THE PRESIDENT IN TENNESSEE.

With bands playing, children singing and enthusiastic men shouting the slogan of deep waterways Memphis threw wide its gates yesterday afternoon to President Roosevelt, a score of governors and many other distinguished personages in the Mississippi Valley.

The President arrived on the steamer Mississippi shortly after 1 o'clock. The bluffs overlooking the river were packed with people, who gave the chief executive a warm welcome.

When all had landed the President was conducted to a carriage by Governor Patterson, of Tennessee, and Mayor Malone, of Memphis, and the most imposing parade ever seen in Memphis began. The President was continuously cheered throughout the march.

When the President's carriage turned into Main street he was welcomed by a regiment of Confederate Veterans, who thereafter acted as a bodyguard. The President rose and warmly greeted the warriors of nearly a half century ago.

Despite a lively downpour of rain, which lasted until noon, the streets were jammed with citizens and visitors. In Second street 200 schoolchildren, seated on a decorated arch, sang patriotic airs as the President passed.

Arriving at the Auditorium rink, where the Deep Waterways Convention is holding, President Roosevelt slighted, chatted with several friends and ascended the platform. The huge structure filled up rapidly, and when Gov. Malcolm Patterson rose to present the President an immense assemblage greeted him.

Speaking of the Confederate guard of honor, he said it was a touching sight to see these old Confederate soldiers carrying the flag of this great union. It anyone wanted to know how they would fight for that flag let him ask the boys in blue how the boys in gray fought against it.

The President in his speech declared he was as much the President of the South as of the North and was devoted to the South's interests.

The Mississippi and its tributaries ought to be utilized to their utmost possibility.

These natural highways, the waterways, can never be monopolized by a corporation.

Whenever a navigable river runs beside railroads the problem of regulating the rates on the railroads becomes far easier, because river regulation is rate regulation.

The national government should undertake the work of providing wider and deeper channels.

The pollution of water used for the supply of towns and cities should be prevented.

There is no other question of equal gravity now before the nation.

In the matter of supervision of the railway corporations we are acting as all civilized governments have acted or are on the point of acting.

The unrestricted issue of railway securities without supervision should not be permitted, and only by governmental action can it be prevented.

When the President closed his address he was driven rapidly to his special train at the Missouri Pacific station, whence he departed at 5 o'clock for Lake Providence, La., where a short stop was made this morning.

The train then proceeded to Alsatia, La., a small way station, where the cars were sidetracked. Here horses and guides awaited the visitors and the trip to the hunting camp was begun immediately upon arrival.

Besides several railway officials, only a few friends accompanied the President on this trip.

Anybody familiar with the Southern Railway's financial condition must know that there is no reason of a financial nature for any such move.

The exertion of further selling pressure on the shares of the Southern Railway, with the August statement of earnings as the pretext for a bear raid, drove the common down to 23 1/8 yesterday and the preferred to 47 7/8.

The August statement of earnings showed a decrease of $177,754 in net, and bear operators used the showing as a foundation for rumors of all kinds.

"Although operating expenses increased $522,625 in August," said Mr. Finley, "repairs of equipment to meet the fall and winter traffic requirements accounted for about two-thirds of this amount. The actual transportation expenses increased only 5.75 per cent, as against an increase of gross earnings of 8.19 per cent."

THE PEOPLE ALL. In chorus cried, Give us Newbro's Herpicide.

This word of late has been in everyone's mouth, and many are wondering what the word signifies, though no one has yet been found who will deny that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE does the work. Well, for the information of thousands of people who like to know all about a good thing, we would say that HERPICIDE means a destroyer for killer of "herpes." Now "herpes" is the family name of a disease caused by various vegetable parasites. A similar microbe causes dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair; this is the "herpes" of the scalp.

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION.

The deliberation of the various bodies in attendance upon the sessions in Richmond of the General Convention of the American Episcopal Church was marked yesterday by an address in the morning to the woman's auxiliary of the missionary board by the Bishop of London, addresses by the bishops representing the English Church in Canada and Australia before the House of Deputies, an address by the Bishop of Porto Rico before the House of Bishops and the presentation of a message of good cheer from the Archbishop of Canterbury, primate of England, to that body, and the joint session in the afternoon of the House of Bishops and the House of Deputies for the purpose of considering the reports and memorials of the missionary bishops in remote corners of the world.

The day was practically given over to the consideration of missionary subjects. The Bishop of London in his address before the woman's auxiliary in the Masonic Temple took occasion to praise the work of the women in their effort to raise $222,000 for the cause of missions. The Bishop of London was accompanied by Bishop Gibson, Bishop Montgomery, secretary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel of England, and Misses Sallie Stuart, of Alexandria, and Julia C. Emory. He was introduced by Bishop Gibson. The Bishop, before announcing the benediction, requested the members of the auxiliary to give him a little place in their prayers.

