Weather Probabilities.

For this section, clearing this afternoon; fair tonight and Friday; diminishing northwesterly winds. The storm that was central over northern Ohio Wednesday morning has moved southeastward of the New Jersey coast with increasing strength, and heavy rain or snow from the Virginia coast northward. Throughout the interior of the country fair weather has prevailed.

GROUND HOG WEATHER.

The ground hog seems to have been a truer weather forecaster than "Old Probabilities," as the former, during one of the most dismal days of the year, presaged cool and clear meteorological conditions for today. When people awoke this morning, especially those who had contemplated spending the day in Washington, they felt like the king who, in the well-known story, discharged the royal astronomer and placed a jackass in his position, because the latter had prognosticated the weather correctly for the day he was hunting.

There has been a variety of weather during the past twenty-four hours. An easterly wind prevailed most of yesterday, and toward the close of the day there was some hail, followed by heavy downpours of rain and at times thunder and lightning.

Early in the night snow began to fly which continued throughout the night. A high northwest wind set in which blew the snow horizontally through the streets, causing heavy drifts in places. It was one of the wildest nights ever seen hereabouts, and was akin to the blizzard in March, 1885, which brought about the death of many persons in the large cities who found themselves far from their homes with the street cars out of service. Senator Conkling, it will be remembered, was one of the victims.

The severe weather interfered seriously with the operation of trains and navigation, although the damage, so far as known, has been comparatively slight. Telephone, telegraph and electric wires were prostrated in places and limbs were twisted from trees.

The mercury in the thermometer at an early hour this morning stood at 29°. The snow was still flying horizontally across the sky, being impelled by the northwest wind, which had in no wise diminished in force, and people compelled to venture out of doors had to make their tracks through the snow which in places was six or seven inches deep.

Dispatches from Norfolk say that the steamers leaving there last night for this port and Washington and Baltimore with inaugural excursion crowds aboard were in a gale on the bay. The wind was blowing from the west 40 miles an hour and there was a heavy rainfall. Three of the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company's steamers were scheduled to leave Norfolk last night. Only two, the Southland and Washington, sailed, the third, being unable to get back from Washington for the return trip. The three boat loads of passengers were carried on the two steamers.

The steamer Southland, due at this port at 6:30 this morning, did not arrive until 9:30 o'clock, the blinding snow rendering it necessary to anchor the steamer after she had entered the river. The officers say it was the wildest night they ever experienced on the bay and river.

The Washington and Potomac Steamboat Company's steamer Queen Anne started to run on her advertised schedule at an early hour this morning. There were, however, but few passengers.

THE INAUGURATION.

The blizzard weather which prevailed last night and all the morning, caused many in this city to change their programmes materially concerning today's movements. Many had intended to take trains and others determined to avail themselves of the facilities offered by the steamer Queen Anne in order to reach Washington in time to obtain vantage points from which to view the parade. The blinding snow and the fierce northwest wind, however, caused the larger number to defer their trip until a later hour, and the trains and boat transported but few persons during the morning. The approach to the Cameron street wharf was through mud, water and snow generally over shoe tops, and the weird conditions on the river made a picture suggestive of Siberia. The trip to the wharf was under conditions almost as dismal, and upon landing in Washington the would-be sightseers were compelled to seek shelter as soon as possible. A chapter in Dickens' Bleak House describing a dreary day in Chancery Lane is applicable:

"It snowed, and it snowed, and it snowed, and it never left off snowing"—that is looked as if there was to be no cessation. Between eleven and twelve many persons concluded to defy the elements and proceed to Washington, and most of the trains carried full complements of passengers. To the great relief of many the snow ceased to fall shortly before noon.

FIRE THIS MORNING.

To add to the dismal conditions incident to the furious snow storm and cold and high northwest wind prevailing this morning, an alarm of fire was sounded at five minutes to seven o'clock. A blaze had been discovered in a brick house on the east side of Union street, between Duke and Wolfe. The department promptly responded and soon had streams of water playing upon the building. The roof, however, and some of the interior work were considerably damaged before the fire was subdued.

This building has during late years been used for storage purposes by Meers, Alcherson & Bro. in connection with their door and sash factory and lumber yard. Over half a century ago Frederick Fischer conducted a public house in the place, and later Captain Keet took charge of it by continuing the business instituted by his predecessor. The house was subsequently used as a dwelling and at one time for more questionable purposes. It finally became untenable when Alcherson & Bro. took charge of it, since which time it has been used as a store-house. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a fallen electric wire.

