SATURDAY EVENING, JAN. 1, 1910.

ATTEMPT TO DESTROY A BRIDGE.

Intense excitement was created in the northeastern section of Baltimore last night by an attempt to blow up the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad bridge at Gay street station. Had not train No. 120, bound for the east, been a few minutes late, there would have been a serious disaster. As it was, a bridge girder was twisted out of shape, an 8-foot high iron beam was broken, and a rail on the westbound track was broken by the concussion.

The explosion occurred about 6:15 o'clock. At 6:20 a passenger train was due at the station from Aberdeen, but delay somewhere along the line caused it to arrive at 6:23. But for this delay the explosion would have occurred just as the train was crossing the bridge, and the force of the explosion would have thrown the train from the track into the road below, a distance of about 20 feet.

Many windows for several blocks in the neighborhood were shattered and the residents of the vicinity were thrown into a state of excitement.

Mr. Mary Erdman, the station agent, was in the front room on the second floor and said he saw a man apparently at work on the other side of the bridge. After about 20 minutes he disappeared. Six minutes later the explosion occurred.

This is the second dynamiting to occur on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad within two months. The former occurred at the Riverside round house. Discharged workmen are suspected.