St. Paul's Church was filled to overflowing when the House of Deputies was called to order by Rev. Dr. McKim, the president. The galleries overflowed with women. President McKim thanked the women of the auxiliary to the mission board in the name of the deputies for their great offering, cautioning them to refrain from talking during the sessions of the convention.

The chairman of the committee on new dioceses introduced a resolution recommending that the petition of the mission district of Duluth for formation into a diocese be favorably considered. The petition was favorably considered. The deputation from the Canadian and Australian churches were cordially greeted by Dr. McKim.

After a short session, which included only the reading of the minutes of yesterday, the introduction of the Bishop of Porto Rico and the reading of a letter of greeting from the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, the house of bishops adjourned the executive sessions which have marked their deliberations thus far and joined with the house of deputies in the discussion of the questions pertaining to missions, which was made the prominent order of the day.

Bishop Tuttle in opening the joint session made a brief address, after which the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Justice, secretary of the lower house, was elected, secretary. Dr. Arthur S. Lloyd, of New York, general secretary of the board of missions, delivered an address on "The Progress of Church Missions at Home and Abroad." He spoke encouragingly of the work now being done in the Philippine Islands, China, Japan and the Hawaiian Islands.

The keynote of the session was reached when the Bishop introduced George C. Thomas, of Philadelphia, Pa., treasurer of the mission board. The subject of the treasurer's address was, "Some Facts About the Offerings for Missions for the Past Three Years." At the conclusion of the address Dr. Thomas stated that money is not the only thing needed in the evangelization of the world.

The afternoon session was taken up in the delivery of addresses on the general subject of missions.

The point was made that there is still plenty of room at home for missionary work.

An interesting prayer was delivered by Bishop Funston on missionary work in the Northwest, in which he spoke of the efforts now being made to bring the Indians of the reservation into the church.

A historical mass-meeting was held at the city Auditorium last night, and the public was given its only opportunity of hearing the Bishop of London during his visit to Virginia. An address was delivered also by Bishop Randolph, of the Diocese of Southern Virginia. The Bishop of London spoke at length of his search of the archives in London after his decision to visit the United States and speak at the triennial convention.

Practically all the proceedings at night were in relation to the early history of the church in America and its association with the mother church in England.

There was no session of either the House of Bishops or the House of Deputies today on account of the ceremonies at Bruton Church at Williamsburg.

PRESENTATION OF KING'S BIBLE. Historical interest in the Episcopal General Convention now in session in Richmond, centered largely around the ceremonies in Bruton Parish Church, Williamsburg, today, when the King's Bible and the President's letters were presented to the congregation. The House of Clerical and Lay Deputies of the General Convention took action Wednesday, on motion of the Rev. Dr. Huntington, of New York, appointing a committee of one clergyman and one layman from each of the thirteen original States, together with representatives of the Diocese of Southern Virginia, to attend this service, at which the Lord Bishop of London made the principal address.

The occasion was one of peculiar historical significance, for the Lord Bishop of London preached from the pulpit of a church in America, where for over a century his predecessors in office held ecclesiastical jurisdiction.

The lectern was presented by Bishop Satterlee, of Washington, representing the President of the United States, and was received by the Bishop of Southern Virginia.

The Bible was presented by the Lord Bishop of London on behalf of King Edward and it was received by the presiding bishop of the American Episcopal Church.

The Bishops of Albany, of Virginia, Bishop Coadjutor of Southern Virginia and Rev. Dr. Huntington, of New York also took part in the morning service. The Bishops of Massachusetts, West

Out of Sight. "Out of sight, out of mind" is an old saying which applies with special force to sore, burn or wound that has been treated with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's out of sight, out of mind and out of existence. Piles, too, and chilblains disappear under its healing influence. Guaranteed by druggists, 25c.

Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina, Boise and the Rev. R. H. McKim, president of the House and Lay Deputies took part in the service of the afternoon.

The ceremonies mark the celebration of the centenary of the establishment of the Anglican Church in America. The services were largely attended by many members of the convention, besides people from all over the State and country being present. The greatest churchmen of the continent and from abroad attended and an epoch was marked in church history.

The royal gift from England is a Bible of magnificent richness and elegance. The royal arms of England appear on an inlaid panel on the inside, as does the royal monogram. The arms of the United States appear on the inside back cover.