The Hess Hopkins FOOT FORM SHOES makes life a pleasure. Sold only by J. A. Marshall & Bro., 422 King street.

ELKS ENTERTAIN.

With hearts light in joyful anticipation of a pleasant holiday today, feeling confident of this fact from the knowledge obtained from the Weather Bureau that conditions would be favorable, Alexandria Lodge, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, assembled in their home last night and proceeded to instruct several applicants in the mysteries attached to this fraternal organization. It was understood that the social session was to begin at 9 o'clock, but the business incident to this session was prolonged and it was nearly 10 o'clock before those of the outside world were admitted. Mr. Robert S. Barrett was chairman of the social session and, as usual, he filled the chair with credit to himself and made everybody happy. The first speaker of the evening was Mr. J. O. A. Boatwright of Danville, district deputy grand exalted ruler of Virginia. He was warmly received by members and visitors and made an interesting and instructive address. The next speaker was Mr. J. A. Spofford, of Salem, Mass., who thanked the lodge for the pleasure of being present and spoke in high terms of the hospitality extended him while he had been in the city. Speaking of speeches there is no doubt that golden talent lies buried which is seldom resurrected except on occasions like this. Demosthenes was put to shame last night as the silver tongue of Peter Von de Westelake sounded the note of welcome to members and visitors and his able presentation of facts connected with the Elks' organization and the city in its entirety places him among the foremost orators of the day. Mr. Walter Smith, of Beverly, Mass., was called on for a few remarks and it was found that no mistake was made, for he was at his best and reflected great credit upon the city he calls home. It could not be surprising to see him come to Congress from Massachusetts if he would accept so "small a job." During the evening Mr. Jas. W. Eiles presented Judge L. C. Birley, exalted ruler, with a beautifully constructed Elks' Home and in well chosen remarks informed him that this present was only a reminder of what the Elks intended to do in the future. The judge graciously accepted the present and referred to the future of the organization in his usual forceful manner. The pleasures of the evening were greatly benefited by the presence of Messrs. Kenneth Ogden and Forrest Birrell, who favored the session with a few of the latest songs. During the course of the pleasant Chairman Barrett read an address supposed to have been sent him from President Elia Taft, which was very amusing. Then "Little Willie" Montier, a brother of Mr. A. D. Montier, of this city, was initiated "on sight" into the deep mysteries of the order. Mr. Montier, in an exact pattern of his brother except he weighs 309 pounds and his brother weighs almost 100 pounds. At 11 o'clock Corporations Attorney S. P. Fisher responded to the toast of "Our absent brothers" and one would have had to be present to properly appreciate his remarks. Mr. Fisher is, as is generally known, a forceful debater, but on this occasion when he required force and sentiment combined, he appeared to be more than equal to any emergency which could confront him. In short, he was good. It can be said in conclusion that the social committee ably assisted by members of the order did their work well.

LECTURES BY DR. S. A. STEEL.

On Monday evening March 3, Dr. Steel will deliver his lecture on "Greenhorns, Grit and Grace," and on Tuesday evening following he will lecture on "Home Life in Dixie, During the War." His early life was spent amid the turbulent scenes of the war for the independence of the Confederate states. In that severe school he learned those lessons of self-reliance, fearlessness, and push, that have been characteristic of his career. He has lectured in all the leading cities of the United States, and has few superiors either in the pulpit or on the platform. His lectures are brimful of color, humor, life and power. He has made southern history a special study, and his masterly lectures on this subject are worthy to be heard in every college in the land. While he has his "stand to live and die in Dixie," yet his patriotism is as wide as the republic, and his sunny, fraternal spirit makes him welcome everywhere.

ENTIRELY NEW VAUDEVILLE.

The snow, the snow, the beautiful snow, on the hills and vale below. This condition has interfered with the proceedings incident to the inauguration and it has made many a gray hair, but if it continued indefinitely it would not interfere with the management at the Opera House for the people who control this house are bent on leaving no stone unturned to enlist interest in good vaudeville and keep motion pictures to the highest standard. Notwithstanding the fact that the first three nights of this week was characterized by a first class performance by excellent artists it is understood that the last three will be even better. As the prof of the pudding is eating it, the way to find out the quality of the entertainment the rest of this week is to take a trip to the Opera House tonight.

REGULAR TRAINS.

Notwithstanding the heavy snow and the trouble arising from such conditions the Washington, Alexandria and Mount Vernon Railway Company have run trains at intervals of 10 minutes all day long today, thereby conveniently transporting to Washington all those who wished to witness the inauguration of Mr. Taft. This was only made possible by the efficient superintendent, Mr. Percy Clift, who worked incessantly the entire night before to insure perfect tracks and every thing necessary for the convenience of the patrons of the road. It can be truthfully said that under his management as superintendent there is hardly a word of complaint ever uttered.

