TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 9, 1909.

STANDARD OIL AND CO. O. The Standard Oil Company owns the controlling interest in this road and we will make and maintain any rates we may see fit, either to the lakes or to the seaboard.

This is the bomb shell which has been hurled into the camp of other railroads at Pittsburg by the Chesapeake and Ohio, when the roads tried to make the Chesapeake and Ohio charge a living rate for handling coal to the lakes. It is the first official announcement that the quiet buying of Chesapeake and Ohio stock by Edwin Hawley and others has been for the Standard Oil Company. It is further announced in Pittsburg that at a meeting of the Chesapeake and Ohio today Third Vice President Samuel Res, of the Pennsylvania, and John J. Green, also of the Pennsylvania, who have been of the Chesapeake and Ohio directorate, will be retired and replaced by Standard Oil men.

Fred W. Scott, who, with Edwin Hawley, headed the syndicate which recently secured control of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company, when asked in Richmond last night regarding the reported purchase of large blocks of stock of the Chesapeake and Ohio by Standard Oil interests through the Hawley syndicate, said that he knew absolutely nothing regarding such purchases and refused to discuss the question further.

Save Money by Buying Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

You will pay just as much for a bottle Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as for any of the other cough medicines, but you save money in buying it. The saving is in what you get, not what you pay. The sure-to-cure-you quality is in every bottle of this remedy, and you get good results when you take it. Neglected colds often develop serious conditions, and when you buy a cough medicine you want to be sure you are getting one that will cure your cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy always cures. Price 25 and 50 cents a bottle. For sale by W. F. Creighton & Co. and Richard Gibson.

The Famous Greek Painter Who Deceived a Rival Artist's Eye.

Among the famous painters of ancient Greece was Parrhasius, and the following interesting story is frequently related about the talent of this great artist. About the year 455 B. C. an improved style of painting was introduced in Athens by Zeuxis. The aim of this new style was illusion of the senses. Zeuxis soon acquired great wealth by his paintings and was very ostentatious in the display of it. The same vanity is shown by the fact that after he had reached the summit of his fame he no longer sold, but gave away his pictures as being above all price.

He was a great master of color, and in this lay the secret of his success and of that of his school, for it rendered his paintings so accurate and lifelike that they never failed to create an illusion. This is exemplified in the story told of him and Parrhasius.

As a trial these artists were engaged to paint each a picture. That of Zeuxis represented a bunch of grapes, and so naturally was it painted that the birds came and pecked at it. After this proof Zeuxis, confident of success, called upon his rival to draw aside the curtain that concealed his picture. "The curtain is the picture," replied Parrhasius, and Zeuxis was obliged to acknowledge himself vanquished, for, though he had deceived the birds, Parrhasius had deceived him.

The paintings of Zeuxis displayed great dramatic power. He worked very slowly and carefully, and he is said to have replied to somebody who blamed him for his slowness, "It is true I take a long time to paint, but then I paint works to last a long time."

His masterpiece was a picture of Helen of Troy, in the painting of which he had as his models five of the most beautiful maidens of Crotona, for which city the picture was painted. Zeuxis died in the early part of the third century B. C., and it is said he died from laughter at a hag he had painted.

Parrhasius spent most of his time at Athens. He attained to so high a degree of excellence and was held in such honor that he became arrogant, calling himself the descendant of Apollo and the prince of painters and claimed that he had assigned to art precise limits which could never be transgressed. Quintilian says that Parrhasius was so exact in his drawings that he was called the legislator of painting and that other painters followed, as a matter of obligation, his models of gods and heroes.

Didn't Worry Him.

"You'll have to move that suit case," said the Olive street conductor to the man with the gray felt hat. "It's obstructing the aisle."

"I'm not a-going to do it," retorted the passenger sullenly. "I'm not in the suit case moving business. It can stay where it is."

"You won't, hey?" snapped back the conductor angrily. "I'll move it for you then." And he gave it a vicious kick that jarred loose the fastening. The lid flew back, exposing a lot of feminine wearing apparel.

"Now see what you made me do," growled the conductor.

"I didn't make you do it. It's no affair of mine," returned the man with the gray felt hat. "The suit case belonged to that woman that got off back there at Thirteenth street. Guess she must have forgot it."—St. Louis Republic.
