Riotous Proceedings.

John Walton, James King, George Smith, George Williams, William Johnson, Frank Wilson, William Ashenbark, and Carl Williams were arrested Saturday night for disorderly conduct and injuring the property of Eva Baker. A Washingtonian secured the release of all but Williams by depositing collateral. The men are members of the crew of a sand dredge, which is at the shipyard. They started to see the town, and among the resorts which they visited was the house of Eva Baker, 314 North Lee street. After spending a short time there, they left with the expressed intention of returning later. The woman closed her house, and when they reappeared about 1 o'clock yesterday morning she declined to admit them. This angered the men, who started in to wreck the house. The front doors were forced, windows smashed, and furniture broken. The woman blew a police whistle and fired a pistol in the air several times, and excitement ran high in the neighborhood for a while. Chief Webster with several policemen hurried to the scene of the disturbance. The rioters had started down Union street toward the shipyard, but when the officers were in sight they scattered. In a short time the chief and Officers Henderson, Garvey, Bettis, Ticer, and Arrington, and Special Officer Mullen had them rounded up, and they were soon taken in custody. Shortly after they were locked up, Carl Williams called at police headquarters to see them, and Officer Gill took him into custody on suspicion. When the case was called this morning Williams was dismissed, none of the witnesses being able to identify him. The others forfeited their collateral by failing to appear.

Death of Rev. Dr. Carson.

Rev. Thomas E. Carson, D. D., died Saturday morning at his residence in Roanoke, Va. He had been in feeble health for a long time. Heart disease was the cause of his death. The deceased was born in Baltimore on March 12, 1832, and was admitted to the ministry when he was 21 years of age. He was 49 years a minister of the gospel, but recently had been compelled on account of feeble health to relinquish his calling. He was one of the best known and most prominent ministers in the Baltimore conference, having in his long years of service filled appointments in every portion of the district. His first pastorate was in Baltimore, and he filled various appointments in that district, and was presiding elder. He was also presiding elder of the Roanoke district nineteen years ago. His last appointments were in Roanoke. He was forced to resign on account of ill health, and last spring the Baltimore conference placed him on the superannuated list. A widow and six children survive him. Dr. Carson was several years ago pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South in this city, during which time he was a familiar figure in Alexandria. He was much beloved by an appreciative congregation and throughout the community, in which he became well-known, he was justly esteemed.

The New Long Bridge.

Stone for the new Long bridge is now arriving and the work on the massive piers is being pushed, a large force of men being employed on them. Four piers in the river, the central pier for the draw and the abutment pier on the Potomac Park side of the river are completed, and another pier, on the Washington side of the draw, is above the surface of the water and will be completed in a few days. The coffer dams, in which the remaining piers will be constructed, are all in position, ready to be pumped out for the stonemasons to begin work. It is expected that within a month or six weeks the building of the steel structure of the bridge will be begun. Col. Allen, the government engineer officer in charge of the local river and harbor work, is engaged in the preparation of specifications for the new highway bridge across the Potomac, a short distance above the bridge now being built by the Pennsylvania railroad to take the place of the old Long bridge. The establishment of permanent points on the bridge line is now in progress, and it is expected that proposals for the construction of the bridge will be invited in a few weeks.

Death From Exposure.

James Edward Heatley, a Washington printer, died some time during Saturday night in a box car on the railroad siding near St. Elmo, a short distance north of this city. Heatley, who was about 57 years of age, entered the car for shelter Saturday night with a companion, whose name is not known. When the latter awoke yesterday morning he attempted to arouse Heatley, but his efforts were unsuccessful, and he soon realized that the man was dead. He then sought Magistrate Burrill, of Jefferson district, who summoned a coroner's jury. After hearing the statement of the witness the jury returned a verdict to the effect that Heatley's death resulted from exposure. The body was brought to the undertaking establishment of B. Wheatley, in this city, where it was prepared for burial. The interment took place this morning.