OPINION HANDED DOWN.

In the U. S. Court of Appeals in Richmond yesterday the following opinions were handed down: Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company, appellants, vs. Waverly N. Company, appellants, vs. Waverly N. Company, appellants, from Norfolk district court, per curiam opinion; modified and remanded; damages reduced to $500.

When you want a pleasant physic give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial. They are mild and gentle in their action and always produce a pleasant cathartic effect. Call at W. F. O'Leary & Co., and Richard Gibson's drug store for a free sample.

REARRESTED.

Chief Goods and Officer Simpson last night arrested a young man named Harrie Pattie, who was released by the Corporation Court on a bond of $1,000 for his future good behavior. Pattie, it will be remembered, was arrested some time ago charged with assaulting and attempting to rob Mr. James Palman, who keeps a store on upper King street. He was sent on to the grand jury by the police court, and later was released by the Corporation Court under a bond of $1,000. Mr. J. H. Crilly having become his surety. Pattie subsequently went to North Carolina. He recently reappeared in Alexandria, since which time he has been drinking stimulants and keeping questionable company. Mr. Crilly appeared at the station house this morning and announced his intention of surrendering Pattie to the court. The prisoner is a native of Warrenton. Under the terms of his parole, he can again be made to face the Corporation Court and be held responsible for his crime in assaulting Mr. Palman.

I TOLD YOU SO.

The weather prophet again got busy yesterday and it is generally understood that he is "making good" with the powers that be—that is those who invest their money in stands and rent windows on "inauguration day." The great "prophet" told us yesterday that today would be fair. Very few believed it down this way, but it made seats on the stands and standing room in windows soar skyward in Washington. This morning the ground was covered with snow and many light hearts were made heavy as they gazed on the lily white earth. But then a thought came to them. Even if conditions are bad in Washington and they could not enjoy the parade as much as they expected they could go to the Alexandria Amusement Company tonight and enjoy a good show. A special programme for tonight.

THE VIRGINIA TROOPS.

As was stated in the Gazette, the Farmville Guards, of Farmville, 70 strong, under command of Capt. H. H. Hunt and First Lieut. F. S. Blanton, arrived in this city yesterday morning and were quartered in the Alexandria Light Infantry Armory, on south Royal street. The Washington Guards, of Fredericksburg, reached here this morning and quartered at the same place. There were but few in the company, and they were merged with the Alexandria Light Infantry. This section of the Virginia troops, including the Alexandria company, assembled at the armory at 10 o'clock this morning and later left on special cars for Washington to participate in the inaugural procession.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Samuel A. Grigg, of Denver, is in the city on a visit to his old home on Columbus street.

Dr. George Holler, of Bridgewater, Va., and Rev. William Stanley, of York Springs, Pa., are guests of Dr. Chas. T. Lindsay.

Mr. Robert Keller, of Philadelphia, Pa., is a guest of Mr. Peter Von de Westelake, on north Washington street.

Rev. James B. Gibson, of Hampton, Va., is visiting Mrs. Thomas Leadbeater.

The Red Cross Shoes for tender feet. The ladies who wear the Red Cross Shoes always wear a smile. Sold only by J. A. Marshall & Bro., 422 King street.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Eight strangers sought refuge in the station house last night.

The clock in the City Hall today struck at a quarter past each hour.

The Virginia police steamer Accomac is at the wharf of the Mutual Ice Company, foot of Cameron street.

When a man comes home late with the excuse that business has detained him he is lucky if he can pronounce business without arousing suspicion.

Mrs. Annie E. Marling, wife of Mr. George W. Marling, died at her home, No. 903 Duke street, at an early hour this morning.

Extra watchmen have been employed at the banks of this city who will serve during the next few days, or until the crowd attracted to Washington and this vicinity by the inauguration shall have diminished.

There was no session of the Police Court this morning. Two or three arrests of parties charged with misdemeanors have been arrested during the past twenty-four hours. Their cases will come up tomorrow morning.

The name of William Keland, who was charged with fighting and disorderly conduct, appeared on the blotter of the Police Court yesterday morning, and it was stated in the Gazette that he was fined $5. It was Clarence Keland (not William) who figured in the case.

The funeral of Mary E., the infant daughter of Mr. Matthew F. and Mrs. Julia Hicks, will take place from her parents residence, No. 727 South Fairfax street, at 3 o'clock tomorrow evening.

