by the car being started ahead at full speed. Kelly was taken out to the bars and was later carried back to Norfolk by the police and locked up.

Norfolk, Va., March 10.—The strike situation is more critical than at any stage of the trouble. Notwithstanding the rendition of the arbitration board's findings, the matter is not settled, for the strikers are returning to work with the non-union men who took their places. Their international officials advise them that they could not retain their charter should they consent to do so. The report that the employees of the Richmond Traction Company, owning by the same company controlling the Norfolk lines have gone on a strike made the men more determined. The grievance in Richmond, they say, is the same as here—dissatisfaction with the bonding system. It is reported here that the Surrey cavalry has been ordered to Richmond.

VIRGINIA NEWS.

Charles Hudspeh, of Richmond, who was for some time at the head of a transatlantic transportation company, is missing and is believed to have committed suicide.

The Central Labor Union of Norfolk, has adopted resolutions condemning Governor Montague and the civil authorities of Norfolk for having militated to the scene of the street car strike.

Ten thousand dollars' worth of diamonds belonging to Mrs. W. J. Donald, wife of a transatlantic shipping man, have been recovered from the debris of the Atlantic Hotel, at Norfolk, which was burned a month ago. The ashes have been thrice sifted. All the stones are uncut.

Mayor Hayes of Baltimore will not be able to attend the Jefferson Memorial and Interstate Goods Roads Convention which will be held in Charlottesville next month, and has requested City Engineer B. T. Feadall to go in his stead. The idea is to build a road from the University of Virginia to the tomb of Jefferson.

After a single year of married life, during which time dire poverty separated him from his bride, W. B. Gooden, of Richmond, aged twenty, yesterday ended his life by taking an overdose of morphine. This was the second attempt he had made to put an end to his unsatisfactory existence since his marriage to Annie Sargent, which took place about a year ago.

TO-DAY'S TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

Defeat of the British. London, March 10.—Great Britain has suffered a terrible reverse in South Africa. General Methuen, one of England's famous soldiers, and a force of eleven hundred men under his command met defeat at the hands of the Boer General Delarey. Methuen himself was wounded and taken prisoner and four guns were captured from the British. The news of the defeat was announced in the House of Commons today by Secretary for War Broderick. It was one of the most sensational statements ever made to parliament.

Secretary Broderick read a dispatch from General Kitchener announcing the reverse. It began by saying: "I greatly regret to send you bad news about Methuen. With 900 mounted men under Major Paris, and 300 infantry, from one position, he started from Wynburg on Monday morning early he was attacked by Delarey between Twebesch and Palmeknill.

"The Boers charged on three sides. Five hundred and fifty mounted troops have come in at Maritogo. They were pursued four miles. They report that Methuen, Paris, the guns, and baggage were captured. Methuen, when last seen, was a prisoner. I have no further details. Suggest you delay publication until definite news."

General Kitchener, in a second dispatch sent Sunday reports: "Paris, with the remainder of men, arrived at Kraspan. He reports that the column was moving in two columns, those with the ox wagons moving an hour ahead of those with the mules. The Boers attacked at dawn. The mules stamped and all the mules and wagons with a terrible mixture of muzzled men, rushed past the ox wagons. Efforts to check them were unavailing."

"Paris collected 400 men but after a gallant but useless defense the enemy rushed them. Methuen was wounded in the thigh and Paris, being surrounded, surrendered at 10 o'clock in the morning. Three officers and thirty-eight men were killed, and five officers and 72 men wounded. Two hundred men are missing."

After reading the bad news Secretary Broderick added a word of apology for the defeated British General. "Methuen," he said, "has been conducting operations for two years in a difficult country. His failure to relieve Kimberly did not reflect on his discredit."

It is an open secret that social influence has kept Methuen in Africa, while Buller and Gatacre have been disgraced for smaller blunders.

In the House of Lords, Lord Raglan, under Secretary for War, dramatically read the telegram, with the details of the disaster to British arms.

Earl Roberts, commander-in-chief of the army, and who had many important successors while in command in South Africa, made a speech in eulogizing Methuen's "success throughout the war."

The scene of the battle between Methuen and Delarey is in the southwestern part of the Transvaal, in the vicinity of Mafeking. General Lord Paul Methuen has long been credited with being one of the best tacticians in the British army. Commandant Delarey next to De Wet is one of the best Boer fighters. He is against surrender to the last. His operations have been uniformly daring and important. Delarey issued a proclamation last fall, following close on the heels of one issued by Lord Kitchener in which the latter called on Boers to surrender by September 15. Delarey's proclamation was brief. It called on the Boers to disregard Kitchener's threats and fight to the end.

The Prince in Philadelphia. New York, March 10.—Prince Henry and his suite left here at 5 o'clock this morning for Philadelphia where he will be entertained today.

Philadelphia, March 10.—Prince Henry's special arrived here at 10.20. The trip from New York was made without incident.

The Prince was formally received by the local German consul, Mayor and reception committee and escorted to the City Hall. Later he visited Independence Hall where he was presented with souvenirs. He was subsequently driven to Cramp's shipyard, where he inspected the new Russian battleship Krivak and the other vessels there shaking hands with all, even the stokers. The programme ended with a luncheon tendered by the Union League. The Prince left Philadelphia on a special train at 3.50 this evening.

