London, Jan. 10.—For the first time since the present campaign started, the betting favored the conservatives, the odds offered on the Stock Exchange being five to four. Just before Christmas the odds were 7 to 5 on the liberals, and the change in sentiment is one of the most sweeping ever evidenced in England.

King Edward's signature to the formal dissolution of parliament was signed this afternoon and immediately after dissolution, election writs were issued. The issuance of the writs marked the enforced suspension of participation in the campaign by the peers, to the great relief of the conservative leaders, as the peers' irresponsible utterances are generally credited with having done more harm than good.

Philadelphia, Jan. 10.—Convicted that Robert Baist de Janon, grand-daughter and heiress of Robert Baist, millionaire seaman, who disappeared from the Bellevue Stratford on December 29, is now being kept a prisoner by Frederick O'Brien, the waiter with whom she is believed to have gone away, and is ignorant of the language in which she is causing her relatives, the police today took up the search for the young woman again with renewed vigor.

Medford, Mass., Jan. 10.—Through a deliberately aimed bullet from the pistol with which she had twice won the championship, Mrs. Sarah E. Partridge is a suicide here today. She sent the loaded pistol through her heart. With Eugene O. Partridge, her husband, the dead woman had toured the country frequently as a fancy shop. Her suicide came through despondency over failing health.

Act of a Jealous Husband.

Lsbighton, Pa., Jan. 10.—Insanely jealous of his pretty wife, William Ganner, 30 years old, mortally wounded her yesterday afternoon and then committed suicide. The sensational double love tragedy occurred in the heart of Lsbighton, while Mrs. Ganner held their curly-headed 4-year-old son by the hand.

On Thursday Ganner came home, a transformed man, in a violent rage, accusing his wife of infidelity. She denied the charge vehemently. They then quarreled so fiercely that the attention of the neighborhood was attracted.