Roarin' Jake, the bad man from Dead Men's Gulch, arrived in Washington last night loaded to the muzzle with firearms and fire-ware. He stalked out on the avenue with fire in his eyes, looking for anybody who was looking for trouble. Nobody wanted to commit suicide so everybody gave him plenty of room. At last he stopped in front of a large well-lighted window and shouted: "Mama told me that whenever I get hungry I should only eat in places where those irresistibly delicious Ancho Sausages and Hams are served." THE ACCIDENT ON THE SOUTHERN.

As was stated in the Gazette, train No. 35, south bound, the Southern Railway's U. S. fast mail, was wrecked yesterday afternoon near Tye River, a small station twenty-three miles north of Lynchburg, by design, and Engineer Fairfax, of Alexandria, and five other persons were injured. Mr. Fairfax, it is feared, seriously.

The switch lock was found to have been battered to pieces with a blunt instrument and the switch thrown by some unknown persons. As soon as this was communicated to the general offices a reward of $500 was offered for the capture of the wreckers of the "flyer." The train was drawn by two locomotives and both of them left the track and turned over when the switch was entered. The postal and baggage cars followed the engines, but neither of them left the tracks. The train was running thirty miles an hour around a curve when the accident occurred, and the stop was so sudden that the men in the two derailed cars were badly shaken up, while the passengers were thrown about the coaches and Pullmans.

Engineer Fairfax was caught under his engine, where he was held four hours before released. A special was hurried from Monroe to bring him to a hospital in Lynchburg.

Engineer Fairfax is hurt about the arms, body, and legs. The other injured are: Engineer H. T. Lyon, of Alexandria, injured about the arms and legs; Mr. M. T. Egan, of America, Ga., left shoulder bruised; Miss L. A. Ward, of Macon, Ga., injured about the head and right knee; George Turner, of Alexandria, hurt about the hip and shoulder; Cook, a newboy, shoulder bruised.

A RELIABLE HOUSE. When one buys goods of any description he expects to get value received for his money. The principle which has characterized the shoemaker of John A. Marshall & Bro. has been to represent goods as they really are—hence the success of the house. As will be seen by an advertisement in today's paper this firm offers 300 pairs of shoes at a sacrifice—that is, shoes that sold for $5, $6 and $7 a pair will be sold Saturday only for $2.50 a pair.

A BIG NIGHT. There were thousands of people disappointed in Washington today, some of whom had traveled thousands of miles to witness the inauguration of President-elect Taft. But notwithstanding the heartburnings of others tonight the people of this city will be treated with a great show at the Elite Picture Company. The manager wishes to inform the public that if they come to this house tonight a rare treat will be in store for them, as this house presents the largest picture show in this city. Come out to night and be convinced.

A QUIET DAY.

Today has been a partial holiday. Many stores and public and private offices were closed and despite the snow and cold large numbers of citizens went to Washington to see the inaugural parade but not near so many as would have done so had the weather been more favorable. But little business was transacted, a majority of those who did not go to Washington remaining indoors. The day in this city has been an unusually quiet one.

CHARTER.

The State Corporation Commission has granted a charter to the Paradise Springs Co. (Inc.), Alexandria, with the following officers: Mary Merwin, president, Clifton Forze; R. E. Lee, jr., vice-president; E. S. Wolf, secretary and treasurer, both of Washington. Capital: Maximum, $50,000; minimum, $10,000. Objects: To sell spring water for drinking purposes.

DEATH OF MR. CORNWELL.

Mr. Edward Cornwell, a well-known resident of this city, died last night at his home, 916 Prince street. The deceased was about 70 years old. Mr. Cornwell had been an employe of the Southern Railway Company during the past half a century. He had lately been the fireman at Duke and Henry streets.

THE NEW CABINET.

In the Taft Cabinet there are but two men who served in the Cabinet at the close of the Roosevelt regime, and one who has served under Mr. Roosevelt, Senator Knox, who served as Attorney General from December 16, 1901, to June 30, 1904. The others are Jas. Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, who will be retained by President Taft in the same capacity, and George von L. Meyer, who, from being Postmaster General, becomes Secretary of the Navy. The other Cabinet officers are Secretary of the Treasury, Franklin MacVeagh, of Illinois; Secretary of War, Jacob M. Dickleson, of Tennessee; Attorney General, Geo. G. Wickersham, of New York; Secretary of Commerce and Labor, Charles Nagel, of Missouri; Secretary of the Interior, Richard A. Ballinger, of Washington; Postmaster General, Frank H. Hitchcock, of Massachusetts.