The front fly leaf bears the following inscription toolled in gold on an inlaid red Niger panel: "This Bible is presented by his Majesty King Edward VII, King of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India, to the Church of Bruton, Va., a shrine rich in venerable traditions of worship, in solemn memories of patriots and statesmen, and in historic witness to the oneness of our peoples. The King will ever hope and pray that the ties of kinship and of language and the common heritage of ordered worship and of ennobling ideals may, through the saving faith of our Lord and Redeemer Jesus Christ, revealed in these sacred pages, continue to unite Great Britain and America in a beneficent fellowship for setting forward peace and good will among men. MCMVII."

The lectern which President Roosevelt presented to the old church is the work of J. Stewart Barney, of New York. Rising from a symbolic base is the Angel of Peace, a draped female form, whose upraised hands and folded wings support the desk of the lecturer. The figure stands on a globe, with one foot resting on Great Britain and the other on the United States. The globe itself is supported by the British lion and the American eagle. Between these figures is the coat-of-arms of the English Washington family. Each of the three tablets at the base of the lectern bears an inscription. On one are the words, "To the Glory of God;" on another, "And Commemorative of the Three Hundredth Anniversary of the Permanent Establishment of English Civilization in America, 1607-1907," and on the third, "Presented by Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States."

The bronze bas-relief memorial given by the American Episcopal Church in memory of the life and service of the Rev. Robert Hunt, minister of the colony which landed at Jamestown on May 13, 1607, has been completed, and is expected to be placed on exhibition in the tower of Bruton Parish Church some time during the day.

Today's Telegraphic News. Massachusetts Republicans. Boston, Mass., Oct. 5.—United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge in his address as chairman of the republican State convention here today dismissed the tariff question as untimely and the question of Canadian reciprocity as unworthy of consideration. He asserted further that both these matters were national policies and had nothing to do with the election of a state governor. He said in part: "Every one knows that no party, republican or democratic, would think of undertaking a revision of the tariff on the eve of a presidential election. Not only is it forbidden to both parties by the most obvious party expediency, but to bring on a period of uncertainty and suspense in the industrial world, in a presidential year, when conditions are always disturbed, by a grave wrong and a serious injury to the business of the country. Nothing we can do or say or vote for in this election will affect in the slightest degree the action of Congress in regard to the tariff next winter. We shall, I hope, and believe, declare for revision, which I, for one, have been urging for the last three years, at our next national convention and we shall then, I trust, carry that into effect along protective lines, immediately after the fourth of March, 1909."

Kicking Horse Started Fire. Centerville, Conn., Oct. 5.—A kicking horse which in the last two weeks had killed her husband and inflicted injuries from which her child, is believed to have fired the barn of Miss Fannie Moriarty, on the Old Ballou farm, here today, causing a fire in which her brother lost his life. Incidentally the horse put an end to its kicking career as it, too, was burned to death. A lantern was usually left burning near the stall of the evil-tempered horse. It is supposed the animal managed to kick it over, and the stable became a mass of flames. William Apley ran into the burning barn to save the stock. He was overcome by the smoke and his body burned to a crisp. Twenty head of cattle also were burned.

The chief executive's camp is to be pitched in the wilderness. The President is the guest of John McIlhenny, civil service commissioner from Louisiana.

President Roosevelt has barred newspaper men from his camp. Some of them had made arrangements to stay as guests at some of the President's hosts, but Mr. Roosevelt gave the word and the invitations were recalled. The correspondents that always accompany the President on his trips were not even allowed to come on the special train with him. They were forced to take the one train that runs between Tallulah and Stampsoul this evening and will arrive several hours after the President.

The Settlement on Count Szechenyi. Newport, R. I., Oct. 5.—The Vanderbilt family is in conference today over the question, it is reported, of the amount and terms of the financial settlement to be made on Count Ladislav Szechenyi when he weds Miss Gladys Vanderbilt the latter part of October. Members of Miss Gladys's own family have called a number of representatives of collateral Vanderbilt lines into the conference. The H. McKay Twimblys are among those in attendance. Rumor has it that the count will get $5,000,000. Of course nothing definite has been or will be given out, though details concerning the settlement will probably gradually reach the public through friends of the family.

Bolt in Convention. Springfield, Mass., Oct. 5.—The liveliest and bitterest Democratic convention ever held in Massachusetts resulted in a split today and the naming of both Henry M. Whitney and Omar W. Bartlett for Governor. The Whitney men came here with an acknowledged majority of delegates, but the Bartlett succeeded in capturing the convention machinery. When the Whitney supporters saw the Bartlett men in control they feared they would be overruled and bolted. Bartlett was named in the auditorium, while the bolter collected in the rear hall, in rump convention, nominating Whitney. The feeling ran high and the breach in the party is wide.

It was officially announced that Sweden does not wish to impose the conditions suggested by Sir Francis Lipton in his recent challenge, but will arrange a race without conditions of any kind.