Freight Handlers Strike. Boston, March 10.—What may prove to be one of the biggest strikes in the history of New England began this morning when teamsters, freight handlers, freight clerks and longshoremen, to the number of several thousand, refused to go to work. Not only is it expected that fully 10,000 men will be involved in the strike here in Boston, but that it will extend to other New England cities. Unless some steps are taken to settle the strike the freight handlers and union teamsters of Springfield, Worcester, New London, Fall River, Providence, Stonington and Hartford may become involved. The New York, New Haven & Hartford employed a number of Italians yesterday and by night succeeded in finishing up the work left by the men who quit on Saturday, loading and forwarding everything on hand. Up to 9.30 this morning no act of violence had taken place. The cause of the strike is the refusal of the Brine Transportation Company to recognize the teamsters union and pay union wages.

The Cropsy Murder Trial. Elizabeth City, N. C., March 10.—The trial of James Wilcox, charged with the murder of Ella Cropsy, is scheduled to begin today. The prosecuting attorney announces that he has a new and important witness in a negro named Thompson, a man of good reputation. Thompson, it is alleged, will testify that on the night of the girl's disappearance (Nov. 20) he saw Jim Wilcox, near the Cropsy home, carrying the apparently semi-conscious form of a woman. Thompson, however, has refrained from coming forward with his story because of fear of Wilcox and his friends. The young woman disappeared after a quarrel with young Wilcox, who was the last person known to have seen her alive. The body of Miss Cropsy was eventually found in the river near her father's home.

Her Maternity Beats the Record.

Omaha, Neb., March 10.—All previous records have been broken for first honors in the most great-grandmother by Mrs. Minnie Davis, of Omaha, whose first great-grandchild was born when she was 44 years of age. Mrs. Davis was born in Boston, Mass., in 1855, and was married when 12 years of age. Her eldest daughter, Mrs. Ellis, of Council Bluffs, was born in 1867, and was married at the age of 13. Mrs. Ellis's daughter, Mrs. Righty, of Seattle, was born in 1883, and was married at 15. Her oldest child, Eva, was born in 1899. Mrs. Davis is violently opposed to girls marrying early, and advises all young people to wait until they are 24 before wedding. She says she speaks from experience, and knows what she is talking about when she gives that advice.

Foreign News. London, March 10.—The Countess of Warwick, the well known society leader, was thrown from her horse while hunting in Essex today. She was badly bruised but no bones were broken.

Vienna, March 10.—It is stated today that the Car will visit Vienna and Budapest in the early part of next summer.

Berlin, March 10.—Count von Buelow, the Imperial Chancellor, is ill with influenza and confined to his room.

The Wasland Disaster. Liverpool, March 10.—An inquest over the body of Edward Dangerfield, of Kansas, who lost his life in the sinking of the steamer Wasland, off Holyhead, on Wednesday night, last, was held today. Captain Apfeldt, of the Wasland, testified that when the fog settled about the steamer he reduced speed. After the collision, he said, he signalled the Hermonides to keep going ahead to close up the breach, but she backed out instead. A verdict of accidental death was brought in. The jury congratulated the captains of both vessels on their endeavors to save life.

Prince Records His Impressions. New York, March 10.—No matter how busy his day, nor how far into the night his engagements last, Prince Henry has time at the end of each day's round to write an account of the previous 24 hours in a diary. This diary is being kept by the Emperor's request and is so full that it often takes two hours to write it. The diary not only records events, but impressions, and gives a summary of the Prince's opinions.

Held Up the Operator. Reading, Pa., March 10.—When a south-bound coal train stopped at Aramingo for fuel, at one o'clock this morning, two men jumped off, rushed into the telegraph station, gave the operator a blow on the head, and against the wall, and then held him up with a revolver and went through his pockets. They secured about $3.

THE LEGISLATURE. SENATE. The committee having under consideration the various transportation bills between the cities of Norfolk, Portsmouth and Berkley reported favorably the tunnel and ferry bills and adversely all three of the bridge bills. It is estimated the tunnel can be built for $1,000,000.

The committee on public institutions reported the bill for the erection of additional buildings on the grounds of the penitentiary for the accommodation of the convict confined there. The sum of $180,000 is recommended to be appropriated for the purpose—that is, that $90,000 be appropriated each year for two years. Mr. Lupton's bill for the working of the convicts on the roads of the Commonwealth, and the establishment of quarries to which they may be sentenced and set to work preparing stone for macadamizing purposes, accompanies the bill as a minority report.

HOUSE. The Cabell child labor bill, reported favorably was made the special order in the House for next Tuesday. A bill was passed to amend section 1079 of the Code in relation to the report of commissioners in condemnation proceedings.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES. The sailing fleet of 12 ships scheduled to sail today from St. Johns, N. F., was held up by their crews who demanded an advance of 35 per cent on the present wage rate. There has been no violence. A dispatch from Matane, Quebec, says that a fire early yesterday in the residence of Arthur Bouchard caused the death of his wife and nine children. Mr. Bouchard jumped from an upper window. Six of the children were boys and three were girls. The eldest was a boy of 14. Marconi has been insured for $750,000 by his English business associates, and now he must take rank with King Edward and J. Pierpont Morgan. The company asked for the policy on the ground that their business interests would be seriously damaged by the inventor's death.
