TRICK SHOOTING.

The Way Some of the Stage Feats Are Accomplished.

When a champion rifle shot fires blindfolded at a wedding ring or a penny held between his wife's thumb and finger or seated back to her shoots, by means of a mirror, at an apple upon her head or on a fork held in her teeth, the danger of using a bullet is obvious. None, of course, is needed. The explosion is enough. The apple is already prepared, having been cut into pieces and stuck together with an adhesive substance, and a thread with a knot at the end, pulled through it from the "wings," so that it flies to bits when the gun is fired, is "how it is done."

Generally the more dangerous a feat appears the more carefully is all danger guarded against. In the "William Tell" act the thread is often tied to the assistant's foot. When, again, the ash is shot off a cigar which the assistant is smoking a piece of wire is pushed by his tongue through a hollow passage in the cigar, thus thrusting off the ash at the moment of firing.

A favorite but simple trick is the shooting from some distance at an orange held in a lady's hand. Great applause is invariably forthcoming when the bullet drops out on her cutting open the fruit. It is inserted by hand earlier in the evening.

Another popular trick is that of snuffing out lighted candles. Half a dozen are placed in front of a screen, in which as many small holes are bored, one against each candle wick. At the moment of firing a confederate behind the screen sharply blows out each candle with a pair of bellows.

In most instances where a ball or other object has to be broken on a living person's head blank cartridge is used and the effect produced by other means. A special wig with a spring concealed in it worked by a wire under the clothes is generally used, the confederate manipulating the spring simultaneously with the firing of the rifle. As the ball is of extremely thin glass, a mere touch suffices to shatter it.

In these exhibitions some of the rifle "experts" invite gentlemen from the audience to testify that the weapon is indeed loaded. The cartridge shown looks very well, but it is a shell of thin wax blackened to resemble a leaden bullet. It would not hurt a fly.—London Tit-Bits.

Didn't Suit Washington.

Until the early part of the last century Milford, Conn., had a house in which Washington was said to have spent a night. It was in 1789, when Washington made a tour of New England. Tradition says that there were certain things about his stay at the Milford tavern which he did not enjoy. The supper set before him consisted of boiled meat and potatoes. He was not pleased with the meal and asked for a bowl of bread and milk. The landlord brought the new order and a broken pewter spoon with which to eat it. "Have you no better spoons than this?" asked General Washington. "It's the best I have in the house, sir," replied the host.

"Send me the servant," said his excellency. "Here's 2 shillings. Go to the minister's and borrow a silver spoon." Tradition does not add whether he got the spoon or not.—Exchange.

Caught.

In Philadelphia they tell a story of a man whose wife had arranged an "authors' evening" and persuaded her reluctant husband to remain at home and help her receive the fifty guests who were asked to participate in this intellectual feast.

The first author was dull enough, but the second was worse. Moreover, the rooms were intolerably warm. So, on pretense of letting in some cool air, the unfortunate host escaped to the hall, where he found a servant comfortably asleep on the settee.

"Wake up!" sternly commanded the Philadelphian in the man's ear. "Wake up, I say! You must have been listening at the keyhole!"—Harper's Magazine.

How Seminoles Bury Their Dead.

Seminoles bury their dead on top of the ground after wrapping them in blankets, but always leave the top of the head exposed. They build a pen over the body and usually chink it with earth. When his squaw dies the husband wears his shirt until it rots off, which is not strikingly distinctive. When the husband dies the squaw doesn't comb her hair for three months. Little reverence is shown for the dead. When Tom Tiger's grave was robbed and the bones taken for exhibition the outcry over the desecration was almost wholly a newspaper affair. The nearest settlers were unalarmed and the Indians indifferent.—Collier's Weekly.

Ely's Cream Balm has been tried and not found wanting in thousands of homes all over the country. It has won a place in the family medicine chest among the reliable household remedies, where it is kept at hand for use in treating cold in the head just as soon as the first symptoms begin, the preliminary sneezing or sniffing. It gives immediate relief and a day or two's treatment will put a cold which might, if not checked, become chronic and run into a bad case of catarrh.

STYLE

Isn't a commodity that you can buy in handy, dust-proof packages at any dealer's? The ability to confer style is a gift. The designers that possess it can be counted on your thumb, fore and middle fingers. Our garments are designed expressly for us by a manufacturer who is a very czar for detail. Might as well try to explain a sunset to you as to attempt to tell you about the style of our clothes. We can't put it into print, but we can put it on your back. Why buy an old garb, when the 'Brighton' First Class Garb costs no more than a so-called "just as good" flax as a quarter-a-quarter pair. Why wriggle your way into a shirt like an eel? A Coat Shirt goes on in a flash and off in a jiffy. $1 to $2.

AN ALGERIAN STORY.

Alli and Mohammed Exchange Secrets of Their Trade.

Mohammed ben Mohammed was a marabout whose affairs were in a most flourishing condition. Pilgrims visited his ancestors' tomb by hundreds, leaving many and rich offerings, and Mohammed ben Mohammed grew fatter and wealthier daily.

His servant, Ali ben Ali, became tired of watching his master's increased wealth and bulk, while his own pocket was as flat as his body was thin. So one dark night he silently took his departure, riding on the back of a young ass belonging to his master.

After a march of about thirty miles the ass had enough of carrying Ali. It was a young ass and knew no better. So it went on strike, lay down and forthwith died. Thereupon Ali dug a hole and put the ass in, piling a great mountain of stones over it. Then, sitting down beside the heap, he began to pray. A traveler passing inquired by whose tomb he prayed so fervently. Ali was filled with astonishment.

What! Had he never heard of the great saint Amar ben Amar (literally "an ass, the son of an ass")? All the people of the country around came there to pray. The traveler did not fail to mention the marabout Amar ben Amar's tomb, and soon pilgrims flocked to it with offerings, and Ali ben Ali grew fat and rich.

The faithful neglected Mohammed ben Mohammed, who at last, furious, abandoned his marabout in order to pay a visit to his rival. Great was his astonishment when he recognized his runaway servant. Taking him aside, he whispered: "Tell me the truth. Who is your marabout?"

"The ass I stole from you. And now tell me—who is your marabout?"

"The mother of the ass you stole from me!"—"My Experiences in Algeria," by Baroness de Boerio, in Wide World Magazine.

A Circus Horse in Battle.

Colonel Charles Marshall, who was aid-de-camp to General Robert E. Lee and who went through the battles of the war with his chief told the following amusing story of his experience with a new horse: His old horse had been shot from under him in the fight of the previous day, and he had taken possession of an animal that seemed to suit the work. In the battle a few hours later he was riding across a field in which there were numerous stumps. Suddenly the performance opened. The guns roared, and the air was filled with smoke and noise. Before Colonel Marshall knew what was happening the horse had his four feet on one of the stumps and was gayly dancing in a circle. In the meantime the firing was increasing, and the situation was anything but comfortable. But the horse kept on as if he were enjoying it.

"It was not until afterward," said Colonel Marshall, "that I found the horse had belonged to a circus and had been trained to do this act amid the firing of cannon."
