WEDNESDAY EVENING, JAN. 19, 1910.

A Pig Tale. The southern negro who is not possessed of a pig considers himself poor indeed. This is well known to the white people, so that when an ancient darky approached a white neighbor with the request that he "gib him er half er dollar ter help buy er pig," "case dat yuther pig Ah had is doue daid," the desired amount was promptly forthcoming.

A few days later the white man met the old negro and inquired: "Did you get another pig, unnie?" "Deed Ah did, sah, an' hit am a fine shoat, an' Ah sholy am much obliged to you fer helpin' me, Mars Tom."

"Well, take better care of this one," Mars Tom suggested. "By the way," he added idly, "what did the other pig die of—cholera?" The old man pulled his forelock and smiled deprecatingly.

"Now, Mars Tom, what for yo' all wanter ax dat?" he said. "Foh a matter er fac', dat yuther pig died 'case Ah hit him on de bald wid er ax, he bein' fat an' de wedder jest right, an' me bein' hungry for fresh meat!"—New York Times.

A Creepy Experience. The Rev. Clarence Godfrey on retiring one night determined that he would try to "telepath" a phantasm of himself to the lady living in another part of the city, Mrs. H. Addington Bruce in Success Magazine. For about ten minutes he endeavored in thought to appear to her. At the end of that time he fell asleep.

About four hours later the lady on whom he had been "exerting his will" awoke with an impression that she had heard a curious sound. She felt nervous and uneasy and thought that if she went downstairs and took a drink of soda water it might have a quieting effect.

Coming back, she was astounded to see the form of Mr. Godfrey standing on the staircase. He remained standing there for three or four seconds, while she stared at him in horrified amazement. Then as she approached the staircase he disappeared.

Right or Wrong? Professed politicians who have reduced officeholding to an exact science find the independent voter a sad stumbling block, a fact which is amusingly disclosed by a story found in the life of the late George Monro Grant, the eminent Canadian educator and clergyman.

Toward the end of Sir John Macdonald's life he and Principal Grant, then the head of Queen's college, met at dinner at the house of the premier's brother-in-law, Professor Williamson.

"How I wish," the premier said to the principal, "that you would be a steady friend of mine." "My dear Sir John," the principal replied, "I have always supported you when you were right."

The premier's eyes twinkled, and he laid his hand upon the shoulder of the principal.

"My dear man," said he, "I have no use for that species of friendship."

Spoiled the Trick. A New York official who had gone through a political campaign, speaking of trickiness, said: "The tricky man usually winds up by being too tricky, like Brown."

"Brown, who lives in Fifth avenue, suspected his English butler of drinking his wine. So one night he drugged a couple of bottles of four or five dollar Chateau Yquem and left them in the dining room."

"Unfortunately that night Brown's wife returned late from the opera. She saw the rare wine and had it put down in the wine cellar along with the twelve dozen other bottles of Chateau Yquem that Brown had laid in."

"Brown is wondering to this day which two bottles are the drugged ones. He has stopped drinking Chateau Yquem. In fact, I understand his whole stock of it is for sale at a reasonable price."—Exchange.

Truth and Fiction. At the Lambs club one night were a number of literary men at dinner guests, when some one gave utterance to the bromidion: "After all, gentlemen, truth is stranger than fiction."

"Perhaps it is," said Wilton Lackaye, with a sly glance at an Indiana novelist, "but not so successful. One never hears of its going into the tenth edition in six months."—New York Tribune.

An Advance. Clerk to head of firm—I wish to ask you, sir, if you can kindly see your way to giving me an advance of wages? Head of Firm—Certainly, Mr. Phipps, with pleasure. Mr. Blunt (turning to the cashier), let Mr. Phipps have a sovereign on account of his salary and deduct it when you pay him on Saturday.—London Fun.

Sure Sign. Nellie—Do you think Paul cares for Mamie? Emma—Did you ever hear a young man refer to a red haired girl as having Auburn tresses unless he loved her?—Exchange.

An Anxious Inquiry. When little three-year-old Ada was told the story of Lot's wife being turned into a pillar of salt she asked her mother anxiously, "Is all salt made of ladies?"
